SHOULD BE RECONSTRUCTED

Politicians Adopt New Plan
for Launching Campaigns in Oregon.

MOTIVES NOT EXPLAINED

J. W. Bailey, State Food and Dairy
Commissioner, Follows in Footsteps of Futuro and Mulkey.
Would Be Governor.

Klamath County has come to be regarded as the place to try out budding political hopes. If they survive a journey across the burning sands and curling hazebrush of that great country, they may be safely tucked away in other portions of the state. At least that is the belief of this summer's crop of politicians. Witness ex-Senator Mulkey's trip there and Senator Futuro's visit to the people of Klamath County before making his public announcement; also that of J. W. Bailey, State Dairy and Food Commissioner. Mr. Bailey has just returned from that section, where he is said to have heard numerous inhabitants tell how they would like to have for their next Governor a man named Bailey.

Soothsayers and witches were invariably consulted in the good old days that the histories tell about, but these occult personages are not in vogue in Klamath. Even the Delphic oracle that gave sassy answers that might mean anything is discounted somewhat by the Fool Bards of the Klamath cross-roads towns. It is the very latest thing in summer booms to "try it on the dog," with Klamath County voters as the first-night audience.

Perhaps this is because Klamath County is so far away from the rest of the state that any political hints dropped down there will reach the capitals of a budding statesman who scatters them until after the election, anyhow. Or perhaps it is just because a man is never so much appreciated as when he is a long way from home.

Maintains Discreet Silence.

Whether the word of Klamath County was encouraging or discouraging, Food Commissioner Bailey declines to take of course he says his trip had no political significance, and then he talks about what a great country it is which he has launched forth on an extended visit about "great latent resources" and "boundless possibilities." Commissioner Bailey is rather strong in this state, and has conducted his campaign at the last two elections when he was chosen to his present office, and his friends say he has met so many voters at farmers' institutes, Grange meetings and schoolhouse pie fights that he knows every man, woman and child on all the R. F. D. routes. Of course, he has not talked politics, but he has made some interesting remarks to the best way to induce the family cow to give down her milk and how to manage a wayward six-months-old calf with matter. Mr. Bailey is a high expert. His large knowledge of livestock and farming has made him known everywhere in the country. And, he has a fine collection of pure food laws, especially, as to clean dairying and honest milk have spread his fame afar.

Will Get Dairy Vote.

If Mr. Bailey runs for Governor in 1918 he will get the votes of the Dairyman's Union, lands down to the candidates may spot about the needs of the state until they empty the benches, but the farmer will know that if Mr. Bailey is elected his cattle will have a friend in court, and the best interests of a farmer's cattle are his own. It would be only right if Mr. Bailey made the same arrangement for the dairy cow as he does for the cow. The chances are the cows would do their best to make good. Anyway, his campaign, if he should "be induced" by his friends to permit his name to be used, will be the first known instance of the dairy herd in politics. "The immaturity of the country over which I passed was my one prevailing thought. Mountains of timber, oceans of water and the richest agricultural lands all make a great garden to that of any in the world. It is a pity that the people of this day in Oregon cannot receive the full value and wealth of these magnificent timber lands, for they are owned by Eastern corporations which are holding them idle for speculative gain. "Klamath Falls is a beautiful place of perhaps 120 people. Probably one-third of the entire population of Klamath County live here. I and the people enthusiastic over the resources of that section and they are anxiously awaiting the coming of a railroad so that they can get the products of their farms and mills to the outside world.

Work of Irrigation.

"There is a good rainfall and also a fine flour mill there, but neither is running to its full capacity for lack of markets. The Federal Government is doing a great work in this section with its irrigation and reclamation service, but the people are getting restless at the slow progress being made and they think that the work could be done faster and cheaper by contracts. Leaving cost out of the question, which the landowner will eventually have to pay, my judgment is that there is plenty of land to be cultivated that does not now and never will need to be irrigated. In fact, there is a real danger that much of the soil may be ruined by over-watering it. This has been done in many sections where the soil contains alkali, as it does here. Too much water brings the alkali to the surface, where it kills all vegetation. It seems to me that a greater benefit will come from draining the marsh lands which contain a wealth of valuable soil for ages. "Twenty-five miles east of Klamath Falls lies Bonanza, a town of 330 or 400 here I found one of the most complete creameries in the Northwest. It was built by co-operation of the merchants and the farmers, who expected to run it at a loss for several years if necessary, to encourage the settlers there, but it will probably not only pay expenses but even a small profit the first year. "Going north from Klamath Falls I

Trial and Became Intimately Ac-

Officials, Positive of This.

"Harry Orchard will be hanged. He has never been promised immunity. In fact, no inducements were offered him to make his famous confession in the Boise dynamite case." This was the unqualified assertion made—and positively, too—yesterday afternoon by John R. Kennedy, a correspondent of the Associated Press, who spent the entire time of the Haywood trial at the Idaho capital as the representative of the greatest newspaper organization in the world. Mr. Kennedy was in a position of close intimacy with Governor Goddin, Senator Borah and all the leading actors in the recent prosecution, as well as with the distinguished attorneys of the defense. "No Governor would dare pardon him, or the sentiment of the people of Idaho, as it is all over the Nation, is a unit in demanding that this arch-assassin pay the penalty of his atrocious crimes. I was given the strongest assurances by the principal state officials that Orchard would go to the scaffold. No matter what may be said by sensationalists, I am fully convinced that Orchard personally and through his confederates, except the satisfaction of having relieved his conscience as far as was possible, I think the preponderance of opinion is that he did not tell the truth in his confession, but that he was within the bounds of human possibilities that a man could invent such a fearful story and stick to it, under the most rigorous cross-examination as did this man."

Verdict Was a Surprise.

"The verdict in the Haywood case was a surprise to me, as it was to many others. I had considered a disagreement probable and a conviction possible, but was not prepared for an acquittal. I am of the opinion that the rest of the country I believe accept the verdict and are convinced that the trial was fairly conducted. The jury heard all the testimony and the judge followed the instructions of the court. The prosecution made a strong case, but seemed to fall in the opinion of the jury. I think its proof up to the point of establishing beyond a moral certainty that Haywood was guilty."

John S. Boyle MISSING

Manager for Associated Oil Company Said to Be Short.

John S. Boyle, who has been acting in the capacity of general representative of the Associated Oil Company in the Northwest with headquarters in this city, is missing and with him, it is alleged, has disappeared over $4000 of the company's funds, which he is alleged to have embezzled. "Jack" Boyle, as he is familiarly known about town, is a debonaire, tall fellow well met, and is known to have possessed a tendency to go the wrong way with his money. He is now at work on his books and just how much the actual shortage really is will not be known until they complete their work. Boyle came to this city about five years ago as agent for the Associated Oil Company, and previous to his connection with that concern was secretary of the Steamfitters' Union in San Francisco.

Owing to the systematic efforts that have been made to clear up the local terminal yards and the consequent congestion of cars there, the tracks are well cleared and less trouble is being experienced than at any time since last November when the strike of the track continental roads and caused such a large amount of freight to be delivered here that the local facilities were overtaxed. It was then that the tracks have never been clear, but subsequent deliveries by the railroads have maintained the congestion and the local terminal yards have not been able to get very far ahead of the crush of traffic. By means of a system inaugurated some time ago, consignments were personally visited and assurances secured that their cars would be unloaded before incoming loads were spotted on the team tracks. This plan worked well and the congestion was relieved to everybody. The large number of cars formerly held outside the city on sidings waiting for a chance to get to the terminal yards and the tracks have been cleared up and there will be no further unreasonable delay in unloading incoming cars. Whenever the future congestions threaten to again tie up the local terminal, the same plan will be adopted.

Deed to Railroad Filed.

No change in previously announced plans of the Portland & Seattle Railroad company is involved in the record of the deed to the company of block 133, Couch addition, by the Columbia Engineering Works. The block is owned by Johnson, Kearney, Sims and recently purchased by the railroad for $130,000. The railroad company secured this property when the Columbia plant was removed to Portland in the month of May. The purchase was part of the original plans of the railroad for securing terminal facilities and sites for necessary buildings.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 1.—The wife and happiness of Mrs. Nannie Leigh Long, the society woman who died recently in St. Louis, depended upon the mystery with which she surrounded herself, and which has attracted such widespread attention, according to Mrs. C. E. Beardlee, of this city, who recognized the published picture of the dead woman as the one who had strangely come into her life several years ago. Mrs. Beardlee says that 15 years ago she decided to adopt a girl baby, and for this purpose went to the Cleveland Orphanage. There were no girls that suited her, but she was attracted by a small child named "Ralph." Later a young woman, apparently of refinement and wealth, appeared and said the boy was hers. She would not disclose her name, but kept a secret. The boy is now attending school in Pittsburgh. According to Mrs. Beardlee, the mother of the boy was Mrs. Long.

VISALIA, Cal., Aug. 1.—A disastrous fire has raged all day along the foothills west of this city. The territory devastated will probably amount to 75 or 100 square miles. The entire population is fighting the fire and reports received are very meager. From here the flames can be seen late tonight, climbing the low-lying hills, apparently still beyond control. A number of barns and outbuildings have been consumed, as well as many stacks of hay and grain, besides thousands of acres of wild feed. The damage will amount to many thousands of dollars.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(Special).—The extent of the punishment of the Standard Oil Company will be made known Saturday morning when Judge Landis will announce in the Federal Court his decision in the famous rebate cases. The setting of the stage for the great one-act drama was begun today when District Attorney Edwin W. Sims returned from a two weeks' vacation in Michigan. Judge Landis will arrive in Chicago tomorrow afternoon or evening with his mind all made up as to just how hard a blow he will inflict upon the greatest of all industrial octopi. Meanwhile the attorneys for the oil trust are fidgeting nervously in their chairs, awaiting the decision. A fine of $29,000,000 against the great corporation would surprise no one, in view of the court's action in bringing John D. Rockefeller, his brother William and various other trust magnates here to testify regarding the wealth, resources and extent of the combination. The counsel for the oil trust are prepared for the worst and the general opinion around the Federal building is that they will not be disappointed.

POWDER TRUST IS DODGING

Transfer Assets of Dupont Company to Avoid Consequences.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Department of Justice today issued the following statement regarding the suit recently filed against the so-called Powder Trust: "Under the laws of Delaware, the stockholders of a corporation can bring about its dissolution by filing their unanimous consent with the Secretary of State. This is what was done by the Dupont Powder Company of Delaware, which is one of the three operating companies in the alleged Powder Trust. The dissolution of a company does not, however, under the law of Delaware, prevent it from being sued. "On yesterday the department was informed that there had been a transfer of the assets of the dissolved company prior to yesterday's proceedings in dissolution. If so, it may be necessary, by amending the petition, to bring in whatever concern may have taken over the assets as an additional party. "The suit is proceeding to the entire satisfaction of the department."
