final act by Buck Hanshawe, the fearless scout, who incidentally wins out in a bout with Cupid and captures the hand of an heiress.

The role of the scout is cleverly handied by Earl Dwire, who puts plenty of spirit into the part, without braggadoclo. Claudia Colonna, as Olive Benton, his sweetheart, is a winsome and acceptable foil. To Charles Connors and Eunice Murdock fail two rollcsome juvenile rules. and Lilian Field handles the role of Tom, the walf, convincingly. Frank De Camp is good in Indian make-up, William Diel does a good plece of character work as a tippling judge, and Cleo Bernard, as a colored servant, shares the comedy hon-ors with a scal line and sending honors with a real live and squealing pig, which figures in the frontier scene. Other members of the company are happily cast and the play should be a drawing card throughout the week.

"The Two Orphans," at the Lyric

T HAT good old play of heart interest and vigorous action, "The Two Orphans," opened for the week at the Lyric last night, with Verna Felton in the role of Louise, the blind girl, who is left help-less in the streets of Paris when her fos-ter sister is abducted by the agents of a gilded house of shame. Since this role was first made famous by Kate Claxton, many actresses of note have appeared in the part; Miss Felton handles it with in the part; Miss Felton handles it with skill, delicacy, careful attention to detail, and fine emotional touches. She infuses the character with genile pathos through-out and rise to the emotional demands with vigor and strength. Ralph Belmont portrays acceptably the fine character of Chevaller de Vaudrey, and Forest Seabury's work in the role of Pierre, the cripple, is particularly good. Charlotte Munderf sustains the role of Henrietta well, and Marie Thompson han-dles the double role of Countess and Sister Genevieve canably. Good character work Genevieve capably. Good character work is done by Mrs. Clara Allen as La Froch-ard, and Josephine Deffrey is happily cast as the outcast. The minor roles are cast as the outcast. The minor roles are distributed pleasingly and that the good old play loses none of its appeal in the hands of the Allen Company was attest-ed by the enthusiastic applause and the stealthy tribute of tears from the aud-ience that colowded the little theater to its doors last night. its doors last night.

The play will run throughout the week with Wednesday and Saturday matinees

At the Vaudeville Theaters

The Grand.

A SHOW that looms up big is the offer-ing at the Grand this week and seekers of sprightly, entertaining vaude-ville cannot gossibly make a mistake by patronizing the performance. Yesterday's opening was an auspicious one for there seems never to be a lull in the patronage this theater receives. The matinee was attended by an audience which filled every seat and it was immensely pleased with the bill.

with the bill. The act that seemed to have a shade the best of it in public favor was the Columbia County Four, a crack-a-jack singing quartet. The voices, particularly the bass are worth going a long way to hear and their methods are highly mirth-neared bas provoking.

The feature number, contributed by Harlan & Rollson, who give a musical act, have seldom been equalled here in their line. They claim to come direct from the big London music halls and it is easy to believe their story after seeing

A STARTLING CONFESSION

Say, Jim, did you ever really and truly think; did you ever hold a campmeeting with yourself to find out how really selfish and mean you are? I do sometimes, and it makes me almost ashamed of myself. Did you ever figure out this insane, wild scramble for the "MIGHTY DOLLAR," how silly it all really is? Don't you wish that you and I and everybody else was ON THE SQUARE? That the DOLLAR only counted for a medium of exchange, and that love, charity and homely honesty were collateral at the bank? I do, and I firmly believe you do, too. Jim, the whole proposition is more or less a LEMON. It is sour because you and I make it so. You are after my DOLLAR, and I am after yours, and the devil is after both We will cut no figure one hundred years hence, only so far. as we have helped some other fellow to live, laugh and love. We don't count for much, but if we try hard we might leave a record that might count for considerable. Dave Harum said: "If you get a dollar, put it into you, or onto yon, as soon as possible. We are here today and gone tomorrow. We are a long time dead, and there are no pockets in a shroud." I will add to the above quotation: Divide the dollar with some one who needs it more than you and I; it may do some good. "The good we do is all that counts for any-thing in this world." I have had twenty-five years' experience in Portland, have quit chasing any dollar that I don't need to support my family, and now dividing with the fellow who needs them more than I do. You may think that I am attempting to convert you to my way of thinking about the dollar. Not on your life, Jim! I am only trying hard to fasten forever in your memory the name of W. M. Killingsworth, and that he is in the real estate business, a firm believer in Portland, and Walnut Park property, also in all lands located between the rivers. There never was, and probably will never be, ads more closely read than are mine, because I am not afraid to always tell the truth. I am after your dollar, and I expect to give you full value for that dollar, otherwise I would soon be out of business. As stated, for twenty-five years I have conducted in Portland a successful real estate business. My knowledge is valuable; as proof, I have made far more coin for my numerous customers than for myself. Every investor will be benefited by my advice. I need you in my business, and you need me. I can save you a few dollars, and make a few for myself. Come to my office and talk it over. Life is short; you cannot afford to make mistakes. I am prepared to give experienced counsel in my line of business. I have a deal on now; one of great merit. Come, don't be afraid to know all about it. Call on W. M. KILLINGSWORTH
