

The Oregonian

SUBSCRIPTION RATES. INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE. (By Mail.) Daily, Sunday included, one year, $5.00. Daily, Sunday included, three months, 1.75. Daily, Sunday included, one month, .50. Daily, without Sunday, one year, 4.00. Daily, without Sunday, three months, 1.25. Daily, without Sunday, one month, .40. Weekly, one year (issued Thursday), 1.50. Sunday and Weekly, one year, 2.50.

HOW TO REMIT—Send postage money order, express order or personal check on your local bank. Stamps, coin or currency are at the sender's risk. Give postoffice address in full. Include state and city.

POSTAGE RATES. Entered at Portland, Oregon, Postoffice as Second-Class Matter. 10 to 15 Pages, 1 cent. 16 to 25 Pages, 2 cents. 26 to 40 Pages, 3 cents. 41 to 60 Pages, 4 cents. Foreign postage, double rates.

EASTERN BUSINESS OFFICE. The S. C. Beckwith special Agency—New York, rooms 519-521 Tribune building. Chicago, rooms 519-521 Tribune building.

KEPT ON SALE. Chicago—Auditorium Annex, Postoffice News, 75 S. Dearborn. St. Paul, Minn.—N. St. Marie, Commercial Station.

Denver—Hamilton & Kendrick, 906-912 Seventeenth street; Pratt Book Store, 1214 Fifteenth street; H. P. Hansen, S. Rice. Kansas City, Mo.—Bickelacker Clear Co. Ninth and Walnut. Youngstown, Ohio—J. J. Cavanaugh, 50 South Third.

Cleveland, O.—James Pughaw, 207 Superior street. Washington, D. C.—Ebbitt House, Pennsylvania avenue.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Ryan's Theater Ticket office, 15th and Arch streets. New York City—L. Jones & Co., Astor House; Broadway Theater News Stand; Arthur Hestling, 15th and Broadway.

Oleander—D. L. Boyle, W. G. Kind, 114 Twenty-fifth street. Omaha—Barklow Bros., Union Station; Meighitt Stationery Co.

Des Moines, Ia.—Miss Jacob. Sacramento, Cal.—Young News Co., 430 N. street; Moon Book & Stationery Co., 500 North Main.

Portland, Ore.—A. Apok, manager seven street news stand. San Diego, Cal.—E. A. Amos. Long Beach, Cal.—E. A. Amos. San Jose, Cal.—St. James Hotel News Stand.

St. Paul, Minn.—Plaza Book and News Stand. St. Louis, Mo.—F. Robinson. Amarillo, Tex.—Amarillo Hotel News Stand. San Francisco—Foster & Chas.; Ferry News Stand; Hotel American News Co.; L. Parent; N. Wheatley; Fairmount Hotel News Stand; Amos News Co.; United News Co., 11 1/2 Eddy.

Oakland, Cal.—W. H. Johnson, Fourteenth and Broadway. Portland, Ore.—Hale News Co., 400 Goldfield. Nev.—Louis E. Fullin; C. E. Houtley. Eureka, Cal.—Call-Chronicle Agency. Portland, Ore.—E. A. Amos. Pine Beach, Va.—W. A. Covrage.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, AUG. 30, 1907.

THE HISTORICAL METHOD. The following, signed "A Reader," whom we take to be a Roman Catholic Father, appears on the editor's table:

As often as the editorial writer deals with Holy Scripture and its exegesis he seems to lose all his wits. To his recent editorial "Something Better," he proves that the poor fellow never read Holy Scripture. "The God of the Jews was a local deity," Nonsense! Read the Psalms, read the prophets, read "Domini est terra et plenitudo ejus," "orbis terrarum et universa terra," etc., etc. "Omnia gentes quasi non sunt coram illis," etc., etc. It is astounding to read such nonsense.

We wish to treat the critic with entire respect, yet must say it is plain that his method of exposition is the one of the olden time, which entirely ignores the method of the modern of modern scholarship, employed in the interpretation of the Scriptures, Jewish and Christian. Such exegetes or expounders do not see—we may say refuse to see—that there is more than one conception of Deity in the body of literature known as Holy Scripture. Yet it is perfectly clear and acknowledged by the scholarship of the world, that every difference exists between the conception of God in the older parts of the Jewish Scriptures and the later conception by the prophets of Israel. The one was an exclusive tribal God, narrow, partial, fierce, bloody, inexorable; the other, the God of all mankind, who deals justly and impartially with all, and in whose hands is the moral government of the world. Between these opposite conceptions in Israel centuries intervened, during which immense changes took place in ideas and concepts of the people of Israel, due largely to the change in their relations with the nations that surrounded them. A more exalted idea of Deity was one consequence. In contrast with the narrow anthropomorphism of the earlier times it appears in the great prophets and in the psalms, and here and there in the historical books, wherein the old and the new are mixed, through repeated reductions.

It is a large subject; for the method is not confined to Scriptural exegesis, but it is a method which covers the whole field of literary and historical research and interpretation.

The body of literature known as the books of the Old and New Testaments are to be interpreted by the universal canons of literary and historical criticism. Approximate dates of different portions, even of the books and chapters, are to be ascertained better by comparative study of different situations and circumstances in the history of a people than in any other way; for thus the differing and varying ideas may be assigned to their own times. We may depend that the ideas of earlier and later Israel were not more the same than were the earlier and later ideas of Rome. And the same canon is good for all history and all times. The church, we know, interprets what it calls sacred history to suit itself; in which, however, the various branches of the church can by no means agree. But the rational, literary, philosophic and scientific interpretation of history, now established on indissoluble foundations, is quite another thing. To place a certain portion of human history in a class by itself, and call it "sacred history," claiming for the church, or for any branch of it, an exclusive right to interpret that portion of history and to impose its interpretation on the world, is a process which, if not wholly obsolete, no longer has power among men.

According to a scientific journal, Germany has learned by experiment that deep-sea fish can be acclimated in fresh water. This is indeed good news. Commissioner Van Dusen has now the opportunity to immortalize himself by planting in the Clackamas, Rogue, Santiam, Deschutes and Umatilla Rivers young sturgeon, halibut, sole, black pompano, mackerel, bluish and tarpon. When these reach the traveling stage they can find in the overabundance of suckers and carp in the Willamette ample food supply. By all means let our streams be stocked with the choicest of the ocean's inhabitants and let's have the sport of catching them fresh before breakfast for nothing instead of paying 15 cents a pound for stale and doubtful fish in the markets.

SERVICE UNDER THE FRANCHISES. It is beyond doubt that one of the causes why the cars have been run at so high speed on the streets of Portland is the impatience of the public with slower locomotion. Every passenger wishes to "get there" as soon as he knows there are no risks. The management of the streetcars is responsive to this demand.

But there is something to be said on another side of the question. If the management would put on more cars, then it would be necessary to run them at high speed. Probably, however, it would be objected that this would increase the expenses of operation beyond the power of the company to pay interest on the bonds. It might, indeed. The overcapitalization on the franchises is very heavy. This is a legacy to the city from the "first families," who made the city charter, fixed up the legislation, hypnotized or otherwise prevailed over the Municipal Council, capitalized on the franchises in one of the wondrous ways of frenzied finance, and then sold out the whole undertaking for sundry millions, imposing on the city a heavy burden of debt. The city has been so outrageously swindled, through a capitalization increased to a figure several times in excess of the actual cost of the property. It was inflated to a bulk which it was supposed a five-cent fare, by close economies and manager senility, could support. The city has been "rich malfactors" put the money in their pockets.

Portland, in return for its franchises, should have the best of service, and a large and steady cash income besides. It is not to be forgotten to what parties the city owes, primarily, the present situation. There should be no ill-will towards the purchasers; yet it is not to be forgotten that they were fully apprised of the situation and circumstances, as well as of the protest, before the purchase was made. Nobody wants them to be losers; yet the people have a right to get no income from the franchises they are entitled to reasonably safe and satisfactory service. Meantime they have a right also to excrete the "plungers of high finance" who put them into this hole. And the gas service of the city, capital and gas companies, and the city's perpetual paying nothing to the city, while furnishing gas of poor quality at high prices, is another of their achievements. "First families come high."

THE STANDPATER.

Many a man who has been proud to proclaim himself a "standpater" will be ashamed of it in these days to get on the tariff revision bandwagon. The standpater policy has never been a wise one in politics or anything else. Perfection has never been reached in anything human, and, if tariffs are declared to be imperfect, there is no occasion to raise the cry of "standpater" to the Republican party. Deity will proclaim itself the same yesterday, today and forever, but the man or party that announces a purpose to consider no change is in a fair way to be left far behind in the world's progress.

There are many of these in other lines than politics. The old farmer who sent his boy to mill with a sack of corn, placing the corn in one end of the sack and a stone in the other, to balance the load over the horse's back, was a standpater. That's the way his father did. The dairyman who keeps his cows in the same paddock, and those who differ from him are heretics. The newspaper publisher who prints his paper on an old hand press is a standpater, as also is the merchant who refuses to advertise and the miser who keeps his hoard in a tin chest. The standpater is a man who means alone, but one would think he would not be proud of his company.

PICTURE POSTALS.

The tendency of the great rank and file of the American people to pursue an idea until it becomes a fad, and make a fad a nuisance, is witnessed in the excitement which picture postals have been pushed. Conceived in the legitimate and laudable purpose of bringing absent friends in touch with the beauties of a distant landscape, or of the advantages that one section offers over another for homebuilding, for business or for special industries, the picture postal has grown into a fad, a craze, and has at last come to be a menace of indecency, of which the local authorities and the Postal Department have been forced to take cognizance.

The limit having been reached, the rampant frenzy that has found expression in the picture postal will now be expected to abate and these wretched caricatures of everything under the sun be withdrawn from sale and excluded from the mails. There are, however, picture postals that will remain—bits of scenic beauty that are worth preserving; glimpses of places of more or less grandeur and renown, which by tourists and sent as souvenirs to stay-at-homes; a corner of a heavily laden orchard or hopyard; the old home in miniature, with "mother" a dim figure on the porch, and a thousand and one other objects that give at least a passing pleasure to the recipient, and will demonstrate still that the idea upon which this fad was based was both legitimate and clever.

It has often been demonstrated that there is but a single step from gross caricature to bald indecency. It is not surprising that this step has been taken in the hot pursuit of the picture postal fad. After some tons of brightly-colored, caricatured and indecently lettered cardboard and leather of the regulated postal size have been fed to furnaces, or otherwise destroyed by official order, the legitimate picture postal may be expected to resume its original place as a convenient medium of advertisement, remembrance or communication. The avalanche of these cards that has fairly swamped the mails and wearied and disgusted the public, should not be stopped too soon. It is gratifying to note that preliminary measures looking to this end have been taken in this city.

GENERAL GREELY AND THE ARMY CANTEN.

In the annual report of Major-General Greely is given an opinion of the Army canteen, from the viewpoint of the soldier in close touch with garrison life, and of the commander who has an intense and abiding interest in the personnel of the Army and the moral as well as the physical welfare of the common soldier. Having made a systematic and extensive examination of the causes of desertion, and of minor but still grave delinquencies in the ranks, General Greely has been led to the belief that small pay and the abolition of the Army canteen are chiefly responsible for these disquieting facts and conditions.

It is idle to dispute or to minimize as trifling the facts that deal with this latter subject. When it is stated that fully 80 per cent of all offenses committed by enlisted men that call for military and civil discipline are due to the unregulated saloons that have sprung up around Army posts since the canteen was abolished, the mistake that was made in abolishing it is plain. But even were the efforts of the Administration wholly responsible for the temporary stringency, the country in the end would be a gainer by the attempt to correct the great evils which have run unchecked for so long. The President seems to have made his position quite clear, and now that it is understood that there will be strict adherence to the policies which have been clearly outlined, there will be less apprehension or uncertainty and business will soon adjust itself to the changed conditions.

The late Charles Cardinel, a pioneer of this city, lately deceased, will be held in remembrance by a number of people now middle-aged, who in their youth were his pupils in dancing. His love for the music to which he taught them to step in the old days was attested by the tenderness with which, in his will, he spoke of three cherished violins. Cardinel was a Cremona, and a Steiner—in devoting them to his heirs. Of all inanimate things, the instrument that, under skillful touch, produces melodious sounds is dearest to the hearts of those who are able to interpret and enjoy music. That an aged violinist should have such a tender affection for his violin is not strange; it would be strange indeed if he did not so regard what had been to him the means of pure and true enjoyment, not only during his active years, but throughout the declining years of his life. The violinist loses his boat, the scholar his books, the inventor his workshop, the homestead, but the essence of affection for things inanimate is distilled by and through the old musical instrument that has ripened with the ripening years of its owner, and proved a never-failing source of solace or pleasure.

Debauching Indians has long been a pursuit followed upon the frontiers of civilization by degraded white men. The Government, through the Indian Bureau, has made and is making honest and strenuous effort to stop the abuses and to bring about a better civilization, but the occurrence of such a case as that of the late Chief of the police and judicial officers of the Government.

St. Petersburg advises announce the retirement from official life of Count Witte, one of the most powerful advisers of the late Emperor of Russia's most famous diplomats. Count Witte has retired to accept a directorship in the Bank of Russia, and has thus vastly improved his chances for dying a natural death. The red record of Russian anarchists and liberators contains so many names of men who stood high in official life, but who met their end by bombs that it is something remarkable that the Czar can find a sufficient number of helmsmen to assist him in steering the ship of state, and incidentally to become the target for bombs and pistol bullets.

The American agent of the Trans-Siberian Railroad has arranged for a special car to convey Secretary Taft from Vladivostok to St. Petersburg. This is not due to the size of the Secretary, but to his importance in other directions, and there is accordingly no doubt that the railway will be glad to trouble with the Siberian Railroad Commissioners, if such there be.

The Umatilla Indians will share in the advantages of a good crop and high prices for wheat by receiving approximately $50,000 as rental from the paleontologists who have been farming the land. Any fears of the protracted withdrawal of this money from circulation will not be expressed by those who are at all familiar with the habits of the red man on a reservation.

James J. Hill is one of the rare captains of industry who, when he looks at Wall street, doesn't take his eyes off the great West. Speaking of the present stringency he says: "I don't view the situation with any alarm." Neither does the country which furnishes the Hill lines with traffic.

It must have warmed the cockles of James Bryce's heart to receive an ovation from so distinguished a body as the American Bar Association. If the British Ambassador were ten years younger, there would be danger of desire for naturalization.

"This is all the fault of a woman," wailed a man who was arrested recently in this city for swindling. It is thus that the plea by which Father Adam sought to evade individual responsibility for wrong-doing comes ringing down the ages.

Process which the great prosperity of recent years has had in its wake had been permitted to continue unchecked, before long a situation would have developed probably far more difficult and serious than the crisis through which we are now passing.

This view of the situation carries with it special weight from the fact that it was given by the financial partner of one of the men whom the President has pursued more relentlessly than any other. But Mr. Schiff is too intelligent to resort to any petty subtleties. He states that the crisis through which we are now passing is the result of tremendous railroad, industrial and commercial development that has required the use of capital largely in excess of our ability to supply it. The strain thus produced has been intensified by the wholesale gambling and stock-watering epidemic which has been raging in Wall street for the past two or three years.

But even were the efforts of the Administration wholly responsible for the temporary stringency, the country in the end would be a gainer by the attempt to correct the great evils which have run unchecked for so long. The President seems to have made his position quite clear, and now that it is understood that there will be strict adherence to the policies which have been clearly outlined, there will be less apprehension or uncertainty and business will soon adjust itself to the changed conditions.

Debauching Indians has long been a pursuit followed upon the frontiers of civilization by degraded white men. The Government, through the Indian Bureau, has made and is making honest and strenuous effort to stop the abuses and to bring about a better civilization, but the occurrence of such a case as that of the late Chief of the police and judicial officers of the Government.

St. Petersburg advises announce the retirement from official life of Count Witte, one of the most powerful advisers of the late Emperor of Russia's most famous diplomats. Count Witte has retired to accept a directorship in the Bank of Russia, and has thus vastly improved his chances for dying a natural death. The red record of Russian anarchists and liberators contains so many names of men who stood high in official life, but who met their end by bombs that it is something remarkable that the Czar can find a sufficient number of helmsmen to assist him in steering the ship of state, and incidentally to become the target for bombs and pistol bullets.

The American agent of the Trans-Siberian Railroad has arranged for a special car to convey Secretary Taft from Vladivostok to St. Petersburg. This is not due to the size of the Secretary, but to his importance in other directions, and there is accordingly no doubt that the railway will be glad to trouble with the Siberian Railroad Commissioners, if such there be.

The Umatilla Indians will share in the advantages of a good crop and high prices for wheat by receiving approximately $50,000 as rental from the paleontologists who have been farming the land. Any fears of the protracted withdrawal of this money from circulation will not be expressed by those who are at all familiar with the habits of the red man on a reservation.

James J. Hill is one of the rare captains of industry who, when he looks at Wall street, doesn't take his eyes off the great West. Speaking of the present stringency he says: "I don't view the situation with any alarm." Neither does the country which furnishes the Hill lines with traffic.

It must have warmed the cockles of James Bryce's heart to receive an ovation from so distinguished a body as the American Bar Association. If the British Ambassador were ten years younger, there would be danger of desire for naturalization.

"This is all the fault of a woman," wailed a man who was arrested recently in this city for swindling. It is thus that the plea by which Father Adam sought to evade individual responsibility for wrong-doing comes ringing down the ages.

Gamblers will be interested to learn that telegraph instruments have been installed at the much-discussed poolroom in Spokane. Here in Portland, we learn, it takes something besides keys in order to insure prompt communication.

At this distance, sympathy goes out to Stuyvesant Fish in his argument with the president of the Illinois Central; also felicitations.

GOVERNOR HUGHES AND HIS BOOM

If the People Want Him for President, They Will Call Him.

The Albany correspondent of the Herald says that the Republican politicians who are advancing a movement for the nomination of Governor Hughes for the Presidency are in despair. They have succeeded in constructing a good-sized "boom" for the Governor. And yet the Governor will do nothing. He is on the eve of making a tour through the state. He has announced that he will do nothing to say on politics; that he will take care to make no expressions that will indicate that he is even "a receptive candidate." He will ignore politics. He is, therefore, a puzzle to them and to all politicians. There are some who would like to fight Hughes' Presidential aspirations. But how are they to fight aspirations when there are no aspirations to antagonize?

These politicians should not be disturbed. By this time they should know that the Hughes way is not to be a candidate for a nomination. If the people want him for an office he will respond to a demand for his services. But that demand must be so clearly made that there will be no mistake about its meaning. It must not be a whisper, nor must it be uttered behind a door. The average citizen will do nothing to create the demand nor give encouragement to an effort to create one. These are the Hughes politics. They are quite simple, and can be understood by everybody—except the politicians.

TAKES MORE MONEY FOR BUSINESS

Attitude of the Country's Banks Toward the Commercial World.

The unquestioned fact is that in spite of the volume of money in the country it is exceedingly difficult to borrow it for the needs of business. What the average man interested in the state of trade throughout the country. Do the ordinary currents of business reflect the conditions at the speculative centers? To answer this question a Chicago bank sent out queries to 30,000 business men and corporations all over the country, and the answers are important.

The answers are strikingly unanimous in saying that business is not only good at present, but that orders are coming in sufficient to indicate more than a normal trade this Fall. The only complaint is the lack of money to carry on business in all cases refusing loans for speculative purposes and making the commercial world as far as possible. Still there is not money enough, and the reason is not far to seek.

There is scarcely a business house in the country that does not require more money to do business now than it did a few years ago. The cost of materials for manufacture is increasing rapidly, and money is required to do the same amount of business based on the same actual production. But in nearly every case the cost of the material is not the cause of the firm or corporation which could get along with borrowing $50,000 must now have nearer $100,000 and may make no greater profit as far as the actual business is concerned. More business to do and less money to borrow. It would be the same if there were no Wall street and no speculation. With this in mind, it is not surprising that a loss in credit and over 95 per cent of business is done on credit.

THE SOUTHERN REPUBLICAN VOTE

Has Influential Representation in National Party Conventions.

New York Press. In his speech at Lexington, Ky., Secretary Sherman said that if under the influence of President Roosevelt some of the Southern states "could be led into the Republican column in November, it would be a great gain for the party." Sherman's words are a reflection of the confidence that the party has in the South. Sherman's words are a reflection of the confidence that the party has in the South.

DESERTIONS FROM THE U. S. ARMY

No Canteen and Other Causes Induce Men to Quit.

New York Sun. In his report dealing with desertions from the Army Major-General A. W. Greely says that the canteen was as 1883 General W. T. Sherman thought it was sufficient to give one. He said that the day was past when a soldier could be content with a few dollars' worth of supplies and measured rations of bread, meat, potatoes and a "gill of whiskey a day," while the farmer, mechanic and laboring man had a good house and a table provided with plain food without stint. General Sherman was speaking of the soldier on post and frontier duty. The soldier in garrison has quarters, but he is often cramped and shares them with others. His rations are about the same as they were in 1883, although he can add to them out of his savings. His whiskey, that is, says the canteen, has been taken from him. Concerning the closing of the canteens General George B. Loring, of Massachusetts, said the other day:

I believe that when the W. C. T. U. brought about the abolition of the canteen it pretty nearly wiped out all the great good that had done for years against the liquor traffic.

General Sherman's one cause of desertion looms larger than ever in these fat days of a two-dollar wage for the unskilled laborer to live from four to six dollars for the mechanic. As for the farmhand, he is asking from $1.75 to $2 a day and "keep" in New England. General Sherman's first great cause of desertion, which he did not add, I identify in the first cause of desertion given by General Greely: "Small pay, especially for non-commissioned officers and high wages in civil life." Among others which stand out sharply in his list are: lack of canteen, excessive amount of non-military work, probable immunity from punishment for desertion, hardships incurred

Mark Twain and the Nobel Prize.

Boston Transcript. The anticipated distribution of the Nobel prizes, which public rumor has sent out, seems a little premature in August, since the awards are not due until December, and it will hardly be profitable to congratulate Rudyard Kipling or Condoyle with Mark Twain on the gain or loss of the literary feature in the list before that date. Perhaps neither will get it. It is the Swedish Academy that is making public its intentions at this early date. It might be restrained from giving it to the American fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it would be in this country and if distinguished attention count he would get the votes in the fact that the one of the prizes came to this country last year, of course, it will be governed by its own standards. A popular verdict at the present time would undoubtedly give it to Mark Twain. Of course it