President Extols Predecessor as Harmonizer of Discordant Elements-Warns Against Class Hatred and Dishonest Rich.

MONUMENT HILL, Canton, O., Sept. 20.—The McKinley mausoleum, the tribute and gift of a Nation to the memory of the martyred President, was dedicated this afternoon in the presence of hun-dreds of distinguished men from all parts dreds of distinguished men from all parts of the United States and representatives of foreign countries, and a crowd of approximately 50,000 people.

A feature of the dedication was the presence of the President of the United States Vice-President Fairbanks, members of the President's Cabinet, United States Senators and Governors of several states.

Addresses were delivered by President Rossevelt, Justice William R. Day, McKinley's Secretary of State and Governor Harris, of Ohio, who acted as president of the day.

The programme ended with the singing of "America" and the benediction by Blahop Horstman, of Cleveland. The President thene-viewed the tomb. The invited guests and the general public did likewise. Thousands passed through the tomb. The tomb, built at a cost of over $900,000, is the donation of over 1,000,000 Americans to the memory of William Mc Dense Crowds Greet Roosevelt.

In the presence of an immense throng of people at the Pennsylvahia station the train bearing President Roosevelt and his party reached the city at 10:15 o'clock this morning, on schedule time. Upon leaving the train the reception committee entered carriages and accom-panied the President to the Central High School.

The streets leading from the Pennsylvania station were lined with thou-sands of spectators. At the railroad the crowd was so dense that the Pres-ident had some difficulty in entering he carriage, but there was no material delay, owing to the strict guard main-tained by the militia men.

The streets were roped off and the crowd was forced to remain on the sidewalk. Soldiers, one stationed every five feet, stood at attention outside the ropes. The pavement was kept abso-lutely clear for the carriage and es-

He arose repeatedly, and when near the schoolhouse stood all the time, bowling and raking his hat in acknowledge. and raising his hat in acknowledg-ment of the greetings. As he neared the school building, the 1700 children, grouped and dressed to represent the National flag, arose in a body and sang "America".

Justice Day was greeted with silent

Justice Day was greeted with silent respect when he arose to tell his story of the building of the magnificent mauso-leum. When mentioning the names of Magonigal, the architect of the monument, and of Niehaus, the sculptor, he asked these artists to arise, which they did, and they were greeted with applause. At the close of Justice Day's speech, the Governor asked the audience to rise while Miss Helen McKinley, only stater of the late President, drew aside the flag disclosing the bronze figure of McKinley in the attitude of delivering his last speech on the day of his assansination at Buffalo, September 6, 1901. The flag was removed slowly and impressivily. This was followed by the reading of the poem, entitled "William McKinley," by James Whitcomb Riley.

Mr. Harris then introduced the Presi-

James Whitcomb Riley.

Mr. Harris then introduced the President of the United States, who delivered a short oration on "Appreciation of William McKinley." The President said in opening that McKinley, as President, wen a place in the hearts of the American people such as but three or four of all the Presidents of this country have ever wen.

He spoke in terms of highest praise of McKinley, both as a public man and citizen, and of his private life. He then said there was a singular appropriateness in the inscription on the monument, and told how it came to be selected. On McKinley's visit to the Pacific Coast in the Spring of 1901 the degree of LL.D. in the University of California was conferred on him by President Benjamin ide Wheeler, of that institution, who made an address which so struck the taste of Secretary of State John Hay that he sent a copy to McKinley with the remark:

You will have the words in more perma-You will have the words in more perma-nent shaps. They seem to me remarkably well chosen, and stately and dignified enough to serve—long hence, please God—as your

In this address Dr. Wheeler described McKinley as "s statesman singularly gifted to unite the discordant forces of the Government and mold the divers purposes of men toward progressive and salutary action; a magistrate whose poise of judgment has been tested and vindi-cated in a succession of National emerg-encies; good citizen, brave soldier, wise executive, heiper and leader of men, evemplar to his people of the virtues that build and conserve the state, society and

He Fought Class Hatred.

Mr. Roosevelt then proceeded to extol the high qualities of McKinley-"the gift of uniting discordant forces;" "not only a leader of men, but a helper of men; "he not merely preached, he was, that most valuable of all citizens in a democracy, a man who served as an unconscious example to his people of the virtues of the intimate life of the home."

scious example to his people of the virtues of the intimate life of the home."

Many lessons are taught us by his career, but none more valuable than the lesson of broad human sympathy for and among all of out citizens of all classes and creeds Arrogance toward the weak, and envious harred of those well off, were equally abhorrent to his just and gentle soul.

Surely this attitude of his should be the attitude of our people today. It would be a cruel disaster to this country to permit ourselves to adopt an attitude of haired and envy toward success worthilly wen, toward shalth honestly acquired. Let us in this cospect profit by the example of the republics of this Western Hemsephers to the south of us. Some of these republics have prospered greatly; but there are certain ones that have larged far behind, that still continue in a condition of material poverty, of social and political unrest and confusion. Without exception the republics of the former class are those in which honest industry has been assured or reward and protection; those where a cordial welcoms has been extended to the kind of enterprise which benefits the whole country while incidentally—as is right and propergiving substantial rewards to those who manifest it. On the other hand, the poor and, backward republics, the republics in which industry has been along man worst of all are precisely those republics in which industry has been killed tecause wealth exposed its owner to spoilation. To these communities foreign capital now rarely comes, because it has been found that as soon as capital is employed so as to give substantial remuneration to those supplying it, it excites ignorant envy and heatility, which results in such oppressive action, within or without the law, as sooner or later to work a virtual confiscation. Every manifestation of feeling of this kind in our givility of the content by the weight of sensible public opinion.

War on Dishonest Success.

From the standpoint of our material prosperity there is only one other thing as important as the discouragement of a spirit of envy and hostility toward honest business men, toward honest men of means. This is the discouragement of dishonest business men, toward honest men of means. This is the discouragement of dishonest business men, the war upon the chicanery and wrongdoing which are peculiarly repuisive, pseudiarly noxious, when exhibited by men who have no excuse of want, of poverty, of ignorance, for their crimes. Men, of means, and, above all, men or great wealth, can exist in safety under the peaceful protection of the state, andy in orderly societies, where liberty manifests itself through and under the law. It is those men who, more than any others, should, in the interests of the class to which they belong, in the interests of their children send, in expectably in the conduct of their lives, to insist upon and to build up respect for the law. It may not be true from the standpoint of some particular individual of this class, but in the long run it is preemittenly true from the standpoint of the class as a whole, no less than of the country as a whole, no less than of the country as a whole, that it is a veritable calamity to achieve a temporary triumpn by vicination or evasion of the law; and we are the best friends of the man of property, we show ourselves the standpoint of some particular individual of the rights of property when we set our faces like flint against those offenders who do wrong in order to acquire great weather or who use this wealth as a help to wrong-delag.

Wrongdoing it confined to no class. Good From the standpoint of our material pros-

Given Authority to Negotiate in Case Japan Opened Question, Which She Did and Conferences Are Being Held.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 .- (Special.)-In the two conferences between Secretary of War Taft and War Minister Terauchi of Japan at Tokio, one of which was held Saturday and another scheduled for today, officials here who have had any misgivings about the attitude of Japan on questions in dispute between Japan and the United States, have, temporarily at least, laid them aside. Those fully acquainted with Mr. Taft's instructions before departure are now reasonably certain that the disputes will be settled port, Mr. Taft departed from Washington on his journey to the Orient fully ad-vised as to the administration's position on the questions in dispute with Japan. The finishing touches on these instruc-tions were given on the occasion of the last visit Mr. Taft had with the President at Oyster Bay.

Determined on Present Status.

They were in substance not to take the initiative under any circumstances, but, if the immigration question should be broached officially by any member of the Japanese government, the determination of the United States Government to maintain the status quo, with such amendments as might appear necessary in practice, was to be made plain and the reasons therefor made clear. Mr. Taft was to receive the representations of the Japanese government, discuss them fully and present to Washington all questions which could not be agreed upon. In any event, Washington must finally approve the acts of the Secretary.

Full Agreement Probable. Full Agreement Probable.

It was not expected that Mr. Taft would be able finally to conclude the necessary negotiations and it is not probable if the present conferences result amicably, that the final result will be accomplished for some time yet.

The fact that the Japanese, through Mr. Teranchi, have taken the initiative in seaking a conference in the seaking as in seeking a conference, is the cheering aspect of the present situation, and it is believed here that a full understanding will soon be reached with Japan on all questions in disjute.

Tart to Make Speech on Relations With America.

TOKIO, Sept. 20.—Secretary Taft, in his speech at the municipal dinner to be given in his honor tonight, is expected to deny emphatically the reports that the relations between the United States anr Japan were at any time strained. This has developed as a result of the publication in the Asahi of a special distance from Landon asserting on hish patch from London asserting on high authority that the Washington states-men are "tired of the hectoring attitude of Japanese officialdom, hence the dis-patch of the American battleship fleet to Japanese since the orders were issued."

In view of the extremely friendly attitude of the Japanese toward Mr. Taft, the publication of the dispatch caused uneasiness and surprise here. The Japanese newspapers sent representatives to Mr. Taft, who immediately such he would Mr. Tuft, who immediately said he give a reply in his speech tonight.

THEILE'S MARRIAGE IN TRUNK DOES NOT TAKE PLACE.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 30 .- (Special.) The marriage ceremony widely advertised to occur yesterday at, the fair grounds in a large trunk constructed as a booth is never to take place in the "big trunk" or anywhere else. Since the modern rite of matrimony was instituted the consent of both parties to the solemn compact has been absolutely essential before the ceremony is had. From statements made yesterday, it would seem that L. M. Thelle overlooked this most important prerequisite when he announced that he and Miss Anna Weidert would be married yesterday in the big

"I never consented to marry Mr.

Nothing daunted by a delay of several hours in attending his own wedding. Oscar L. Dotten, of Spokane, hunted up a clerk of the Auditor's office at $29 Saturday night and secured a license to wed Miss Elsie Gesre. The marriage had been set for 6 o'clock sharp on that evening, but through 'the unavoidable delay of the bridegroom in reaching the city it did not occur until $35. With the exception of the delay, it occurred as scheduled at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Finlay, i618 John street. Mr. Dotten has a position in the transportation department of the Northern Pacific Railroad and was detained at Cheney on Saturday afternoon. Saturday afternoon.

CO-OPERATION IS NEEDED Railroad Commissioners of Northwest May Unite.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 30.—(Special.)— An organization of the railroad commis-sioners of the Northwestern states, is likely to be one outcome of the conference in St. Paul today whose primary purpose is to start a movement for regulations among the various states.

The commissioners hope that by cooperation they may secure such uniformity and effectiveness in the state laws that there will be no occasion for complete Federal regulation of railroads. The commissioners hope to head off the movement under way now which has that end in view. It is proposed to form an organization of the commissioners of the portation interests of the states in the Northwest are similar to those of he Middle West and the commissioners have much the same problems to face. They believe that by working together and along the same lines they will be not only for the interest of the people but that it will benefit the railroads as well, since there is likely to be less diversity in the regulations of the states through which they pass.
