

CHINESE CONSUL WILL QUIT POST

Moy Bak Hin Announces His Intention to Resign in the Near Future.

CUSTOM REQUIRES MOVE

Emperor's Representative in Pacific Northwest so Explains, but Enemies Say It Is to Forestall Dismissal.

Moy Bak Hin, Chinese consul for Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, with headquarters at Portland, announced yesterday his intention to resign from that position. He declined to say when he would resign, but intimated that he intends to step out on the arrival in Washington, D. C., of Minister Wu Ting Fang, about two months hence.

The consul speaks in high terms of Minister Wu Ting Fang, and says the latter is his friend, but on this point there is a difference of opinion in Chinatown. While the consul asserts that he will resign merely out of a customary courtesy, adding that he is going on a trip to China with his family, his enemies declare that he is contemplating this action because he is not in good standing with the new Imperial minister, and knows that he cannot retain his office when the change of administration is made.

Moy Bak Hin has been in office about 14 months, and has had considerable trouble with his countrymen since his appointment. His enemies in Seattle and Portland once forwarded to the Washington legation petitions asking for the removal of the consul, but so far as can be learned, no attention was paid to the matter by the Chinese minister. Moy therefore still holds his office, but in the meantime he has experienced trying times. Several months ago his life was threatened by infuriated Chinamen assembled in mass meeting on Second street, and when he learned of it, he appealed to the police for protection. The cause of their wrath was that they were informed that Moy Bak Hin had folded their attempt to purchase property in North Portland, on which they hoped to build up a new Chinatown. The Chinamen said the consul wished all his countrymen to have property in North Portland, where he had holdings.

Consul Moy Bak Hin, when interviewed yesterday, confirmed rumors of his resignation, but said that he has no intention of moving to South Portland, where he had holdings. He said he would tender his resignation in the near future, probably when Minister Wu Ting Fang arrives in this country. The consul says he has sent word to Minister Wu Ting Fang to come via Portland, and thinks likely this invitation will be accepted. In case it is, Consul Moy said, a big reception will be given.

In Chinatown it is said that Consul Moy Bak Hin has been advised by his closest friends to resign, on the plea that he wishes to take a trip to China. That he will secure a wife for his eldest son, W. B. Moy, now a student in the Hill Military Academy, is intimated, and in part Consul Moy confirmed this. He said his son would marry when out of school, but declined to state as to when that will be. In speaking of his own position, Consul Moy Bak Hin said: "I will resign when Minister Wu Ting Fang arrives, as all others do, according to custom. You know politics. Maybe minister will reappoint; maybe not. I don't know. Just the same as Democrat President when elected appoints his friends to office; next time, maybe, Republican get in, he appoint his friends, and others lose their places. I will go to China some time for vacation. Maybe when new minister comes I will go."

That Consul Moy Bak Hin is familiar with the game of politics is evidenced by his statement concerning his enemies in Portland and elsewhere. "I am a friend to everyone," said he, "but not everyone likes me. You know if some one says a favor and I can't give it, they may say, 'He's no good.' Some like me and some don't."

Concerning the relations that are said to exist between Consul Moy Bak Hin and Minister Wu Ting Fang, members of the local Chinese colony say the two men had several serious clashes when Minister Wu was at Washington before. The Consul, it is declared, had trouble over the charge that he had imported women for immoral purposes. In dealing with the affair, the Chinese say, Minister Wu severely censured Moy Bak Hin. Because of these things, it is said, the Consul is fully aware that he stands no chance to hold his position under Minister Wu.

OFFERS PLANT TO CITY

Owner's Price $11,000 for Center Addition Water System.

M. H. White, owner of a private water system in Center addition, submitted to the Water Board yesterday a proposal to sell his plant to the city. The system is a small one, furnishing well water to the residents of the district. The matter was referred to Superintendent Dodge and Engineer for a report as to its worth to the city.

It was argued by Mr. White that his plant is worth $12,000. He wanted to retain the pump and offered the city the remainder of the property to the city for

DECIDE FATE TODAY

Charles Anderson's Case Is Nearly Ready for Jury.

FRANK WAYNE ON STAND

Convicted Saffcracker Testifies in Behalf of His Alleged Accomplice in Sellwood Post-office Robbery.

Charles Anderson, on trial before Judge Wolverton in the United States Circuit Court, for alleged complicity in the Sellwood postoffice robbery, will know before tonight, whether he is to regain his freedom, or whether he is to join his former associate, Frank Wayne who is a guest of the Government at the McNeill's Island-penitentiary. The trial of Anderson reached the stage yesterday where Assistant United States Attorney Cole closed his opening argument to the jury. This morning Anderson's lawyer will address the jury in behalf of his client.

The second day of the trial of Anderson was not without its sensations and its humorous side lights. Anderson took the stand in his own behalf and while he was gently led along by his attorney, he made a fair witness, but once in the hands of the Government's attorney, he "cracked" and tried to even up matters by accusing Mr. Cole, of attempting, early in the game, to make him confess to robbing the Sellwood postoffice. Anderson, who had been in the courtroom since he was taken from the penitentiary, even if he had to manufacture the evidence. He loudly declared that when he had refused to make a confession, he was placed in the dungeon at the County Jail for three days and was fed on bread and water.

The effect of this statement was minimized when Attorney Cole took Anderson in hand for the cross examination. Anderson became hopelessly tangled and repeatedly contradicted himself.

Comedy in Courtroom.

The crowd in the courtroom was given a chance to break into a broad smile, when Archie Turnbull, formerly in the local Fire Department, was on the stand. Turnbull had finished his rebuttal testimony, in which he told of the conversation Wayne had with him after the robbery, during which Wayne had said that he had told Anderson to "ditch" his gun by throwing it into the river. When turned over to the attorney for the defense, the fun began. Attorney McMahon began snapping his questions at Turnbull and the former captain of chemical No. 1 barked his answers back, but it was a rapid fire exchange while it lasted. The attorney sought to bring out the fact that it was his habit to associate with robbers and to hang around saloons, and Turnbull got back at him by shouting, "I associate with just as good people as you do."

The most important witness for Anderson was Frank Wayne, who confessed to having been one of the robbers who looted the Sellwood postoffice and is now doing a term at McNeill's Island. Wayne was brought from the penitentiary to save Anderson, but as a witness he made a poor impression. He had the "disreputable habit down fine, and when Attorney Cole crowded him into a corner he always fell back on "I disremember."

Wayne denied that Anderson was with him on the postoffice job, and said his companions that night were "Little Johnnie," "Jimmy" and "Billy." He "disremembered" their other names, if they had any. Evidently Wayne is a pampered government guest at McNeill's Island, for he looked sleek and fat; there was no prison palor about him, and his swarthy skin bespoke good health. He was just as arrogant as he was sleek and fat, for when Attorney Cole asked him whether he was one of the gang that looted the Gresham safe, he did not wait for his attorney to interpose an objection, but shouted out at the top of his voice: "I object to that, question." Then he turned violently and faced Judge Wolverton and said: "I object to that question, it's incriminating." At the request of Attorney McMahon, Wayne admitted that he was neither an informer nor a fool.

Wayne's Double Motive.

Wayne evidently had a double motive in testifying. He was here to save Anderson from the penitentiary if possible, and also to get back at the others who were arrested and turned state's evidence. On the stand he testified that "Toots" Bryant had framed the Sellwood job, and had promised to "get a line" on a safe that would yield a good loot. This was denied by Bryant, who swore that he knew nothing of the robbery until Wayne, the day after the robbery, on his return from Vancouver, where he fled, told him.

Wayne also denied having trouble with "Big Johnnie" in the Manhattan saloon over money that he had that belonged to Anderson. He could not remember having trouble, but Turnbull and Louis Smith, the bartender at the Manhattan, both told of the dispute.

The Government placed on the stand a large number of witnesses, all of whom gave damaging testimony against Anderson. Both sides rested at 2:30, and after a 10-minute recess, Attorney Cole began his argument before the jury. He took the jury, step by step, through the evidence, and called the jury's attention to the two revolvers, one of which was found at Sellwood and the other which Anderson tried to conceal in his room the time he was captured. Mr. Cole called attention to the bullet which was taken from the wound in Policeman Sorenson's ankle, and declared that the bullet was fired by Anderson from his revolver that was found at Sellwood.

Mr. Cole talked for an hour. When he closed court was adjourned until this morning.

Convicted of Contributing to Delinquency of Little Girl.

J. W. Brown, charged with contributing to the delinquency of 11-year-old Little Stark, was convicted by a jury in Judge Gantenbein's department of the Circuit court yesterday, and sentenced by the court to serve six months in the County Jail. Brown said he once taught school, but did not say where. The prosecution was brought through the Juvenile Court where it was learned that Brown had been making improper advances to the child. A number of witnesses testified as to Brown's character and conduct.

Dave Smith pleaded not guilty before Judge Frater of the Circuit Court yesterday to a statutory charge made by 17-year-old Jennie Seghera. The girl was taken from the X-Radium Sanatorium last Friday by Probation Officer Hawley. She at first gave her name as Cummings, but afterward said it was Seghera. Smith gave bail and was released.

GIVES FIRST MONEY

Mrs. Lewis Starts Voluntary Contributions to Festival.

INTERESTED IN SUCCESS

Ways and Means Committee Preparing to Have Complete Canvass Made for $100,000 Fund for the 1908 Show.

The honor of being the first person to make a voluntary contribution, entirely without solicitation, to the $100,000 Rose Festival fund belongs to Mrs. C. H. Lewis, and the ways and means committee, which is responsible for the collection of the big fund, is particularly pleased that a woman should be the first to come forward with a subscription. For certain reasons Mrs. Lewis requested, the amount of her pledge be not made public at the present time, but with the subscription she sent a note to the Festival Association expressing her interest in the project. She said that she had admired the grand pageants of the Carnival held last June and wanted to do all she could to encourage the work. She wished the project in glowing terms and gave it as her opinion that nothing has ever happened in Portland that will do more good than this splendid celebration.

The Festival Association is elated over the receipt of this pledge and feels confident that it will be the means of inducing other citizens of prominence to come to the front with generous contributions, as an expression of approval of the undertaking and willingness to render such assistance as the enterprise deserves.

Begin to Raise Funds.

Of the 106 soliciting committees which have actually reported for field service, nearly every one has done something in the way of arousing interest in the "campaign day" round-up, and a goodly number of these hustlers have been doing more or less work each day this week. The ways and means committee, which has direct supervision over the work of raising the money, is bending every energy to get these canvassers out, and the 106 committees mean about 400 workers, for each committee consists of from three to five members, all of whom are prominent in the business and professional life of Portland.

In a general way, it has been estimated that each one of these committees should nearly every one have done something in the way of raising the money, is bending every energy to get these canvassers out, and the 106 committees mean about 400 workers, for each committee consists of from three to five members, all of whom are prominent in the business and professional life of Portland.

Grocers Are Hustlers.

The retail grocers have sent out a large squad of hustlers and for the most part they are following the assessment plan; that is, they have prepared a list of all the retail grocers in the city, with the number of men employed by each and then a provisional pro rata has been established. This arrangement has proven very satisfactory in a number of lines of business, and only a small minority of those assessed have protested either against the arrangement or the amount they are expected to give.

New Hotels in Prospect.

Several new transient and family hotels are now nearing completion and it is figured that every inch of room in them will be occupied as soon as they are thrown open to public patronage. It is considered one of the essential features of the celebration that when the crowds do come they be comfortably fed and sheltered as well as given the most royal entertainment ever planned in this part of the country.

If Baby Is Cutting Teeth

Be sure and use the old well-tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children's teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, kills pain, cools and soothes.

Committees Meet Daily.

Daily and nightly meetings are now being held by various committees of the Festival Association in order that there may be no "fall down" when the pledges are gathered in next Tuesday. There are but three working days before "campaign day," and each one is being made the most of, for upon the results of the preliminary exploitation work will depend the success or failure of the sweeping canvass four days hence.

So far as it is within the power of the Festival workers no merchant, business man, professional man or private citizen is to be overlooked in the appeal for financial assistance. The ground that cannot be covered in the limited time allotted will be gone over in some other way, just as soon as it has developed how much money has been raised under the "campaign day" plan, and as soon as it has been decided how best to reach the rest of the city.
