KEEP FAIR OPEN SUNDAY

POPULAR DEMAND THAT EXHIBITS REMAIN DAY LONGER.

Awards Nearly All Made at Gresham—Portlanders Make Their Day a Success.

GRESHAM, Or., Oct. 18.—(Special.)—Today's attendance at the fair was double that of yesterday. Judging of exhibits and awarding of premiums was nearly completed. Cedar Grove Farm, Charles Cleveland, proprietor, carried away the honors in the stock exhibits, prizes for the display amounting to about $70. For the dairy exhibits, B. C. Altman captured the first awards, aggregating $24. In the agricultural exhibits H. E. Davis won the farm wagon donated by the Studebaker Bros., value $100. There were many other premiums awarded, amounting to a total of over $1500. Today was Portland day, and the people of Portland made the occasion a gala day for the fair. The published programme was carried out upon the arrival of the special cars from the city. In the afternoon the East Side delegations arrived and were welcomed by the fair management in an enthusiastic manner, although there were no formal exercises for them.

The fair having been such a success so far, there is a popular demand that the exhibits remain over Sunday and that a sacred concert be given in the Auditorium in the afternoon. This will probably be done. In any event, the exhibits will remain over Saturday night, except the livestock, which has already been taken away.

The programme for tomorrow has been arranged as follows:

Saturday—Educational and Woodmen's Day; "The Public School Viewpoint," J. H. Askerman, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"The Agricultural College Viewpoint," Dr. W. J. Kerr, president O. A. C.

"The University Viewpoint," Dr. P. L. Campbell, president of the State University.

"The Library Viewpoint," Miss Cornelia Marvin, secretary of the State Library Commission.

The Woodmen camp of Portnevo is to be here tomorrow afternoon 1900 strong. It will have a special pro-

WARS WILL NEVER CEASE

"Man a Fighter," Says Judge Williams at Yorktown Anniversary.

The anniversary of the battles of Saratoga and Yorktown was celebrated last night by the Societies of the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution by a public meeting in the hall of the Selling-Hirsch building. The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of Colonel James C. Jackson, W. P. Chase and W. H. Chapin. Wallace McCamant introduced the speakers of the evening. The following programme was rendered:

To These, O Country (Eichberg), Lakme Quartet.

Address, "Twentieth Century Patriotism," Major-General Adolphus W. Greely, United States Army.

"Star-Spangled Banner," Miss Ethel M. Lytle.

Address, Judge George H. Williams.

Recessional (De Koven-Goodrich; words by Kipling), Lakme Quartet.

Address, Bishop David H. Moore.

"The Song of the Flag" (De Koven), W. A. Montgomery.

"America," the audience.

The addresses of General Greely, Judge Williams and Bishop Moore were scholarly and eloquent. In speaking of "The Benefits of War," Judge Williams said, in part:

"Many people seem to think that a sort of millennium is at hand when swords shall be beaten into ploughshares and spears into pruning hooks, and a conference of distinguished gentlemen is now in session at The Hague, which by some is expected to produce this desirable result. It is quite probable that some good will result from this conference, possible in my understanding may be reached by which international monetary disputes may be settled by arbitration, and means may be devised to mitigate the sufferings of war, but that any agreements among individuals, however learned or distinguished they may be, can perpetuate the peace of the world, in my judgment, is an iridescent dream. Man is a fighting animal and always will be until human beings are converted into angels; and if Milton's great poem is to be accepted as history, even the angels have had some fighting to do in the heavenly world."

ELECTRIC ENGINES ARRIVE

O. W. P. WILL PUT THEM ON THE CAZADERO DIVISION.

Four Locomotives Run by Electricity Will Be Devoted Exclusively to Freight Service.

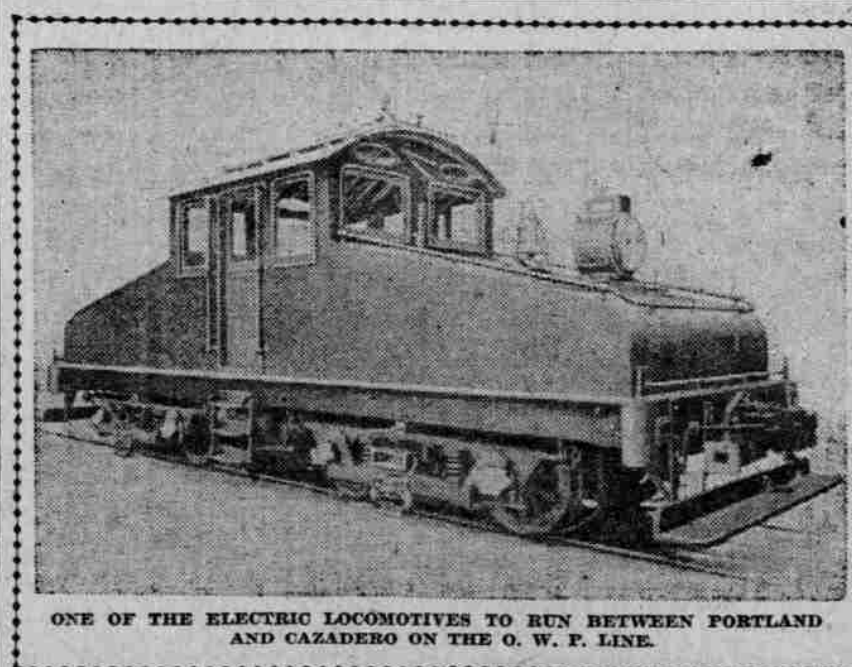

Two electric locomotives were delivered for the O. W. P. Company, yesterday afternoon at the East Side yards, which when fitted up will be put on the freight run on the Cazadero division. These individual cars will continue on the line equipped with automotors as heretofore, the locomotives being intended for freight service entirely, having displaced the steam engines previously used on the run.

The new electric locomotives are of 40 tons weight and are of the latest model. These engines are in use on most of the Eastern trolley lines that have suburban freight service and are found to be adapted for the purpose better than anything yet constructed.

FEW DEPOSITORS APPEAR

PROMOTERS OF REORGANIZATION SCHEME DISGUSTED.

Receiver Devlin Reterrates That the Dividends Will Be Small Unless Bonds Are Signed.

Discouragement tinged with disgust comes pretty near describing the state of mind of those engaged in trying to bring the affairs of the late Oregon Trust & Savings Bank into some sort of tangible shape.

The discouragement was accounted for by the small number of depositors who came in during the day to sign for Home Bonds as a percentage of their bank accounts, and the disgust was expressed by the workers over the way the lagging depositors look at the proposition which its originators maintain was suggested wholly with the idea that, if accepted by all, the bank could pay out in full, and if not by all, that there is likelihood of small dividends.

"Why these people stand in their own light," said Receiver Devlin, "is beyond me. Here is an opportunity for all the depositors to get their money back and to have the bank resume business, but some of them either refuse or are too shortsighted to see their chance. Well, the time is drawing near when I shall be compelled to call off the plan and proceed to wind up the bank in the best and cheapest way possible, but experiences of the past should by this time have convinced people that closing up a business through a receivership is at best an expensive and tedious operation."

A. E. Reames, the attorney in charge of the transfer of bonds to depositors who sign for a portion of their credits with the closed institution, remarked that it looked very much as though some of the depositors were holding back with the idea that the reopening would be effected without their assistance, and that when the bank opened for business all they would have to do would be to drop in and get their money. "Nothing could be farther from the facts," said Mr. Reames, "for unless all the depositors transfer $100 or over in the proportion suggested, the whole scheme will fall through."

There was a caller at the bank yesterday whose opinion did much to encourage the committee and others working for a new bank. The caller was O. E.

TANSEY, A BANKER, OF INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

His attention was attracted by the article in The Oregonian, and he dropped in to talk over the plan of reorganization with the officials. After the plan was fully explained, he gave his hearty approval of it, saying that it presented the best settlement of a bank's troubles he had ever known, and that with the signing up of the rest of the depositors, he would consider coming in with a subscription to the new stock.

Mr. Tansey is in Portland, at the Oregon Hotel, and said last night that he came here with the intention of entering into some sort of financial business, and that the proposal of the reorganization of the Oregon Trust presented several excellent opportunities for investment in the direction desired.

Only $7500 was subscribed yesterday for bonds and bank stock. The depositors' committee said last night that unless a movement is made by the depositors themselves to get in the balance of subscriptions within the next ten days, they will give up the plan of reopening the bank then. The office will be open today from 7 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening for the proving of claims.
