In connection with the apple exhibit there are shown several speciments of Oregon-grown nuts by the Yambill Walnut Club. The varieties exhibited are: English walnuts, filberts, chesinuts and almonds. The growing of nuts, particularly the English walnut, is a well developed industry in Yambill county where there are orchards aggregating over 800 acres. Thomas Prince, of Dundee, is the largest individual grower. He has planted 110 acres of these walnuts, 40 acres being in bearing. This year he harvested from the 40 acres 14 tons of nuts which were sold at 18 cents a pound, netting 35948. In connection with the apple exhibit sold at 18 cents a pound, netting $5040. Nine-year-old trees in the Prince orchard measure 12 inches in diameter with a spread of 25 feet. One 14-year-old tree this year produced 125 pounds. Walnut trees come into bearing from five to seven

HOOD RIVER EXHIBITION, TOO

Joseph A. Wilson Spreads Display in Washington-Street Window.

Visitors in Portland, and in fact an opportunity to view an exhibition of apples and get visible proof of the wonders coming out of the orchards of Oregon. In the windows of Goddard-Oregon. In the windows of Goddard-Kelly Co., at the southwest corner of Sixtb and Washington streets, Joseph A. Wilson, of Hood River, has installed an exhibit of apples from that district embracing 14 varieties, namely, Northern Spy, Winesap, Winter Banang, Hood River Red, Baldwin, Ben Dayls, Wagener, Spitzenberg, Yellow Newton, Deliclous, Ortley, Arkansas Black, Hyde's King and Gano. Delicious, Ortley, Arl Hyde's King and Gano,

Particular attention was paid by Mr. Wilson in arranging the exhibit so that it shows not only the quality of the fruit, but also the pack and different methods of preparing the fruit for shipment. Attention has been given also to artistic arrangement, the feature bedingly, uproarlously funny.

out of one packed ready for market. Each box of fruit is marked with a neatly printed label.

Mr. Wilson, speaking of the exhibit, said last night: "I did not come down here for the purpose of boasting about Hood River; that district needs no boosting. Nor am I here to make any comparison or to east reflection or comparison or to cast reflection on any other district or individual. I am here simply in a publicity way to assist in advertising the state of Oregon to the Easterners who may be in Portland."

The display will remain in place until next Monday afternoon. Mr. Wilson directed attention to the fact that in recognition of the good feeling existing between Hood River and Portland a bunch of roses has been placed on top of the revolving case.
