BABY IS KILLED BY FALLING HOUSE

Heavy Stone Wall Crushes the Dwelling of W. D. Booth at Linnton.

FAMILY BURIED IN DEBRIS

Escape of Other Members Is Con-Mirat Hous - Mother Badly Bruised by Heavy

By the collapsing of a stone wall the temporary residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Booth, of Linnton, was demoliehed at 3 o'clock Sunday morning and their 5-months-old daughter, Genevieve, was crushed to death. The escape of the parents and the older daughter Cecil, aged 13 years, who occupied the same room, is considered miraculous, since the greater part of the dwelling was reduced to kindling wood by the avalanche of stone and earth, weighing several tons. Mr. Booth escaped without injury, as did also the other daughter, who had to be extricated from her bed, where she was buried among the debris. Mrs. Booth releived a slight injury to the right leg by being struck by timbers from the falling walls.

The damage was done by a section of solid masonry about 200 feet in length, 10 feet high and about three feet wide, a part of the outer wall of the dust flue that was used by the Portland Smelting & Refining Works in connection with its large smelting plant before the property was abandoned sometime ago. It was allowed to remain and was being used as a retaining well by property owners who are construction attractive homes on the hill overlooking the town. There was a space of about three feet between the two walls, and this had been filled in with dirt by the proper'y owners during the dry season. The oursing of the wall is telleved to have been due to the excessive rains of the last few days. Having no outlet from the dust-tight flue, the water accumulated with more pressure than the strength of the wall could support, and the dis-ruption followed. The wall was built

I was awakened suddenly by an wful noise," stid Mr. Boo'n, who is mployed as assistant filer in the Clark & Wilson lumber mill at Linnton, in the unfortunate accident "My first impression was that it was an explosion from an at tempt to blow open a safe, but an in-stant later I discovered that my home has been demolished. The bed occupied by myself and wife was forced by the falling wall outside the house, the wall of which led been torn away. First ascertaining that Mrs. Booth was not sellously injured, I went to look for the baby, only to find her burief among the rocks and earth. Continuing my search, I found the other daughter allys but buried because the scall of alive, but buried beneath the walls of the house and unable to free herself was powerless to remove the debris sione, and called for help. the assistance of a dozen men I sucseeded in rescuing the older daughter and in recovering the body of my dead child."

During the Summer Mr. Booth constructed a temporary dwelling on toe still at the head of the team. The impression left on the that collapsed. The damaged wall served as a retaining wall for the property of Louis Shelk, one of Linnton's the stockholders of the club, merchants, who was building a hand-some residence. Saturday aftermoon Mr. Shelk thought he saw evidences of cracks in the wall and reported his discovery to other interested property owners, who contended that the supposed breaks in the masonry must surely be old ones that had not been noticed before. However, it was agreed to investigate the wall the following day in order that the true condition might be accrtained. Coroner Finley was notified of the accident, but in view of the circum-stances decided that an inquest was

M'GRAW SAYS HE WILL STAY

Rumor That New York Manager Was to Quit Is Denied.

During the past week baseballdom has been agitated by the rumor that John McGraw, who has led the Giants to victory for two pennants and one world's championship, was slated to be superseded as manager of the New York National League team, says the New York American. It was said that McGraw's devotion to betting on the races had impaired his usefulness to the club, because his mind toward the end of the last season was more occu-pled in picking winners at the track than defeating opponents on the dia-

For several days the officers of the club maintained the strictest silence; refusing to deny or affirm the rumor that McGraw would be deposed and Bresnahan or some other well-known player selected to take his place. But President Brush and Secretary Knowles were so pestered with questions that they finally intimated that McGraw would lead the Giants again next sea-son, and McGraw himself finally made the emphatic statement that he was

The impression left on the baseball writers, however, is that some serious differences exist between McGraw and the stockholders of the club, and that it will be some time before the nigger in the woodpile is discovered, as nonof the men concerned deem it profitable to talk at the present time.

FALSE WORK MAY GO OUT

Heavy Rains Swell Stream to Raging Torrent-Structure Now Being Rebuilt Not Able to Withstand the Floods.

The heavy rainfall of the last 48 hours amounting to nearly three inches, has converted the Clackamas River into a turbulent stream, endangering the sub structure, including concrete plers and false work, for the new bridge which is rse of construction by the Portiand Railway, Light & Power Company on the Oregon City division. This is the first freshet of the year and there is a great amount of drift which threatens to displace the new bridge foundation. The company ceased to operate its cars over the bridge yesterday and is transfering passengers around the structure by pri-vate conveyances over the county bridge to counect with cars on the Oregon City side of the river. While the railway company had been intending to replace its bridge over this stream for the last year, work on the mprovement was necessarily delayed until late this Fall because of the failure of the steel to arrive from the East. The company had hoped to complete its installation before the Winter rains began but the indications are that its pre-liminary work will be entirely lost. The concrete piers and the piling are ex-pected to be washed away hourly since work on the superstructure has not progressed sufficiently to give the bridge sufficient weight to keep its foundation

Few streams in the state are affected more by sudden and heavy rainfall than the Clackamas. Under these conditions the tremendous force of this stream is almost immeasurable.

Expressed in another way this means that during 48 hours enough rain fell in Portland to cover the entire city with a sheet of water nearly two and one-half inches deep. As all this necessarily collected in the gutters and storm sewers these channels were flooded and in these channels were flooded, and in some cases where the outlet was too small the street was overflowed from curb to curb. The effect on the streams in this vicinity was marked. As the rainfall farther up the Willamette Valley was even up the Willamette Valley was even heavier than at Partland, amounting to 2.51 in 24 hours at Albany, old Willamette is rapidly rising. DUCKS HARD TO BRING DOW

BIRDS ARE FEW AND THEY FLY MUCH TOO HIGH.

Very Few of the Small Army of Sunday Hunters Get Anywhere Near Limit Bag.

It was weary waiting in the duck blinds yesterday on most of the preserves along the Willamette and Columbia River Sloughs, where sportsmen spend their Sundays. The homeward lourney was made with slender bags. Of all the various duck clubs along the bottoms, not more than a dozen were able to bag the ilmit, in spite of the prayed-for rain and storm. At some of the clubs, like the Deer Island, where the shooting is always good, the hunters brought home fine strings of Sprig and Mallards, and just enough Teal to bal ance the straps.

The storm and the rain so anxiously looked for by the hunters, came. It brought in the birds all right, but it also scattered them and made them as wild as March hares. Masked Footpads Hold Up G. P. Mock on Tenth Street.

While on his way home from the Grand Theater last night, G. P. Mock, residing at 251 Tenth street, was held was a marksman par excellence, had only the music of the exploding shell for his company. It was only at rare intervals that the flapping of broken wings, or the splash of the bird as it struck the water, made the sport worth while. The birds were flying high, so high that a balloon would have been feet it inches tall. feet 11 inches tall.

Mock was walking up Tenth street, when the two men stepped out from behind a tree. One presented a gun with the command, "Hands up." Mock obeyed, and the other man went through his pockets.

Baker Expects to Be Champion.

BAKER CITY, Nov. 24.-The football team of the West Portland High School is expected to arrive in this city next Wednesday for the game on Thursday afternoon for the championship of the state. On Wednesday evening a grand raily will be held on Reservoir Hill at which there will be a huge bonfire, songs. yells and other demonstrations to awaken the enthusiasm of the townspeople. DEMOLISHED HOUSE OF W. D. BOOTH AT LINNTON.

Eayond the heap of debris is seen the kitchen annex of the Booth dwelling which was demolished by the collapsing of a 200-foot section of the outer wall of a dust flue of the old Linnton smelter that was being used as a retaining wall for the frontage of residence property. The main part of the building was reduced to kindling wood by the enormous weight of the falling wall. Mr. and Mrs. Booth and a daughter, aged 12 years, miraculously escaped uninjured, but Genevieve, 5-months-old daughter, was crushed to death in the wreckage. The baby was alceping in a cradle in the side of the building next to the wall when it collapsed.
