Beginning Made at Resuming Operations of Goldfield Mines.

ARMED MEN ARE ON GUARD

Union May Prosecute Mineowners for Blacklisting—Funston Says Martial Law Will Only Be the Last Resort.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Dec. 12.—The first day of the attempt to re-open the mines of Goldfield without the aid of the Western Federation of Miners, has passed, and there has not been a single instance of attempted violence or disorder in the camp. Unarmed pickets of the Goldfield miners' union have approached as close to the scene of the operations as the armed guards of the mineowners' Association would permit and have succeeded in inducing some of those who had signed the agreement to return to work, to violate that agreement and leave the mines.

General Funston arrived at noon and his coming seems to have improved the situation greatly and to have strengthened the constantly growing impression that the fearful incidents of strikes in other mining camps are not to be repeated here.

May Arrest Operators.

It is stated tonight that the leaders of the strike have secured what evidence they want to prosecute some of the mining operators under a statute of the State of Nevada, which makes it a crime punishable by a fine of not less than $50 or more than $200 or imprisonment for not less than 20 nor more than 150 days or both to require an employee to promise or agree not to become a member or remain a member of any labor organization. Arrests may be expected at any time. It is stated by some reliable sources that the whole report of probable arrest as a bluff.

After a conference with President Charles H. Langdon, of the Goldfield miners' union, General Funston sent a report to Washington tonight regarding the situation here. The conference was the last of a series of conferences which General Funston has been holding since his arrival here today at 12:30. Governor Sparks, Colonel Reynolds, in command of the troops, Acting President Dowden and Secretary Ebb of the Goldfield Mineowners' Association, and others were called into these conferences, and General Funston wasted no time in acquainting himself with an outline at least of the conditions that prevail.

Funston Explains Purpose.

While General Funston refused to say to a representative of the Associated Press what is contained in his report to Washington, he said that it contains nothing in regard to the probable length of the stay of the troops in Goldfield, but would be confined to the need for them at the present time. He said:

"The regulars will be here at least until after the arrival of the Labor Commission from Washington. This means that they will be here for another week, and I have no doubt they will remain much longer than that, or at least a portion of the number now here will be here. I am not sure of the question as to the necessity for the troops in Goldfield at this time to preserve peace and order, and it is too soon after my arrival for me to have obtained an opinion. My report tonight will simply set forth my view of the situation as I have obtained it from the people whom I have seen today."

Acting as State Militia.

It must be understood that I am not here to go into the merits of the dispute of the mineowners and the miners. That is what the commissioners are coming from Washington for. They doubtless will go deeply into the merits of the dispute on both sides, but I am simply going to determine whether the continued presence of the troops, or at least a part of the Goldfield will prevent disorder and riot and bloodshed. I am convinced that the presence of the troops thus far has been a necessary precaution.

Martial law should be a last resort, and I will not advocate it until there has been some great violence committed and the local authorities have proven themselves unable to stop any outrages, such as the destruction of life or valuable property. Either the President or the governor of the state must declare martial law, and in the event that it be the Governor, I shall consider that the regulars are at his service. Just as would be the State Militia, provided Nevada had such an institution. In fact, it is my idea that the regulars are here to take the place of a State Militia during the present crisis.

Colonel Reynolds remains in command of the troops now encamped here, and I am here to make a report on the situation and to direct things in the event of serious trouble.

No man can say what amount of trouble is to grow out of this situation, or worse, but I am trying to get at the possibilities for trouble, and for that reason I thought an interview with President Mackinnon and other leaders in the local miners' union in order to hear their views on the matter and for myself of their frame of mind and disposition to bring about any disturbance.

Union Against Violence.

General Funston did not visit the military camps until late in the afternoon, and it was not until late in the afternoon that he went over the ground and acquainted himself with the way of the land and the location of the mines and mills.

Mr. Mackinnon stated after the interview with General Funston that he told the general that he and the other officers of the Goldfield Miners' Union would do all in their power to prevent trouble of any kind, and he pointed to the fact that no attempts have been made today to molest any of the men who have deserted from the union and gone back to work in the mines.

The number of men who today renounced allegiance to the Western Federation of Miners and returned to work is given out as 56. A visit to the mine and mill of the Consolidated Company, where the majority of the men were said to be at work, failed to discover this number, and it is known that a few at least of the men who signed the agreement to leave the work were induced in a quiet way by the members of the union to reconsider their action and remain with the Western Federation.

No Instance of Violence Being Used.

No instance of violence being used, or even of intimidation or threats developed. An attempt to operate the Goldfield-Nevada Reduction Company's plant failed on account of lack of men, who failed to keep their agreement.

The Nevada-California Power Company.

The Nevada-California Power Company has been able to keep its plant in full working order today and tonight, although every one of the local electricians and electrical workers of all kinds have walked out on account of the reduction in their wages and no skilled men have been secured as yet to take their places.

HAS SEEN STATE GROW UP

Peter J. Girard, Argonaut, Indian Fighter and Hoquiam Pioneer.

HOQUIAM, Wash., Dec. 12.—(Special.)—Peter J. Girard died at his home in Hoquiam this morning of heart disease, aged 67 years. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon. Deceased leaves a wife and four children, A. C. Girard, S. A. Girard, Mrs. Eugene E. Parker and John G. Girard, all of Hoquiam.

Mr. Girard was born in 1840, at St. Joseph, Mo., being one of a family of eight. In 1860 he joined the stream of argonauts flowing westward and landed in California. In company with a brother he prospected in California and discovered what was later known as the famous "Moors Kangaroo Mine." Finally a roving disposition took hold of him again and he left the mine. Shortly afterward the murdered body of his brother was found in a sluice ditch and the mine which he had discovered later sold for $2,000,000.

In 1863 Girard arrived in Portland, and in 1866 went to Canada and prospected some time along Fraser River, finally leaving for San Francisco. He took passage with 1500 others on the steamer Pacific, Captain Burns. Shortly after leaving Cape Flattery the vessel sprang a leak and was in hours off the Cape while heroic efforts were made to stop the leak. Captain Burns finally took the ship back to Victoria, with nine feet of water in her hold. Girard gave up his trip to California and took passage for Olympia on the steamer Ediza Anderson. During his early life in the West Girard took part in many Indian campaigns and was known as an Indian scout of some renown. He took an active part in avenging the Owyhee Canyon massacres in Oregon, and led the soldiers against the Indians. He was also with Major White at Boken and Silver City during the Indian troubles there, and was for several years a partner of "Wild Goose Bill," a well known character of the Coast, who recently died. He also took part in the Indian battle of Stoptoe Butte.

Girard came to Puget Sound again in 1880 and logged a portion of Vashon Island, and also at other points on the Sound. He was married in 1884 to Emma Megler and came to the Harbor and settled in Hoquiam the same year. He was one of the pioneers of the Grays Harbor country and has always been prominently identified with city and county politics. In the early days he served as United States Deputy Marshal and in that capacity was a terror to evildoers. He was especially active in ferreting out smuggling operations on the harbor, and made several large captures of contraband opium.

WANTS TO SEE A WARSHIP

South Bend Asks for Visit of One Vessel to That Harbor.

SOUTH BEND, Wash., Dec. 12.—(Special.)—At the meeting of the Commercial Club yesterday the suggestion was enthusiastically adopted that South Bend make a vigorous effort to secure a visit from one of the battleships which comprise the squadron that will visit the Pacific Coast next May. A committee was appointed to take up the matter with the Congressional delegation. There are so few harbors north of San Francisco that there should be one ship to spare for South Bend.

No war vessel of the United States Government has ever visited the harbor except the monitor Monterey, which was here 14 years ago, and the occasion was made a memorable one. Another reason which will be advanced for the visit of such a vessel here will be to investigate the need of some fortifications to protect the interest of the harbor.

NO FEAR OF RESULT

Mrs. Longworth Undergoes Critical Operation.

UNDER HER FATHER'S ROOF

Daughter of President Sacrifices Appendix to Health—Is Steadily Recovering—Roosevelt Takes It Coolly and Plays Tennis.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, daughter of President Roosevelt, was operated on for appendicitis at the White House this morning. Dr. Rixey, at 11:30 o'clock announced that the operation on Mrs. Longworth was a success in every way.

The operation was performed at the White House, by Dr. Finney, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, assisted by Dr. Sophie Nordhoff-Jung, of this city. Mr. Roosevelt left his office and was at the scene of the operation until it had been completed. On being informed that it had been successfully accomplished and that the patient was in no danger, he returned to his office and took up his routine work.

At the conclusion of the operation, Mrs. Longworth emerged from the influence of the anesthetic in a very short time, and after exchanging a few words with Mrs. Copley, her aunt, and with her husband, she fell asleep naturally and enjoyed a nap lasting two hours. Her condition was such that Mr. Roosevelt felt little apprehension, and in fact did not hesitate to engage in his afternoon tennis game with Ambassador Jussarand, Clifford Pinchot and Assistant Attorney-General Coker.

The preparations have been making for the operation for nearly a month, it being known during that time that Mrs. Longworth was suffering from incipient inflammation of the vermiform appendix. About a week ago preparations were begun for the operation, which it was deemed expedient to undertake before she had suffered a loss of strength that would be sure to ensue from a severe attack of appendicitis.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon it was announced that Mrs. Longworth was resting easily and the physicians were entirely satisfied with the progress she is making.

The following bulletin was issued at the White House at 9 o'clock tonight: "Mrs. Longworth has had a comparatively comfortable day. Her general condition is satisfactory. Bulletins will be issued during the night."

Appendicitis

How to Avoid It and Escape a Surgical Operation, Told by One Who Knows.

A Simple Method That Is Always Efficacious.

It has only been a few years since it was discovered that a surgical operation would cure appendicitis; in fact, it has been but a short time since the disease was discovered and named.

Whenever there is an inflamed condition of the appendix, caused by impacted feces in the small cavity opening into the intestine, you then have appendicitis.

The older doctors used to call this inflammation of the bowels, and were puzzled to find the cause.

Even now, with all the knowledge we have of the disease, no medical man can tell you why we should have an appendix, why we find it where it is or what are its functions, if it has any.

The disease for which the operation is a cure is usually caused by indigestion, and in many cases follows a large and indigestible meal.

Physicians have until recently recommended an operation, but now, as it is known that it is caused by indigestion, or dyspepsia, a cure without an operation is assured.

Where the patient is treated with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, the unhealthy conditions prevailing rapidly disappear, the stomach and intestines are placed back in their normal condition, every organ of the body operates as it should, and the inflammation is reduced and the operation is avoided.

Conscientious physicians, who are looking after the best interests of their patients, will always keep a supply of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets handy in their office, where in cases of sudden attacks of indigestion they can relieve the patient at once.

There is no record of a case of appendicitis where the stomach and bowels were in a healthy condition and properly digested the food from meal to meal.

No better advice can be given to any one who has attacks of indigestion, or who has been threatened with appendicitis, than to tell him to go to the drug store, pay 60 cents and take home a package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Whenever heartburn, gas in stomach or bowels, heart disease or stomach troubles, sour eructations, acidity or fermentation is present, act at once. Take a dose of the tablets and get relief as fast as possible.

At all druggists—50 cents. Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.
