PRESIDENT'S HAND IN REFORM

American People Not Disposed to Censure Him.

INVESTIGATION UNDER WAY

Prosecution of "Big Thieves" May Have Hastened Trouble, but Roosevelt Declares Disturbance Was Inevitable.

BY WALTER WELLMAN. WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 .- Is President Roosevelt responsible for the recent flurry in banking, called by some the panie? There is no more interesting question before the American peo It is a question which is pretty sure to be much discussed during the coming , Presidential campaign. It is moreover a question which every citizen would like to have authoritatively answered, for these reasons:

A great majority of the people have upheld the President in his campaign for corporate reform and control. If, as alleged, that campaign has produced financial distress and temporary dull times, then the people who have supported the President in his policies are equally responsible with him.

Venturing no opinion of my own palnataking investigation would be required before doing that-I quote some interesting remarks upon the aubject recently made to me.

Bound to Come, Anyway.

First is the President's own opinion. Nothing makes him more indignant then the accusation that he "brought on the panic." But he is not unreasonable or undignified in his resentment. He takes, on the whole, a very rational view of the matter. He says the financial trouble was bound to come, any way. It was only a question of time. He admits his policy of trust prosecu have hastened it a little though he is not sure of that. But it was inevitable in the end, and if it had been much longer delayed might have been far more serious.

Mr. Roosevelt has been making some inquiries as to the responsibility for the recent flurry, and it is quite probable he will have something to say or the subject when the proper time comes. These investigations, when finished, are likely to produce interesting disclosures. For instance, it is said to be capable of proof that certain big financiers in New York, allied with Standard Oil, have for two years been trying to bring on a little panic which could be blamed upon Roosevelt and the Administration for political effect. Mr. Morgan was never a party to this conspiracy, but some negotiations of a year or so ago in London, with a view to cornering the money market in America, carried on by a Standard Oil banker, are under inquiry,

Some of the Causes.

As to the cause of the recent disturbance, three distinct views are held by men whose opinions are worthy of consideration.

First-The rabid anti-Roosevelt or Wall street view, that the President did it, and he alone, with his little trust-busting hatchet.

Second-The view of the average New York banker and business man that while Roosevelt may be partly responsible, the chief cause was the ac tion of the Western banks in demanding their money from New York and hoarding it away in their vaults at a Third-The Western retort to this. in which there is more truth than poetry, that it was "a Wall-street gamblers' panic," and that they of the West preferred to have their's at home.

While the New York banks as a whole were conservatively managed and sound, the Morse, Thomas Heize concerns were notoriously used by plungers in the stock market operations which had been going on for a long time. These institutions, as managed, should have been closed up or a change of management ordered long ago. The hig financiers of New York knew all about it, but did nothing. They waited until the strain upon credit, confidence and capital by too much anticipation of the future had come acute, and then, with trouble brewing, they got together and deelded upon reform at the weak spots Morke, Heise & Thomas were forced out. 'The crisis was on, Cleaning Out Rotten Spots.

Rotten banking spots should be cleaned up at times when there is no strain, when everything is going on normally. To walt till a crisis comes through general conditions and then to clean up is a good deal like cleansing cesspools after pestilence has appeared. There is no doubt that Mr. Morgan hadn't done it carller. President Roosevelt's friends say it is absurd to charge him with responsibility for the ptimistic American temperament which draws too many sight drafts on the future, or for the rotten spots in New York which precipitated the crisis, made evitable by the general strain on credit. They add that it is equally absurd to criticise him for saying the rotten spots existed.

Every one knows it. The records of Every one knows it. The people o the West know it. Western bankers knew it when they made haste to draw their money out of the metropolis.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15 .- (Special) —Americans think a great deal of President Theodore Roosevelt, but it has been reserved for the Russian peasants settled in Eastern Siberia to reverence the well-known picture, which shows the gleam of teeth, as that of a saint. That they do so is asserted to be a fact by Alexander G. Denbigh, who arrived on board the steamer Siberia, and is now staying at the St. Francis Hotel.

"The people there are of the lowest class of Russian peasant and know nothing about the outside world," said Denbigh. "In every house, no matter how poor it may be, there is sure to be an ikon of some kind, and if it is possible for the sowner of the place, he also has a picture of a saint.

Bourke Cockran Describes Revolution in Political System.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(Special.)—W. Bourke Cockran, at the epening session of the People's Forum at the new ing the "silent revolution in our political system," declared that the powers which have grown up in the business and finan-cial world during the last ten years now completely dominate the Federal Government and are much stronger than any government which has ever before existed. "During the last 10 years," said he, "the entire control of productive agencies has passed into the hands of less than half a dozen men. I think we will take the names of Rockefeller, Morgan, Harriman and Hill, and for a fifth we will say Armour, and have all that practically control the important industries and agencies of transportation. Not merely do they trol these agencies, but by the influ which this control gives them of the deposits, they have come to dominate our financial institutions, our great insurance companies, our leading banks and trust companies, our leading banks and trust companies. They control not merely the agencies of production and exchange, but the agencies of credit, that means the entire industrial life of a community."

Mr. Cockran said President Roosevelt had been frying to do things to the great corporate interests, but had only succeeded in saying things; that he had been able only to make faces at the trusts; that not a single one of the heads of the great News of the real estate market. OREGON BANKS IN FINE CONDITION

SHOW GAIN IN DEPOSITS

Official Reports Made to Controlle of Currency Indicate That Return to Normal Basis Will Safely Made.

Exclusive of the First National Bank of Lakeview, from which a statement was ot received, and the three National banks in this city, the other 63 National banks of Oregon on December 3 had available cash reserves averaging 42 per cent of all deposits. Since the date of these reports, which were made to the Controller of the Currency, each of these banks, taking advantage of the holidays that ended saturday, has still further increased the actual amount of cash in its vaults. On the date of the reports these 53 banks had deposits aggregating $18,100,-559.92 with available cash on hand amounting to $7,661,422.05.

Under the law all of these banks, being cated in non-reserve cities, are required to hold in reserve only 15 per cent of their deposits, so it is evident they are carrynearly three times the requires unt of ready funds.

, Banking Law's Provisions.

Under the provisions of the National banking law, there are in the Unit. 1 States three central reserve cities, as follows: New York, Chicago and St. Conveniently distributed throughout the country, several of the larger cities, including Portland, are designated as reserve cities, this city being the only one in Oregon. National banks in reserve cities are required to carry as a reserve an amount equal to 25 per cent of their deposits. One-half of this reserve may be carried with the banks in the central reserve cities, but the other half must remain in the bank's own vaults. All other cities having National banks are known as non-reserve cities and under this classification are listed all Oregon cities and towns outside of Portland. These must earry as a reserve cach amounting to 15 per cent of their deposits, of which 9 per cent may be deposited with banks in the reserve cities, but the other 6 per cent must remain in the vaults of the bank. Additional Banks Report

Last Monday The Oregonian published a statement showing the condition of 29 of the National banks of the state from which reports had been received. Those banks represented deposits aggregating $12,229,965.88, with reserves reaching a total of $5,422,784.67, om 44 per cent of the deposits. Reports from 24 of the remaining 25 National banks in non-reserve cities slightly reduce the general average of these first reporting. With deposits days, or any assistance. reaching a total of $5.870,604.04 and a cash reserve of $2,238,637.38, the percentage of cash on hand in these banks is 38 per cent, or more than twice legal amount of deposits required.

Considered collectively, the average amount of cash on hand compared with the total of deposits in the National banks of the state reaches the remarkable figure of 42 per cent.

All the 24 banks reporting during the last week have reserves far in excess of that required by law, reflecting a most healthy condition financially in their respective communities. The First National Bank of Springfield, which was organized

November 18, of the present year, has to-FLEET BATHED distinction of having in its vaults an amount of actual cash in excess of all deposits. In the two weeks this bank was in business prior to making its re port on December 3, deposits were re ceived to the amount of $15,889,26, while its report shows cash on hand aggregat ing $16,934.99.

Reserves Exceptionally High.

Included among the banks showing a unusually high percentage of reserve funds are noted the following, which have eported since the last statement was pub lished: First National Bank, of Forc. Grove, 58 per cent; First National, of Oregon City, and the First National, of Prince ville, M per cent each; Harney County National Bank, of Burns, and the Medford National Bank, of Medford, 54 per cen each; Farmers & Traders National Bank, of La Grande, 52 per cent; First National Bank, of Vale, 49; First National Bank, of Medford, 42, and Capital Nationa
