

LASSIE LOPES DRESSED AS BOY

Girl of 15 Becomes Enamored of Hired Man, Who Already Has a Family.

HER MOTHER SICK IN BED

Father Invalid With Paralysis. Young Woman Was Manager of 160-Acre Wheat Farm in the Palouse - Lovers Located.

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 15.-(Special).-Somewhere in the Great Northern line, on the way to Seattle, is believed to be Sarah Evans, aged 15, dressed in boy's clothing. She is believed to be in company with a married man who deserted his wife and five children.

The youthful Sarah, who has the reputation in the neighborhood of Elk, Wash., where her home is, of being a Maid Muller, leaves behind her a helpless father, who is a paralytic, and a mother on a sick bed. Although a child in years, she has managed a farm containing a quarter section, doing the work of a man. She frequently had as a helper the married man who is suspected of having enticed her from home.

A man and a companion dressed in boy's apparel were under suspicion at Wenatchee yesterday, having taken a room at a hotel together for the night. They left early in the evening and were next heard of at a small station, where the man was endeavoring to purchase woman's apparel. He explained to inquirers that the child was his only daughter, and that she was in boy's apparel merely for a lark. Police refuse to divulge the name of the man until the evidence against him is further developed.

Neighbors at Elk talk of a coat of tar and feathers if their suspicions are verified and the man is brought back.

Mrs. Elmira Ann Wolrdridge Cook, Pioneer of 1853.

GRANTS PASS, Or., Jan. 15.-(Special).-Mrs. Elmira Ann Wolrdridge Cook, who died in this city January 5, was born in Christine County, Kentucky, February 20, 1822. She moved with her father to Southwestern Missouri in 1844, where her father died. In April, 1853, with her mother, sister and brothers, she started for the Oregon country. Winter was spent in Salt Lake Valley, where, February 20, 1853, she was married to R. A. Cook. They left the valley, April 27, of the same year, and went to Mount Hood and struck the Oregon road at old Fort Hall. SENDS CUTTER TO ASTORIA

Treasury Department Orders the McCulloch to Columbia River.

ASTORIA, Or., Jan. 15.-(Special).-Orders were issued by the Treasury Department yesterday, directing the revenue cutter McCulloch to make her headquarters here in the future. Such was the word received today from United States Senator Fulton. Some weeks ago the matter of stationing a revenue cutter at the Columbia River was taken up with the Department by Senator Fulton, and a vessel was promised, but none reported. On last Monday, the Chamber of Commerce sent a message to Senator Fulton, asking if the Department had taken any definite action in the matter of ordering a cutter to this port. Today a reply was received from the Senator as follows: "Department has directed McCulloch to cruise between San Francisco and the Sound, but has this day made a positive order directing that her headquarters be changed to the Columbia River. She will continue to cruise up and down the coast." The McCulloch is the largest vessel in the revenue cutter service. She is of 1280 tons displacement, carries six guns, and was built in 1897.

DEATH TAKES FATHER AND SON

Umattila Pioneer and His Boy Die Few Hours Apart.

PENDLETON, Or., Jan. 15.-(Special).-By a singular coincidence, F. Wachter and Ray Wachter, father and son, died within 12 hours of each other Tuesday. The boy died at a hospital in this city at 5 o'clock in the morning. At that time his aged father was lying at death's door in the Columbia, several miles south of this city. Owing to his critical condition he was not told of his son's demise, and passed away without knowing the boy had preceded him by less than 12 hours.

The elder Wachter was 75 years old and a pioneer of the southern part of the county. He is survived by a wife, five daughters and two sons.

Schneider's salary was placed at $100 a month. This settles a long standing row between two factions of the volunteer department over the election of a chief, one favoring Charles Koehler and the other J. W. Grahn. Schneider was chosen as a compromise candidate. Schneider was recently refused renomination for Chief of Police by Mayor France.

WHITMAN AT CONFERENCE

MOVE TO REGULATE INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS.

Rules Proposed for Amateur Standing of Athletes—Better Schedule for Football Games.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Jan. 15.-(Special).-The associated students and faculty of Whitman College are operating in the effort to organize a conference to regulate athletics and the other intercollegiate activities among the colleges and universities of the Northwest. It is evident that something must be done to improve conditions in this section, especially in the matter of eligibility and amateur rules. Probably most of the attacks that have been published this year regarding individual players have been uncalled for, the fault lying in the fact that there has been no definite agreement all around as to just what circumstances should bar a man from representing his college. Some of the eligibility rules that are being considered will probably consider a one-year rule; the so-called one-year rule, which provides that a man who has completed two to another college and compete for it until he shall have been there a year; a rule requiring 12 hours of regular college work, and some conservative amateur rules. It is also proposed to the convention that this conference be made to apply to other matters than eligibility. Whitman favors an annual conference, the first to be held in Oregon in the East and Middle West, instead of the small meets that are in vogue here. Whitman also wants to submit to the convention a plan for a conference oratorical contest.

Another big proposition to be proposed in the plan of a football schedule whereby each institution in the conference shall have a match with each of the others in football. Heretofore the schedules have been more or less "hit and miss," so that some of the colleges would only meet two or three of the others in the season. The Agricultural College played only Oregon last year. The uncertain result of the football schedule for the last few years has been a result of just such unsatisfactory arrangements.

Whitman has taken the initiative in the matter by inviting the six big institutions in the Northwest to meet in Walla Walla on February 7 and 8.

PAY FOR BLOCKADE RUNNER

Owners of Boat Lost to Japs Can Collect Insurance.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 15.-(Special).-For the loss of the steamer Tacoma, captured by the Japanese government in 1905 as a blockade runner while en route between Seattle and Vladivostok, the North Western Steamship Company may collect $1800 against the Maritime Insurance Company, of England, the insurer of the vessel, the full amount of the policy. Judge J. H. Hanford so decreed in a decision handed down in the Federal Court this morning.

The Tacoma was carrying to Vladivostok, under false orders, it is alleged, 9000 barrels of beef and other contraband of war for the Russian forces. In the Okhotsk Sea the vessel was caught in the ice and detained for more than 40 days. The alarm was raised, the ship started for the nearest Japanese port to provision. A Japanese war vessel captured the ship and a prize court condemned her. The underwriters declined to pay the war policy because of the fact that false orders were given the captain by John Poene, then president of the Northwestern Steamship Company, and that the vessel deviated from her course against the provisions of the war clause.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 15.-(Special).-There are no Japanese on board the Canadian Australian Liner Mowera, which is due to reach Vancouver on Sunday, from Sidney, via Honolulu. CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Halsey Woman Arrested in Albany for Shoplifting.

Mrs. Ellen Vanderlip, 58 Years Old, Tries to Swallow Morphine When Her Thiefs Are Discovered. Her Relatives Give Bail.

ALBANY, Or., Jan. 15.-(Special).-Mrs. Ellen Vanderlip, a woman 58 years old, residing one mile west of Halsey, was caught shop-lifting in the store of Chambers & McCune in this city at noon today. She was detained in the Sheriff's office all afternoon and this evening Justice Swan held her for the Circuit Court under $5000 bond, which were furnished by Halsey relatives.

The woman was in the store of Chambers & McCune early this morning, and her actions then engendered suspicions aroused on her former trips to Albany, and when she returned about noon she was watched. E. H. McCune saw her take a shirtwaist, two collars and some ribbons and when she was seen by an officer could arrive to make the arrest. While McCune telephoned to the Sheriff, she fought desperately to get away and pleaded hysterically for liberty. She also tried to swallow some morphine and this leads to the belief that in her hysterical condition she may have meant to commit suicide.

A grip Mrs. Vanderlip carried was found to contain two pairs of shoes, a lace curtain, some ribbons and remnants and even some bologna sausage. The grip goods were identified as coming from three different stores and the sausage from a local meat market, all unpaid for. She denied ownership of the grip and tried to threaten the officers with a grandchild, Willie Corcoran, who accompanied her, to lie about its ownership. Later she confessed to today's thefts, but claimed it was her first offense, except that she took some ribbons two weeks ago from the store where she was caught today. Mrs. Vanderlip says she has been making trips to Albany twice a month to buy morphine for herself and alcohol for her husband, Henry Vanderlip, being unable to procure the articles in Halsey. It is suspected she also practiced some shop-lifting on these trips, and employs of Chambers & McCune are positive she took several articles there on her last trip here.

The woman admitted using morphine for eight years, and in her trip was a large bottle of the drug as well as two bottles of alcohol which she purchased today at a local drugstore. This is the second arrest of a woman for shop-lifting in a little more than a week. Mrs. Kate Murray being caught January 8, stealing a purse in Woodworth's drugstore and having a score of stolen articles in her possession.

UNEARTH HISTORIC RELICS

INDICATE RUSSIA ONCE OWNED WEST COAST.

Old Papers at Sitka Show That Alaska Purchase Should Have Been Much Larger.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 15.-(Special).-Papers discovered in old Russian archives at Sitka, Alaska, the former capital of the northland when it was a part of the czar's vast domain, indicate that by right the whole western coast of North America belongs to the United States, as that portion now under British control originally belonged to the empire of the white bear and should have gone with Alaska when it was ceded to the United States in 1867. These documents, which would have been of the greatest importance at the conference held in London some years ago relative to the boundary line between the United States and Canada, were unearthed by Leo Nabokoff, intimate friend of Count Leo Tolstoy.

Nabokoff was sent by the Russian government to make certain researches among the old papers for historical data when the important discovery was made. The documents, which show how the czar's realm was enlarged by the entire northern coast of North America, and will ultimately lead scholars to philosophize on what might have been had American statesmen, in the days gone by, been possessed of this wonderful information. The documents are written in old Russian and Nabokoff says they are of the greatest interest as well as new light on the early history of the far north.

WALLACE, Idaho, Jan. 15.-(Special).-Two more violent deaths are reported on the Milwaukee right of way near Taft. One is unusual in that a boy's handeled cause of death.

Yesterday afternoon a boy was taking a can of powder down the trail on a small handeled sled, which he lost control. The sled, with the speed of an arrow struck Antonio Codena on the neck, breaking it and causing instant death. A coroner's jury gave a verdict of accidental death.

GREEKS REFUSE TO MOVE

APPEAL TO SHERIFF WHEN ARMED MOB APPROACHES.

Conflict Feared at Mountain Home, Idaho, Where Objection Is Made to Presence of Foreigners.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 15.-(Special).-Trouble is impending at Mountain Home over employment of foreigners to clear a large tract of land near that place. Some time ago the owners of the land contracted with a Japanese restaurant keeper to clear it and plant it with fruit trees. He planned to put a force of Japs at the work, but he was warned by white workmen that his restaurant would be blown up if he did so. That alarmed the Jap and, disposing of his restaurant, he took the men to do the work, and yesterday he landed about 100 of his countrymen at the town ready to go to work. Last night a party of 50 men, well armed, waited the Greek camp and warned them to leave the country, giving them a day to comply with the order. The members of the mob were all masked. The Greeks called upon the Sheriff for protection, and at last accounts all were still at the camp but serious trouble was feared.
