EXEMPT FIREMEN AT BANQUET.

The Exempt Firemen's Association held its annual banquet last night at Grand Central restaurant. President Thomas A. Jordan presided, and in his address called to mind to those present the good old days when the protection from the city from fire was a duty that devolved upon the volunteer firemen. He also told of the origin of the paid fire department, having drafted the bill which was introduced into the Legislature by Joseph Simon, making a paid fire department possible. Peter Taylor, the only survivor of the half a dozen men who organized the Volunteer Fire Department in 1851, gave an interesting talk on his reminiscences of the volunteer department. Ex-Senator Gearin, himself a volunteer fireman, was the principal speaker of the evening, his tributes to the plucky fire fighters who have passed away being heartily echoed. General Owen Summers, B. M. Donovan and others also responded to toasts during the excellent menu served by Brandes. Among those present were Peter Taylor, George Langford, John Barry, A. J. Remington, James Lotan, A. B. Stuart, first engineer of a steam fire engine in this city; John Schermer, James Kierman, W. A. Hart, Blaise Labbe, N. E. Maroney, William Washer, Thos. DeBost, Owen Summers, John M. Gearin, W. W. Sweeney, Joseph Simon, Robert Holman, James Hopkins, George Wilson, R. F. Harrington, R. M. Donovan, Thomas A. Jordan, first chief engineer of the Portland Fire Department.

FOUND DEAD IN WOODS.

J. L. Plonka, gardener and cranberry man, was found dead in a wooded bush 28 First street, yesterday morning. It was plain he had been dead for 24 hours, or thereabouts. When found, the body was lying on a rough bed in the bush, and he had been lying on his back. Little is known of the old fellow except that he was about 60 years old and had been a sufferer for years from rheumatism. It is believed rheumatism of the heart brought on death. He had been complaining of that ailment the day before and had borrowed money with which to buy medicine, saying he was in bad health. The body was fully dressed, indicating that death must have come suddenly. The body was found in charge by Constable Guy McConnell, whose principal vocation for several years past has been that of hanging about a few houses waiting for saleable strangers to buy drinks, in jail. He rewarded the hospitality of one so-called purchaser by paroling his watch. That was a few months ago. McConnell has since been missing. But he got the idea that his offense was forgotten, and returned to the city. He was arrested a few hours after his arrival in the city by Acting Detective Smith and is now in jail on a charge of larceny of a watch.

JEALOUS LOVER IN JAIL.

Arrested for Assault on Man Who Won Sweetheart's Hand.

Gus Anderson, who is a building contractor in Seattle, came to this city yesterday afternoon and while the object of his visit was of a peaceable character, circumstances which followed his arrival resulted in a charge of assault. He was arrested by a police officer and taken to the police station. According to the story of all the witnesses to the affair and of Anderson himself, he had come over with the intention of offering his heart and hand to Miss Freda Lovgren, formerly of Seattle, but of late a resident of Portland and now the wife of Axel Johnson, who resides at 499 Columbia street. That he didn't get a chance to propose to the girl of his choice and as a consequence became angered beyond all control at the knowledge that she had married his rival, led to a disturbance on Columbia street which aroused the neighborhood to such alarm they sent word to the police that murder was being attempted in the Johnson household, was brought to light by Anderson. Stories told by all witnesses throw discredit on the story told by Anderson, who denies the charges and threatens to swear out a warrant for assault by Johnson in retaliation for his arrest last night. At any rate Johnson charges him with breaking into his house and threatening to kill him and indeed of actually making an attempt on his life with a club.

OREGON PIONEER OF 1843.

FLOAT BUILDER ARRIVES.

COMES TO BUILD ROSE SHOW STRUCTURES.

J. W. Harper Talks Interestingly of His Trade—Portland's Climate Surprises Missouri Man.

"Neither history, mythology nor tales of fiction convey to the human mind greater and more lasting lessons, whether they be in the form of books or pictures, sculpture or painting, than do average floats, properly designed and constructed, which appear in the epochal demonstrations, with their American centennials, anniversaries, and jubilees from time to time," last night said J. W. Harper, one of the most famous master float-builders in America, who has just arrived in Portland to design and build the floral, decorative, electrical and illuminative sets for the different pageants of the Rose Festival people to say "You may teach children all the folklore in the world," continued Mr. Harper. "You may drill them in all the textbooks of American history, and yet you will never emblazon on the tablets of their memory, any pictures half so real, half so living as those they will absorb from seeing just one pageant of the type which I understand the Festival Association of your city proposes to display this coming year.
