City Marshal With Dispossess Notices Is Signal for Attack by New York Tenement Dwellers Desired Result Brought About.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Forcible re-sistance by tenants whom an Upper East Side landlord was trying to evict resulted today in the gathering of a crowd of two thousand or more sym-pathizers in the neighborhood, who made so much trouble for the police that the precinct reserves were called ut. riotous demonstration began when a city marshal and about 25 as-sistants visited the block on the south side of East One Hundred and Fourth street, between First and Second ave-nues, with 80 dispossess warrants for families who had unitedly demanded reductions in routs of a dollar a month and had refused to pay the landlord's collector more than the new rate they had fixed. The taking out of the furniture from the rooms from the first family visited was the signal for an attack on the marshal and his men by scores of tenants.

Angry women surrounded a patrolman who had gone to the marshal's assistance and had half torn his coat from his back when assistance arrived. He arrested four women. Several demonstrative men were also sent to the station house. The police were by this time struggling with little success to disperse an increasing crowd of angry demonstrators, but other arrests by the officers finally had the effect of putting a stop to the trouble.

The immediate purpose of the demonstration was effected, the marshal deciding not to attempt the serving of more dispossess warrants at the

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 17 .- (Special.) -A garter with a pretty silk ribbon and a "frat" engraved buckle was at the bottom of the victous assault by Carl M. Clemens, of Snohomish, Washington, upon R. H. Dosh, a young Stuart lawyer, who lies in a dangerous condition at Methodist Hospital.

Fifteen years ago Dosh and Mrz. Clemens were classmates at Simpson College, Indianola, Ia, and one Christ-mas the boys decided to give their girl friends garters. Dosh gave one to Mrs. Clemens. This was years before Clemens met his present wife. Mrs. Clemens and Dosa have not met for years, neither have they corresponded, but Clemens has broaded over the gar-ter and its "frat" buckle. Clemens met Dosh at the Capital Wednesday and asked him:

"How about that garter?" Nothing that Dosh could say would lear up the matter, and so Clemens

Mr. Gardener said that representations Mr. Gardener said that representations are being made to his committee from all points of view, but that the most urgent demand seemed to be that some means be provided for the retention of the troops at Goldfield until all possibility of trouble between the miners and mine-operators should be obviated. Vote on Constabulary. CARSON CITY, Nev., Jan. 17 .- A short canson cirry, Nev., Jan. This matter cannot be taken up until Monday, as the special committee has granted the public until that time to file the petitions in regard to this matter.

There was a lively argument in the assembly over the constitutionality of that body. Mr. Folsom of Washoe offered a resolution, naming the officers of the body, with Mr. Skaggs as Speaker. Mr. Skaggs ruled the resolution of the reso skaggs ruled the resolution out of or-ier. Mr. Folsom appealed from the decision. Upon a vote the Speaker was sustained and the resolution was lost. Both houses adjourned until Monday. No action was taken on the Goldfield constabulary bill. It will be presented Monday. It was stated on the floor of the assembly before adjournment that a private message had been received from the President retaining troops in Gold-field and that Congress would make an investigation of the conditions. In answer to a query to Governor Sparks regard-ing the telegram, he stated that he had received no word from the President since sending the resolution to Washington yesterday. He further stated that all dispatches from the President had been delayed and that all legislative matters had come to him through the press shend of the Government.

The members of the Goldfield Miners' Union met with the special joint committee this afternoon to present their views on the policing question.

Rejoicing in Goldfield.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Jan. 17.—Following he announcement that President Rosse-relt will permit the troops to remain in Seldfield until the Legislature has proconstantial that the Legislature has provided for the organization of a state constabulary or other force for the maintenance of peace, there is general rejoicing among the conservative citizens. It is admitted that with the presence of the troops the possibility of serious trouble growing out of the labor situation is very remote.

BLUEJACKETS WILL NOT ALLOW PERSONAL INSPECTION.

Captain Tries to Enforce Army Regulation on Board Ship and Trouble Among the Men Follows.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17-The United States Army transport Buford arrived here today from the Philippines with a number of returning troops and other massengers. The Bulletin says that during the trip trouble was caused on the vessel by an order issued by Captain White, an Army officer in charge of the troops aboard the ship, that marines, bluejackets and sailors alike, comply with an Army regulation which requires inspection of the men for personal clean-liness every two weeks. No such regulation obtains in the Navy, and the men homeward bound for discharge from the ships of the Pacific fleet declined to com-poly with it.

Petty Officer Myers, Chief Gunners' Mate from the St. Helena, was thrown into the brig shortly after the Buford left Nagasaki on this account and thereupon 134 bluejackets and marines rose as a body and demanded that he be re-leased and that the order of Captain White be rescheded so far as it applied to them. After a demonstration on the to them. After a demonstration of the upper deck, an appeal to the marine naval officers abourd, the men carried their point and Captain Hell, in command, ordered the release of the imprisoned petty officer. The matter of inspection was then allowed to drop.

brought there, said that Thaw acted like an irrational man.

Barrett declared on cross-examination that Thaw when arraigned at the sergeant's desk at the pelice station appeared like a man who has been stabbed or shot himself.

"His eyes were something terrible," exclaimed the witness. "They stuck out like two hard-boiled eggs."

The officer and the District Attorney renewed the battle they had at the first trial, and the cross-questioning was continued at great length. Thaw, the doorman declared, complained during the night that some one was beating the night that some one was beating and abusing little girls in the station.

Mother's Story of Her Boy.

Mrs. William Thaw saw her son for the first time in months during the noon recess. The meeting was affectionate. Evelyn Thaw, the wife, came in during the interview and it is said she was cordially greeted by the elder woman. When the afternoon session began, Mrs. William Thaw was called and questioned by Mr. Littleton. Thaw looked intently and carnestly at his mother, who was very pale and weak in sharp contrast to the ruddy good health which marked her appearance a year ago.

Her testimony closely followed that of the last trial, beginning with the return of her son to his Pittsburg home in Noof her son to his Pittsburg home in No-vember, 1968, after Evelyn Nesbit had told him her story in Paris that Summer. "Usually Harry came home buoyant and joyous," she declared, "but this time there was not a smile." Mrs. Thaw said she asked her son what was the matter. "I can't tell you, mother," he replied." In never can tell you."

The mother then repeated what she had related on the stand last year as to her son's crying and moaning during the night, of his frequent playing at the plane, when the music would begin loud and then die away, until finally it would stop. Thaw sitting a long while at the instrument with head cast down at the instrument with head cast down. Mrs. Thaw said she frequently asked her son what was worrying him, and finally he declared that a beautiful young girl he was interested in had had a terrible experience in New York. The mother told him he should not worry much about such matters; that the girl had a mother who should care for her. Thaw replied that the girl's mother had not looked after her, and that was why it all had happened.

Tells Wrongs of Evelyn.

Harry Thaw eventually told his mother Harry Thaw eventually told his mother the young siri's name was Neshit.

"The name meant nothing to me," declared the witness, "for I had never heard of the young woman before, Harry said it had all occurred when Miss Neshit was a little girl. It was in New York, he said. I tried to impress upon him that he was not responsible for the sins of other men." of other men.

"Did you call in a physician?" asked Littleton.
I did not, but Harry called in our old family physician."

Mrs. Thaw next told of the day when she and her son went to Thanksgiving day services at the Presbyterian Church when Them broke down at Pittsburg, when Thaw broke down and cried while the choir was singing Kipling's "Recessional."
"Just to think!" Thaw sobbed, "if it had not happened she might have been here with us today."

Mrs. Thaw described Harry's crying as a perfect shower of tears. Thaw said to her that the Nesbit girl had been put on the stage by her mother,

"But she will never be able to make a living," he exclaimed. "She will never be a great actress, and poor actresses, mother, go under."
In 1904 the family went abroad and Harry was left at a watering place in France.

When did you next see him?" Her Consent to Marriage.

"Not until after the sensational return to New York of the two on the same steamer. Evelyn and Harry came on the same steamer."

Mrs. Thaw said she was not pleased with the notoriety and sent for her son. He declared there was nothing wrong in anything he had done and that the young woman had been very il. Mrs. Thaw next told of her consent early in 1905 to her son's marriage with Miss Nesblt with the provise that the girl's past history never was to be

The examination was temporarily suspended here. Mrs. Thaw had to be assisted from the witness chair. Evelyn Thaw Repeats Story.

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was next called to the stand. She said she was the wife of the defendant and was born Christmas day, 1884. Her father died when she was 10 years old.

Mr. Jerome objected to practically every question Mr. Littleton asked the witness as to her early history and was sustained in many of them. Young Mrs. Thaw finally was allowed to say that when living in Philadelphia before coming to New York she posed for various artists. At this time she was 14 years old. The witness was allowed to tell of coming to New York at the age of 15 and of posing for artists here. She was not allowed to tell ists here. She was not allowed to tell how much compensation she obtained or whether her mother was employed

Jerome Wants Public Shut Out.

Mr. Jerome then asked that the pub tic, including the nowspapermen, be ex-cluded from the courtroom during the recital of Mrs. Thaw's story, as related in Paris. He said it was shocking in every way and should be excluded. Justice Dowling said the suggestion would have come with greater force at the first trial. Excluding the newspaper men at this time would not prevent the publication of the testimony, as at first given. Justice Dowling asked the news-paper men, however, to suppress, for the public good, as many horrible details as possible.

Mr. Jerome said the papers would not publish anything like the same reports as last year, or they would lay themselves liable to prosecution.

"I have nothing whatever to do with the newspapers, or what they choose to do." drily said Justice Dowling. "but I'm ready to receive suggestions from counsel."

Mr. Littleton said that, while he had given no thought to the effect on the public, he asked for Mrs. Thaw's sake that the public and newspaper writers be excluded.
