a million dollars.

No one believes that an independent exposition bill is going to pass both houses of Congress. It may pass the Senate out of courtesy, but not the House. The probabilities are that the Senate bill will be attached to some general appropriation bill as a Senate amendment, and if the amount carried is not too great, the House, in the closing days of the session, may consent to accept the Senate amendment. This means that the appropriation, if made, will not be available much before June 1, 1008.

CHIEF CONSULTED FIRE

Allowed to Give His Views on Electric Alarm Franchise.

David Campbell, chief of the fire department, seriously objects to any but members of the department, or persons duly authorized by the city, having access to the fire alarm apparatus, and his recommendations on the subject in all probability are to be incorporated in the franchise asked of the Council by the National Automatic Fire Alarm Company. In the opinion of Chief Campbell and City Electrician Savarian, there are serious objections to granting certain privileges asked by the company, and these may defeat the passage of the ranchise ordinance. Chief Campbell would have the automatic boxes at least 300 feet distant from the regular fire alarm boxes, and he objects to any but city employees having permission to work on the wires. He also usists that the thermostat system, used by the automatic company, is very un-satisfactory, at present. Too many false alarms are sent in by it, he declares. The ordinance was referred back to the

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Ferrell have re-turned to their home, 761 East Yamhill street, after spending three months in North Carolina, Texas, New Mexico and other cities in the East. They first went to North Carolina, which is Mr. Ferrell's home state and from which he had been absent over 30 years. He found many of absent over 30 years. He found many of the landmarks still remaining, but the most remarkable relic of the past he hap-pened upon was a mule 40 years old which was once owned by his father. another 10 years. He still does light work in the cotton fields.

While the trip was full of interest Mr. Ferrell prefers Oregon. He says that the people of North Carolina are not progressive. They own farms averaging gressive. They own farms averaging 300 acres, yet do not make as much out of them as an Oregonian makes out of five or ten acres planted in fruit.

It is the opinion of Government men, as well as those in Congress who are ad-vised, that the Government exhibit at Portland was amply large, and that the buildings were ample. Inst exhibit com-prised the best features of the more elaborate exhibit at St. Louis, yet, by elaborate exhibit at St. Louis, yet, by reason of being more compact, was regarded as more attractive and instructive. There was a superfluity of Government display at St. Louis, a fact that is recognized in Congress, and it is improbable that any bill will again pass authorizing such an extended exhibition of the workings of the Government departments. Congressmen of influence, who are friendly to the Seattle Exposition, have advised the men from Washington to reduce the amounts called for in their bill, by eliminating those features which are unnecessary. tures which are unnecessary.

With the Bremerton Navy-Yard close at hand, and within easy reacn of all visitors to the Exposition, it will be unnecessary to make any extensive naval necessary to make any extensive naval exhibit, according to these authorities. The coast fortifications and lighthouse establishments near by make unnecessary any material expenditure for such displays. Then it is pointed out that Seattle could very well do without an exhibit by the Library of Congress, the Department of Justice. Department of State, and other bureaus or departments whose work is not of a character to permit either an attractive or instructive mit either an attractive or instructive exhibit. There have been such exhibits at other expositions, it is true, but they have added nothing to the interest, and have only tended to increase the cost.

Reduction Must Be Made.

If these suggestions are carried out and the bill is cut to $500,000 there may be a prospect of securing a favorable re-port from the House committee. But if the delegation stands out and demands the full $1,125,000, it will get no considera-tion from the expositions committee of the House. But it will require very effectual work to convince a majority of the House committee, even on a more economical basis, to favorably report the Seattle bill. The Jamestown failure cast a wet blanket over exposition legisla-tion in general, and Seattle is most unfortunate in following so close upon the heels of that financial disaster. The members from all Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain states are supporting the Washingtonians in their fight for an exposition appropriation, but even they represent a hopeless minority Congress.

The probabilities are that the Piles bill will be first acted upon. The Senate committee is not so rigid as the corresponding committee in the Heuse, and the Senate is more liberal in making appropriations which are sought by Senators for such objects as this.

The Senate committee is made up as arts and expositions. The chairman of the committee, Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, is opposed to the measure, and a preliminary poil of the committee shows that Mr. Gardner has the support of a majority of the members. Whether this majority can be overcome, so that a favorable report can be made to the House, depends upon the amount of influence the Washington delegation can bring to bear, and also depends upon the extent to which the delegation will consent to have the bill reduced.

As it now stands, the Piles-Humphrey bill appropriates a total of $1,125,000 for Government buildings and exhibits. This would provide for buildings twice as large or twice as elaborate as the Government buildings at the Portland Exposition, and would moreover enable the position, and would moreover enable the Government to make an exhibit of twice an increase in the cost of labor and materials since 1904, and this will require a larger outlay to obtain the same results. Points to Portland Exhibit.

Plane and organ seekers who have taken advantage of our great January clearance sale during the past four days have unanimously expressed the statement that the values offered now excel any that have been previously quoted in this city. Our warercoms are crowded, and also our wholesale warehouse, one delayed shipment of new planes alone, which should have been received before the holidays, not arriving until afterward, containing seven entire carloads, and these, together with the many instruments taken in trade during our big Christmas selling, have almost overwhelmed us. And with Spring stocks now on the road from our Eastern factories, there is no time to lose. We must clean up our floors quickly. So every used instrument is now offered at a price which means a tremendous inducement for prompt purchasing.

None Reserved.

All exchanged planes, taken in trade by us, in addition to those returned from rental use, and also a number which have become slightly marred by having been used for display purposes, and others a little shorworn, are included in this Special Clearance Sale. But to fully appreciate this extragingary event, one must see the planes themselves, and note their excellent condition and smallness of price.
