Paul Horst Believes Union Talk Hurts Hop Industry.

QUESTION OF PRODUCTION

Rise in Market Would Help Him Most, but Present Agitation Will Only Make Things Worse for the Grower.

Paul R. G. Horst, the New York hop dealer and speculator, who would probably profit more than anyone else in the United States by a rise in the hop market, as he is carrying 20,000 bales, believes that the market can only be adversely affected by the Hopgrowers' Union tall. He may that the progress of organization to date has shown the movement to be a fallure, and, therefore, the promoters should call it off

Mr. Horst says that as the depression in the hop market is due to overproduction, the encouragement that has lately been growers will cause them to increase their output further this Fall, and next season's market will be even worse

"With the stocks now carried by brewers will be enough for consumptive require-ments without a pound of hope being raised this year in addition to the blow the pro-hibition sentiment has given the hop industry, not only in this country but in England as well, the browers have found Bugiand as well, the browers have found a way, by means of improved machinery, to get along with less hops to the barrel, some of them using one-half pound to the barrel nurs. This economy is in line with the change taking place in the changet after the change taking place in the changet of the American beers, and, of course, it directly affects the position of the producer.

"It is the small grower, however, who is suffering most and he will find it necessary to turn his attention to other agricultural pursuits. The large growers, especially the grower dealers, will be able not only to keep grong but to increase their output as well. This is shown by the fact that Clemens Horst, who now raines 30,000 bales, is planting 800 acres more to hope in Cali-fornia, while Lilienthal is putting out 750 arres and Louis Horest is increasing his yards by 500 acres. Clemens Horst's new hop-picking machine, which was used suc-cessfully last season, is being perfected and it will enable him to put hope in the help of a local good of 3 or 4 cents a round. hale at a total cost of B or 4 cents a pound With all these things staring them in the face, the outlook is certainly gloomy for the small growers, and I don't think they. uld be deluded any longer with fake

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE TRADE SLOW Condition of the San Francisco Potato and

Onlon Markets. Indiness still prevails in the fresh produce line and a return to the usual Winter-scather will be necessary before the demand is stimulated. Receipts were light yesterday, consisting only of one car of oranges and a miscellaneous lot of vegeables received by steamer.

Shippers who have onions in transit South are uneasy over their condition, as the shippings were made in box cars, because of the lack of refrigerator cars. Some new business is reported on the basis of last week's prices. The potato market is show and unchanged. The latest mell advices from San Francisco say of the potato and
