

STEAMER BURNS; FIFTEEN ARE DEAD

St. Cuthbert Meets With Disaster Off the Nova Scotian Coast.

CYMRIC RESCUES CREW

Those Lost Meet Death by Small Boat Swamping—Remaining 27 Taken Off and Vessel Is Abandoned.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 3.—In the midst of a wild blizzard this afternoon the steamer St. Cuthbert was hurled to the water's edge off the Nova Scotian coast. Fifteen members of the crew were drowned by the swamping of a small boat in which they attempted to leave the vessel after the mainmast broke out yesterday. The other 27 members of the crew, including the captain, were rescued by the White Star liner Cymric. After taking off the survivors, the Cymric abandoned the burning steamer this afternoon and proceeded to Boston.

A wireless message from Captain Finch, of the Cymric, read: "The steamer St. Cuthbert was abandoned after Monday afternoon off the Nova Scotian coast. The Cymric stood by for nine hours during a strong gale, heavy seas and snow squalls. Lifeboats in charge of chief officer, making three perilous trips, rescued 27 members of the crew, including the captain. Several members of the crew severely burned and injured.

tion to prosecute malefactors for their crimes and a rigorous enforcement of the law should result in congesting the criminal courts, then the plundering of millions will be given precedence in the pathway to prison over the plunders of pennies.

Condemned Only by Malefactors.

Heburn, of Iowa, declared that the Democrats had shown great versatility in the debate of today. One, he said, spoke in unbecomingly terms of the President; another said he could not tell whether the message was by Mr. Roosevelt or by one of his own political ideas. "The message," said Heburn, "is received in some sections of the country with violent condemnation. This condemnation comes from the organs of the very men, and those only, whom the President of the United States has seen fit to denounce as the malefactors, the great malefactors of the age, and that is the only source from which it has come except from the gentlemen from Ohio," referring to Mr. Foraker.

People Behind President.

"In everything the President has done," continued Heburn, "the American people stand by him. In every recommendation of the message, the American people stand behind him.

Continued approval on the Republican side, quickly followed in all parts of the House, interrupted the speaker for some minutes. "And they demand," he went on, when quiet was restored, "that the legislation the President stands for shall be given in order that these recommendations may be made effective through the courts. Some may say there will be nothing done by this Congress. I do not believe it. I assert that the American people are earnest in upholding the hands of the executive power, that there must be no delay in accomplishing the reforms advocated in this message, and, if any man stands in the way, he will simply be run over."

He favored interpreting the criminal statutes liberally and in a way to avoid evasion and to secure justice. Then, he said, there would not be so many infractions of the law. He denounced stock gamblers for monopolizing the money of the country in their operations. He said that the Democrats know that the President's message meets the expectations of the people, and on that account they are trying to appropriate all of its provisions.
