PAYS FLYING VISIT

Sir Edgar Vincent Passes Through Portland.

NOTED AS A FINANCIER

Won Distinction by Work for Rehabilitation of Egypt's Finances—Investigating Industrial Conditions in America.

Sir Edgar Vincent, of London, England, one of the foremost financiers of Europe, ranking in British banking and industrial affairs as do the Morgans and Rockefellers in this country, paid Portland a brief visit yesterday. Sir Edgar is not only distinguished as a financier, but also in affairs of state in England. He also is a multi-millionaire and a shareholder in a number of transcontinental railroad properties in this country. One object of his visit to America is to inspect the properties in which he is interested, and to study conditions, with a view to recommending the investment of additional British capital in this country, particularly in the West. While in California he was in consultation with capitalists and industrial leaders, and is said to have interested himself particularly in the Union Pacific and Santa Fe systems, though he declined to affirm this in an interview at the Portland, yesterday. He was accompanied from San Francisco to Portland by Paul F. Mohr, one of the leading railroad builders of the Northwest, a former Portlander, but now of San Francisco. It is understood that Sir Edgar inquired into industrial conditions and properties while here and spent most of the day touring the city. Further than to say he was interested in all such matters in a general way, he would not discuss his trip. He was greatly interested when informed of the presence here of President Elliott, of the Northern Pacific, and his wife, as well as of Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Co.

Sir Edgar Vincent is the man whom the British Government sent to Egypt in 1883, to become financial adviser of the new Khedive, to whom the British Government had just restored authority, following the defeat of Arabi Pasha, the state then being in an exhausted financial condition, but he wrought such changes, that within a short time impoverished Egypt was on the high road to financial recovery, and at the end of seven years, when he retired, was fully on her feet.

Knighthood by Queen. For his splendid achievements in this work of rehabilitation, he was knighted in 1887, being gazetted to that conspicuous honor and title by Her Majesty Queen Victoria. This title, it should be understood, is conferred solely as a reward for extraordinary services to the crown. In retiring from the post of financial adviser to the Viceroy of Egypt, in 1890, he was immediately appointed to the governorship of the Ottoman Bank at Constantinople, and was the leading figure in all debates on finance and political economy. Then, after 22 years of continuous service for his government, he retired from public life to take charge of his own vast interests, and his present tour is one of recreation, the first he has had in nearly a quarter of a century.

Sir Edgar is a man of imposing presence. He stands 6 feet 2 inches in height and is of stalwart build. To his commanding appearance is added an "exquisite personal charm, and his forceful character and indomitable will is manifested in every word. "So much like London," was his first comment on Portland weather, "and I don't mind it a bit. In fact, it seems altogether homelike. I am on a tour of pleasure and rest, observing those things in which I think all men are interested, and I don't mind saying that I find American institutions and American people an intensely fascinating study. I left London last December, and have traveled leisurely across the continent by the Southern route, and spending about six days in San Francisco and California.

Returns by Canadian. "I am sorry I shan't have more time here, but I must be on my way. I will stop in Seattle for a day or so, and will then return to Montreal and the East by way of the Canadian-Pacific, reaching home about March 18

"Something was said in the dispatches a week or so ago that I was on the Coast looking up opportunities for investment of English money in railway properties, but it really isn't so. I'm just looking about a bit as I go along and really represent nobody but myself. Sir Edgar declined to discuss the industrial situation in this country, or in his own, and said he did not think it proper for him to make any observations on the financial conditions here or abroad. The distinguished visitor left for Seattle late last night, accompanied by Mr. Mohr. The latter, who lived here for many years, built the old portage road from The Dalles to Columbus, the strategic link in what is now the North Bank road. It was the purchase of this line by the Northern Pacific that enabled that system to construct the North Bank road. Mr. Mohr also built the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern, which was also acquired by the Northern Pacific, and is now known as the Seattle & International. Another line constructed by him is the Pacific Northwest and the Spokane & Palouse, and his latest work has been the building of the Forestburg Valley road, which taps the Yosemite National Park. This line he completed about two years ago.

WILL TALK WITH CLELAND

Committee to Interest Northern Pacific in Rose Festival.

A committee representing the Rose Festival has been selected by President Whitmore, to have a conference with General Passenger Agent Cleland, of the Northern Pacific, today with a view of enlisting the support of that system in the matter of securing low tourist and excursion rates to the June celebration, and also to ask Mr. Cleland to use his influence in assisting in the campaign of exploitation and publicity in the advertising matter which his system will distribute during the next few months. The following prominent citizens are on the committee: E. W. Rowe, L. G. Clarke, C. S. Jackson, J. F. Carroll, E. B. Piper, Frank Spencer, Julius Meier, W. F. Lipman, Guy Lombard, M. F. Dickinson, Phil Metcahan, H. C. Bowers, Theo. Kruse, Paul Wisniger, I. N. Fleischer, Mayor Lane, C. W. Hodson, C. F. Swigart, C. W. Townsend, F. Dresner, E. S. Jewell, R. I. Dunsen, H. M. Calk, R. S. Howard, John Anderson, G. L. Baker and G. B. Cellars. The committee will ask for a conference, to be held some time today.

SWAP YARNS AT MEDFORD

INLAND EMPIRE GUESTS TELL OF THEIR CLIMATE.

Hosts Boast of Theirs in Return. Auto Ride Given Up Because of Snow.

MEDFORD, Or., Feb. 9.—(Special).—The Inland Empire excursion arrived on schedule time this afternoon. Medford's population, headed by the cornet band, turned out en masse to welcome the excursionists. Mr. Colvig, president of the Commercial Club, welcomed the visitors and responded on behalf of the travelers in a well-chosen and humorous address. Mr. Justin, of Dayton, was called upon and told of the glories of the section whence he had come to view the offerings of other climes. Members of the party themselves, wearing the badge with its red apple, were each presented with the real thing in shape of Rogue River's famous yellow Newtowns. Medford had arranged to meet the excursionists with 60 automobiles and take the visitors for a spin about the city, but, owing to the condition of the roads, the arrangement was foregone and Mr. Colvig was forced to explain to the visitors that the condition of Medford's main street was due to the heavy freighting now being carried on between the Blue Lodge mine, on the west, and the famous timber belt on the east of Medford. The speakers responded, "Yes, this is Smith's." The beef trust was never known to tell the truth.

ASHLAND GREETES VISITORS

Speeches Exchanged and Apples and Cider Provided.

ASHLAND, Or., Feb. 9.—(Special).—The Ashland Commercial Club greeted the Inland Empire excursion, which tarried here half an hour this afternoon enroute southward. Felicitations were extended by President Eggleston, of the club, in a short address and neat responses were made on behalf of the excursionists by E. D. Sanders, of Spokane, and John Briting, of Dayton. Big, red apples and cider were provided for the visitors and souvenir folders, especially arranged for the occasion, were freely distributed.
