

SENATORS PLING TO LEGAL FEES

Borah's Amendment to Bar Them From Courts Gets Cold Reception.

OBJECT ON MANY POINTS

Opposition, However, Does Not Mention the Fee Corporation Retainers, Which Are the Real Reason for Fighting Clause.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Feb. 19.—Senator Borah of Idaho, when he proposed to amend the existing law by providing that United States Senators and Representatives in Congress should not be permitted to act as paid attorneys in any Federal court in cases in which the United States Government is interested directly or indirectly.

Conceal Real Objection.

Senator Heyburn, in charge of the bill; Senator Sutherland of Utah, who is assisting, as well as Senators Teller of Colorado, McLaurin of Mississippi and Clay of Georgia, were quick to interpose objection to the Borah amendment, but it was noted that not a single Senator in opposition expressed what is generally known to be the real reason for opposing such a change as Senator Borah suggested.

Broaders Present Law.

Senator Borah merely suggested that this provision be broadened by including cases before the courts, so that not only a paid attorney, either for or against the government, the opposition contended that the law should be broadened to cover the Borah amendment, and contended that no harm could be done by permitting members of the National Congress to earn attorney's fees.

No Reason for Exception.

Senator Borah, in offering his amendment, stated that the same reason applies to practice in the departments. If it is wrong for Senators to sell their services in the departments, or before courts-martial, it must be just as wrong to sell their services in courts in cases in which the Government has any interest whatsoever.

Have Influence as Senators.

"It is a well-known fact, and a most important one," he continued, "that those things in which the Government is most concerned, very often pass through the halls of legislation directly to the courts, and in that form are settled. The fact suggested by the Senator from Utah that he would not accept a fee nor appear under such conditions is a primary reason why it should be inhibited as an entirety, because the practice is wrong, I submit that those who are here for the purpose of legislating must stand in such a position that they are not disqualified in any respect, whether either by previous employment or by anticipated employment, with reference to those matters in which the United States Government is concerned."
