Republic Prepares Great Festivities in Which He Cannot Join—Successful Trip Through Straits, Amid Magnificent Scenery.

CALLAO, Feb. 20.—The American battleships under Rear-Admiral Evans, looking clean, trim and powerful in the sun, came to anchor in this port soon after 8 o'clock this morning. The booming of salutes announced the arrival of the fleet, but there was no need to send out signals, for every resident of Callao and great crowds from Lima, which stands back on the hills, had awaited with expectancy the first glimpse of the advancing column.

Show Welcome From Hills.

Callao, was in holiday array, wishing to show the most Peruvian hospitality was seen to come in South America, and many thousands viewed from the wharves, the headlands and the ships in the harbor, the imposing scene, and enthusiastic crowds went down the bay on excursion steamers and cheered the American men-of-war.

The Peruvian cruiser Coronel Dognel, bearing the first official welcome to the fleet, joined the American vessels yesterday morning, 250 miles to the southward, having the day before exchanged greetings by wireless with the Connecticut and acted as escort up the coast. She led the way into the harbor this morning, with the flagships of the fleet close behind, and soon the sound of guns gave notice that the American sailors were the joyful guests.

Evans Can't Join in Celebration.

The only regrettable feature of the entertainments arranged in honor of the visitors is the fact that the Commander himself, Rear-Admiral Evans, will not be able to attend. It was said today that Admiral Evans, who has been suffering almost from the beginning of the voyage from rheumatism, was slightly better, but he does not feel that he should risk the danger of coming ashore. Rear-Admiral Charles M. Thomas, commander of the second squadron, will represent him at the official ceremonies.

Festivities of All Kinds.

The battleships will remain here possible for 30 days, and will be joined by the torpedo-boat flotilla near the close of their stay at Callao. Arrangements have been made for festivities of all kinds, including a bullfight, which not less than 5000 of the bluejackets will see, and a regatta, for which preparations have been going on for several weeks. President Pardo will give a public reception to the officers tomorrow afternoon and Washington's birthday will be made a gala occasion.

Successful Trip Up Coast.

The American warships had a successful and uneventful passage up from Punta Arenas. They left Punta Arenas at 11 o'clock at night, February 7, and in column formation made their way through the western half of the Strait of Magellan. The torpedo-boat flotilla accompanied the warships. For the first part of the passage through the strait they kept close to the larger vessels, but then dropped behind and turned north to the Smyth Channel. A minor accident to the engines of the destroyer Lathrop, made it necessary for her to fall back, but she picked up the flotilla later in the afternoon of February 8. The destroyers entered Smyth Channel at about the same time that the battleships got clear of the strait and steamed out into the Pacific.

Grand Scenery in Straits.

Saturday, February 8, the sky was overcast. The weather was cold and the wind blew hard, forcing the low lying clouds aside for occasional flashes of brilliant sunshine. The snowcapped peaks on either side of the strait made a fitting setting to the gray weather. As the vessels steamed steadily through the narrow confines of the English Reach, Cronck Reach and Long Reach, and finally past the Evangelist Islands out to the open sea, the scene was one of wild, rugged and picturesque beauty.

Proud of Great Achievement.

As the vessels cleared in safety the last headlands and islands that bar the entrance to the open ocean, every man was filled with a sense of pride in the successful accomplishment of a difficult and dangerous piece of navigation. Once in the Pacific, the fleet ran into drizzling

STANFORD STUDENTS

FIRST VICTIMS OF CRUSADE
AGAINST DRINKING.

CONVINCES UNDERGRADUATES THAT COMMITTEE MEANS BUSINESS.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, FEB. 20.—

The crusade against drinking claimed its first victims today when the new committee on student affairs announced that two students had been indefinitely suspended for appearing on the quadrangle in an intoxicated condition. The matter was brought to the attention of the former committee on February 5, before any resolutions against drinking had been passed, and was referred by them to Professor Clark's committee upon their resignation. Chairman Clark, of the present committee, denies this is "a post facto" action, and in a lengthy statement to the Daily Palo Alto, says that the matter came to them as "unfinished business" and that there are several other matters not settled by the old committee.

It is generally understood that the suspended students are frat men and prominent in college affairs. The case is characterized by Clark as one of "noticeable drunkenness" rather than "unintentional intoxication." The student body is in a state of great excitement on account of the committee's action and it is now sure that the new committee means business.
