BY ARTHUR A. GREENE

SINCE the lamented Manfield died at the very apex of his career, those of us who take the stage seriously and believe it has a mission larger and more significant than the mere amusement of the unthinking mob, have been groping about in search of a successor to him. Some man among the many exponents of the art of Theopompus must perforce rise above the commonality and be a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night.

Violin-Piano Recital at the Heilig

Frank G. Eichenlaub, Violinist, of Vancouver, Wash., Assisted by Miss Beatrice C. M. Hadden, Pianist, of Portland.

BY J. M. QUENTIN.

It is always a rare pleasure to welcome home our talented students who have earned laurels in the larger world of musical instruction, and to watch the growth of their dawning art. Frank G. Eichenlaub, whose home is in Vancouver, Wash., and who is well known in this city as a talented violinist, made his debut last night at the Heilig Theater, assisted by Miss Beatrice C. M. Hadden, pianist, of this city, and the theater was crowded by an appreciative audience, who warmly applauded the fine work of the young artists.
