

IN TRAINING FOR COLUMBIA MEET

Big Track Event Attracts Nearly All Oregon Colleges.

WILL BE HELD APRIL 11

Indications Are There Will Be Close Rivalry Between U. of O. and O. A. C. for First Honors.

The association will, in all probability, discuss whether to allow amateur players to participate in games with professional talent or with amateur teams playing against professional aggregations. The association is also likely to be prevailed upon to pass stringent resolutions against permitting professional athletes to hold offices in the various clubs affiliated with the organization.

The principal object of the meeting, however, is to decide whether or not William Ingalls is eligible for the position of secretary, to which position he was elected last September. Some maintain that Ingalls is ineligible for the reason that he formerly occupied the position of paid employe of the Beaslee Athletic Club, and as such, according to the rules of the A. A. U., is not a bona fide amateur.

The directors of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club will meet Tuesday night for the purpose of selecting three delegates to represent the local club at the Seattle meeting. Only one of these delegates is permitted to vote, but each organization in the association is entitled to three delegates; the one man casting the club vote.

It is also quite probable that the amateur standing of the various clubs and athletes of the Northwest will be inquired into, and it is rumored that some of them are likely to be ruled professionals. The matter of the meeting will be withheld until after the meeting.

WHITE SOX DEFEAT ANGELS

Second Team Runs Up Score of 12 to 5 in Hard-Hitting Game.

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—The White Sox No. 2 today defeated Los Angeles by a score of 12 to 5, in a game full of hard hitting. Los Angeles scored five runs in the seventh inning, but outside of that, they were unable to hit Feine and Freeman. Chicago made five runs in the eighth and three in the ninth. Lejeune knocked the ball over the fence in the ninth. The score: R. H. E. Chicago.....12 17 1 Los Angeles 5 8 7 Batteries—Hosp, Gray, Hogan and Eastery; Feine, Freeman and Armbrister.—O'Day.

M. A. A. C. Plays Dallas.

The Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club's basketball team will play its last game of the season Tuesday night, and the contesting team will be the crack Dallas College team. The result of this game will determine the championship of the state, and the wearers of the winged "M" are practicing hard to be in the best of shape for a hard contest.

Cromwell to Coach Willamette.

SALEM, Or., March 15.—(Special.)—D. B. Cromwell, of Los Angeles, has been engaged as track and baseball coach at Willamette University for the present season. His athletic experience has been a member of the Los Angeles Y. M. C. A. athletic team.

Oakland Takes Another Game.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 15.—Oakland took another game from San Diego today. The score was 6 to 3 in favor of the visitors.

Mac Rae Among the Players

What the Portland Pennant Chasers Are Doing in Their Efforts to Get Together a Winning Aggregation—How the New Players Look.

BY WILL G. MACRAE.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 15.—(Special.)—Here is a little dope about Manager McCredie's new band of cobs he is trying out. Of course, not all of them will make the team, but they are all anxious and are trying hard, in surrounding himself with a big crew of baseballists, Manager McCredie has done the wise thing and the more I see of the squad, the more I am inclined to believe that out of the 23 men who will be in training, he will be able to grab a pennant-winning team.

Having two or three players contending for the same position puts every man on his mettle. He cuts out his ragtime foolishness and in every practice game he is out showing the best that is in him. The McCredie method of selecting a team is an expensive one, but it shows that an attempt will be made to keep the promise of giving Portland a winner if money can turn the trick.

One thing that makes me hopeful is the fact that we are having real training weather here. Manager McCredie has been here a week and over and he hasn't lost a day. In spite of the fact that the team has played some hard games, there is no hospital corps.

Captain Casey and McCredie are watching the players closely and are not allowing them to do their training in a haphazard way. Foolish stunts and heavy eating at the noon hour have been cut out. On the ball ground the slogan is, "take it slow. Don't slide to bases and don't try to throw the ball into the next county."

Danzig has put in his appearance, but the present winning lineup is Madden, Pincane, Ryan, Rafferty and Olson haven't shown up. Ryan is said to be talking and may not come at all.

Phil Cooney, 24 years old, dark and handsome, began stopping 'em around short four years ago. Cooney looks like Abe Attell, but has no marks of a fighter. He is quiet off the ball ground, but full of ginger and speed when in action. He was born in Little, New York, but the team has played only 5 feet 7 1/2 inches and weighing 145 pounds. Cooney learned how to trap them, the Catalina mountains and earned his salary for playing ball for a millionaire. Last year he batted .278 on the Johnston team in the Tri-State League. He knows how to wear good clothes and the white way of New York hasn't hurt him any. He broke his right leg last year, and is trying to forget it. He is house-broke and would make a nice girl happy.

C. T. Marshall, 29 years old, pitcher, calls from Saginaw, Mich. He is six feet two and still growing—that's why Kennedy calls him "Big Boy." Marshall's baseball desires developed not so long ago. He dropped into Los Angeles three years ago and found curves sinking in his right arm. He is dark and handsome and a thoroughly city broke. What he has stowed away in his right arm, McCredie is going to develop. He will make the heart of more than one fair Portland fan flutter before the season is over. Marshall, when he gets tired playing ball, makes his living as a civil engineer.

W. H. Bloomfield, 22 years old, pitcher, began playing ball on the sand lots of Antloch, Cal., when he was 12 years old and he hasn't stopped since. He played his first professional season in 1897 in the State League and finished with the Oakland team in the State League. He slides them down the alley via the right wing. Bloomfield has a nice arm of speed and an assortment of curves that will do. He is red as to complexion and has nice curly locks. He is said to be in love.

J. M. Malloy, 23 years old, outfielder, bats left-handed. Malloy began playing baseball amid the odors of the Chicago stockyards. He is a curly-blond and is happily married. Malloy

SWAT HOME TALENT PRIDE

Farias, Crack Pitcher for Winter Leaguers, Despite Money Back of Him, Fails to Show Form—Offer Made by Omaha for Ryan.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 15.—(Special.)—McCredie's crew of ambitious baseballists waded through the home talent this afternoon at Athletic park and won under double wraps all the way, to the tune of 6 to 3. Last night Santa Barbara fans were betting that the pennant chasers from Oregon would not get more than five hits off Sam Farias. He is the pride of this neck of the woods and the star bender of the Winter League, but he was a matinee riddle that was quickly solved, and before the game was three innings old McCredie's crew had annexed five bingles. Then, just to give the gamblers who had backed the visitors a small amount, they made three more.

Ole Johnson, fresh from helping Santa Barbara defeat Los Angeles by pitching four innings, started the fireworks in the second inning by knocking a boat off the left field fence. The wallop was good for three pillows. Bassey scored him with a safe poke through the middle, and then Bassey came marching home when Ed Kennedy ripped off a three-cushion swat to center. This was enough to convince Manager Mac that his talent had the Winter Leaguers in his lap, so he tried to make the rest of the matinee a ball game and not a boat race.

In the third spasm Casey was presented with a free duckett that he soon presented for collection. Cooney died sending him to second and Malloy beat out a punt. Johnson lined out a single, scoring Casey. Malloy scored on an infield boot. A single by Cooney and a sudden attack of brainstern by two of Santa Barbara's outfielders gave us two more in the fourth.

This is where we ended.

Lakoff replaced Pernoll in the sixth and he lived up to the game by allowing three hits in a row. One lone ace in the ninth charmed the crowd, but the home folks made it two more, and they were happy, even if Farias failed to deceive.

Manager McCredie this afternoon received a telegram from Manager O'Rourke of the Omaha baseball team, offering to trade Eddie Householder for Outfielder Ryan. Ryan has been acting somewhat mullish and the O'Rourke telegram explains why he hasn't reported. McCredie wired the Omaha manager that he could have Ryan for $3000 and that he would not have Householder as a gift. Ryan has a great reputation as a fielder and McCredie is anxious to see him in action before letting him get away. Rafferty and Madden are expected in the morning and Kinella will be along in a day or two now. The score by innings:

Portland	0	2	2	0	0	0	6
Santa Bar.	0	0	0	0	1	0	3

Batteries—Portland, Pernoll, Lakoff and Walsh; Farias and Montgretta. Umpire—Dalrymple.

SAN FRANCISCO 3-3, Chicago 10-0.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—Ten thousand people saw the local baseball team administer a coat of whitewash to the Chicago American Legion this afternoon. The local team outplayed the champions in every department of the game. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning to enable the Chicago Club to catch the New Orleans train. Score: R. H. E. Chicago.....0 3 3 San Francisco 3 9 1 Batteries—Altrock, Smith and Sullivan; O. Jones, Sutor, Henly and Berry. The morning game was a featureless one and Chicago won as they pleased. Score: R. H. E. Chicago.....10 8 1 San Francisco 3 8 3 Batteries—Skaggs, White and Weaver; Whiteledge, Hoag, Eilman and La Lange.

RELIGION OF HINDU

Bishop Scadding Preaches Sermon on Brahmanism.

FINDS MUCH TO ADMIRE

Faith Has Much in Common With Christianity but Is Marred by Weak Points—Discourse Second in Series.

The Right Rev. Charles Scadding, Bishop of the Episcopal Church in Oregon, delivered the second sermon in a course on "Seeking God," in St. Stephen's Church last night. These sermons are studies in comparative religion. His text was, "I am God and There is None Else." The religion under discussion was "Brahmanism; or Seeking God Through Philosophy." Bishop Scadding said:

"The Hindu is our brother, not merely in a metaphorical or spiritual sense, but actually and anthropologically. He is an Aryan, like ourselves, and comparative philology, as well as comparative religion, indicate that his ancestors and ours worshipped at the same altars on the high table lands of Bactria in Central Asia at least 3000 years before Christ.

"The Hindu is briefly and plainly discussed, the Vedas, and the laws of Manu, showing the good there is in the Hindu religion, Brahmanism. He dwelt at length on its spirituality, and the points in common with Christianity. Then he showed its weak side, the blight of idolatry, the curse of caste, and the intolerable condition and treatment of women. The Brahman, said he, leads a lofty life. He recognizes the value and immortality of the soul, and a state of future rewards and punishments, and his pantheism is better than the godless materialism of America today. Explaining the Brahman's Car of Juggernaut the bishop said:

"July is set apart for the famous ceremony of the Car of Juggernaut. The strange word means 'Lord of the Universe.' These cars are in the form of a pyramid, several stories high. They are found in every part of India, and are made from the offerings of the people, containing costly statues. They are drawn by hundreds of men, it being their faith that each one who pulls the rope will certainly go to Heaven when he dies. Multitudes therefore crowd around the rope in order to pull, and in the excitement they sometimes fall under the wheels and are crushed, but this is accidental.

Lesson of Practical Value.

"This ceremony of the Hindu has a lesson of practical value to us as Christians. It is in a parable. We have no car to the glory of Juggernaut. We have, however, our churches, raised to the honor and glory of God; the true Lord of the Universe. We have no literal rope by which all men may pull this car. Our rope is made up of three moral strands—prayer, giving and doing. Alas! We do not find any general enthusiasm and eagerness among Christians to take hold of that rope and pull.

"In all my reading on this subject I have not found a Brahman to argue with himself, as some Christians are wont to argue. This is the day that our car of worship—Juggernaut is to be pulled. I suppose I ought to take hold of the rope and pull, but there is another man pulling on that rope whom I don't like, or there is still a debt on the car, or the people who are doing the pulling are not very social, or I don't approve of the ornaments in the car, so I think I will not take hold of the rope.

"Such reasoning would be impossible to a Hindu. Bravery, loyalty, he rushes forth to strap the rope and pull the car, even at the great risk of being trampled and crushed. It is a parable. He that hath ears to hear let him hear.

"The thing the Hindu cannot easily understand is the little apparent religion there is in Christianity. He sees thousands of Christians in Bombay and other places in India, who are not leading consistent Christian lives, who seldom if ever worship, who will take advantage of him in a bargain, and who are far from being spiritual-minded.

Cause for Bewilderment.

"Do you wonder the Brahman is bewildered? Suppose he came here to Christian Portland and spent a week in some of our homes, and observed that there is no family worship, no time for meditation; suppose he heard the head of the home say, when he heard the bell ring for divine worship, 'I do not think that I will go to worship today; I've worked hard all week and I think I'll read the paper.'

"Would this visiting Brahman likely be converted from his religion by such a religion as he would find that backboneless Christianity to be? Better let him remain a Brahman and seek God through his philosophy, than to put on the religion of Christianity with Christ left out.

"It would be presumption to attempt any kind of prediction as to the religious future of our country, but opportunities await the Christian missionary there, especially the medical missionary, and the trained Christian nurse and women missionaries to work among the women.

"The Rev. Mr. Scadding's discourse next night will be on the religion of Eastern Asia, 'Buddhism; or Seeking Salvation Through Works.'

Jack Palmer, both of whom Burns defeated, so it is difficult from his record to form any idea of how he compares with Burns.

He admits he does not know as much about the science of boxing as does Burns, and the critics point out that he has this additional disadvantage of being slight.

There has been little betting on the fight, the odds quoted making Burns a strong favorite. A ring has been erected on the stage of the Theater Royal, all the seats of which have been sold. One fortunate ticket speculator who secured a row in the dress circle, has sold the best of the seats for $125 each.

Richard Croker, who is one of the syndicate which put up the money for the fight and who traveled to Dublin on the same boat as Burns to witness the contest, believes that victory will not be so easy as Burns expects. Burns turns the scales at 168 pounds, while Roche's weight is 158. The latter is in excellent condition with the exception of a slight cold.

READY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP MATCH TOMORROW.

DUBLIN, March 15.—Tommy Burns, the American pugilist, arrived here today for his fight on March 17, when he will defend the title of heavyweight champion of the world against Jim Roche, the Irish champion. Burns is still suffering with an inflamed eye, the result of an accident received years ago, which at one time threatened to be serious, but he has definitely decided to go on with the contest, as otherwise he is in better condition than he has ever been, according to his own statement and that of his trainer.

Some of the friends of Roche believe he has a splendid chance to defeat Burns, but careful observers of the game regard the American a sure winner, and he himself has the utmost confidence in his ability to turn the trick. The Irish champion has never met Gunner Moir or

Will Hold Mass Meeting.

An open meeting of the citizens of University Park and Portsmouth will be held tonight in Artisan's Hall to consider the electric light question. Electric lights are wanted on the Peninsula, but service has been delayed on the grounds that the lighting company has no wires in places where lights are wanted. City Attorney Kavanaugh has sent to the University Board of Trade a communication discussing the subject. This opinion of the City Attorney will be read and will be the basis of whatever action is taken at this meeting.
