

SWIFTS REGRUDGE OUTSIDE PACKERS Hope to Interest Armour's and Have No Fight With the Independents.

C. C. COLL OUTLINES PLANS Company Desires to Make Portland Great Center of Industry and Advices Against Allowing Abattoir in the City.

C. C. Coll, president of the Union Meat Company and local representative at Portland of L. F. Swift & Co., said last night that he feared the public would gain a wrong impression of the attitude of his people from the published statements in the newspapers. He said that it is not true that either the Swifts or the Armour are waging an active campaign against the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Company.

From our point of view, the more packing-houses established at Portland the better it will be for the industry. The main question with us is whether the farmers and stockgrowers will wake up to the necessity of providing a sufficient number of hogs, sheep and cattle for our needs. Every establishment that makes an investment in Portland with a view to putting up meat products will help to stimulate the production of the animals necessary, and will hasten the time when Oregon and adjoining states will produce a sufficient number of these animals to enable plants such as we propose to build to operate with success.

Plans on Extensive Scale. "So far as Swift & Company is concerned, it has not yet established an abattoir in the city and has not attempted to advertise what it proposes to do. The company came in here quietly and selected a location on the Columbia river, so far away from any residence district that it would be impossible to interfere with the rights of any of the people of Portland. It has put many thousands of dollars into its operations already and has its plans drawn for packing-houses and other incidental establishments on a very extensive scale. We have not yet received from the Portland people nor have we asked any special favors. All we want is fair treatment.

Consider South Portland Plant. The trustees of the Chamber of Commerce will hold a special meeting this morning at 11:30 o'clock for the purpose of considering the report of the committee recently appointed by President Swigert to investigate the matter of the building of a packing plant in South Portland. The Municipal Affairs Committee of the Chamber will also meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

BEFORE CITY BOARD Chauffeurs Will Appear for Examinations Today. Don't Cut Down Our Venerable Friend, Says Sympathizer.

UNDER NEW ORDINANCE Nearly All Professional Drivers Have Registered, but Owners Are Slow to Comply With Provisions of the Law.

Examinations for chauffeurs, the first under the new ordinance, will be held next Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock and Saturday morning from 10 to 12. The automobile commission, of which R. D. Inman is president, will be in charge. The examinations will be held at the City Hall.

Practically all the chauffeurs in the city have complied with the new ordinance and have registered, but there has been very slow compliance by owners of machines. Only 30 have registered thus far, although by this time every one should have done so, according to Deputy City Auditor Hitehinson, who is in charge of the matter.

SAYS PERJURY IS COMMON Federal Attorney Declares He Has Seen 582 Instances.

While discussing "Compensation," United States Attorney Bristol, in an address before the Ohio State Society last night in the Alamy building, made the startling assertion that there had been 582 instances of perjury during his incumbency of the office of government prosecutor, covering less than three years. The sanctity of the oath, asserted the prosecutor, has ceased to exist. The trouble of the present age, he was declared, is the nonobservance of laws and the failure to embrace conditions that look to the actual up-building of the race.

CHARGES AGAINST WYATT Disbarment Proceedings Are Filed by R. B. Fisher.

Charges of conduct unbecoming a member of the bar, which were made in disbarment, have been lodged against J. R. Wyatt, an Albany attorney, by R. B. Fisher, prosecutor for the grievance committee of the Oregon Bar Association. Action was taken at the instance of L. C. Hartman, the proprietor of a private detective agency. The charges will be investigated by the grievance committee. The charges against Wyatt are that while the case of the State against Fred Dawson and others was on trial at Albany, in which the latter was charged with violating the local option law, Wyatt endeavored to get W. L. Pason out of the state in order to keep his testimony from the court. To induce Pason to leave Wyatt is alleged to have offered him a sum of money.

POSTER COMMEMORATING THE ARRIVAL OF THE FLEET IN SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16.—(Special.)—San Francisco's official committee for the reception of the fleet has accepted a design for a poster to announce and commemorate the arrival of Uncle Sam's warships, which President Roosevelt, in a letter to Mayor Taylor of San Francisco, declares to be an epoch-making event in the history of the country. The drawing in the poster shows a man-of-warman receding along the water's edge, with the masts and rigging of the fleet visible in the distance.

been very slow compliance by owners of machines. Only 30 have registered thus far, although by this time every one should have done so, according to Deputy City Auditor Hitehinson, who is in charge of the matter. The latter says that not more than one-sixth of the owners have thus far obeyed the law. Unless owners of automobiles register, as required by the new ordinance, they will be arrested, and in such case will be subject to a fine of not more than $50 or to imprisonment not to exceed 30 days. Ample notification has been given each one, it is said, and the police will soon be notified to make arrests. After driving an automobile without the proper license tag in place will be subject to arrest and prosecution.

Under the new ordinance, which is now in effect, every owner of an automobile must appear at the City Hall and register. A fee of $1 is collected to defray expenses connected with the examinations. Badges are provided for all chauffeurs, and a fee of $1 is required of them for the first tag, and thereafter $1 a year will be collected from them.

ORCHARD SILENT IN CELL Exhibits No Feeling Over Ordinal He Must Go Through Today.

BOISE, Idaho, March 17.—Harry Orchard spent a quiet time today at the State Penitentiary here, taking his usual daily exercise and spending the usual amount of time in reading. Tonight he appeared perfectly calm and in his usual condition. He is naturally quiet and of a retiring disposition. There was absolutely no outward indication of the dread that must be in his mind of the ordeal which he must go through in the District Court for Canyon County tomorrow morning, the morning of his 42d birthday.

PAY LAST TRIBUTE Many Friends Attend Funeral of E. L. Coldwell.

REPRESENT ALL CLASSES Dr. Thomas L. Elliot and H. W. Scott Pay Heartfelt Tributes to Memory of Veteran Newspaper Man.

There are few higher services that one can render the world. Such a temper of mind reaches out in ever-widening circles.

Adverting to the many leading citizens present as Mr. Coldwell's friends, Dr. Elliot said he wished it possible that he might be able to attend another meeting, in which one after another might bear testimony as to the deep impression made upon them by his life. "That life was a genuine ministry, better than written sermons, and full of the potencies of many characters. It is always morning and always Springtime in the spiritual world of which we are all inhabitants," said Dr. Elliot, the world of faith and hope and love; these are the essentials, the realities of being, making men of one family on earth and making earth a part of heaven."

Tribute From Mr. Scott. "It is fit, at such a time and on such an occasion as this, to ask the question what human life is, whether it is worth living, and to try to find some answer to the question. The answer is that the life of a good man or of a good woman is all there is in this world that is really worth attention or consideration. Everything pertains to the absolute part of existence that proceeds from an honorable life. They are immortal, extending in ever-widening circles, we may believe through time and eternity."

The life of our deceased friend was such a life. He lived close to Nature and close to man; in every relation of life he did his duty. Eloity was an absolute part of his nature. I should scarcely say that he was guided by determination to do his duty, for he did it unconsciously, and was far and away above the need of strengthening his nature by resolves.

His Religious Beliefs. "He was a moral man, of mental equipoise, of even temper, never subject to excitements. Of his religious beliefs he was never obtrusive, but his attitude toward the sacred mysteries of life and death and futurity was always reverent. Though never publicly proclaiming it, he shared with all other thoughtful human beings the idea that man has sure relations with the infinite. Yet he did not dogmatize on the subject. His idea was that we have come, we know not how, out of the infinite unknown; that we shall return, we know not how, to the infinite unknown. Yet sure belief in some thought or suggestion of immortality was shared by him. He was too thoughtful and too serious to think otherwise."

County Coroner REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR NOMINATION

If elected to the most responsible position at the hands of the voters of this county, I will personally attend to all the duties of the position. A Tribute to "Jerry" Coldwell. VANCOUVER, Wash., March 15.—(To the Editor.)—Kindly permit me, as one who has known "Jerry" Coldwell for well over 40 years and who has been associated with him in newspaper work, to add my tribute of respect to the memory of a life well spent, an honored member of the art preservative and one of the brightest lights of the newspaper fraternity on the Pacific Coast.

Our acquaintance dates from the early seventies, when Mr. Coldwell held a case in the state printing office in Salem under Mart Brown's administration. Associated with him were Wilbur Connel, Jimmie Sayer, Charlie Christie, George Good and others whose names I cannot now recall. We were afterwards associated together on the Portland Bulletin in 1878. R. S. Karcher was business manager and the writer had charge of the local column.

Our friendship has stood the test of years and Mr. Coldwell's cheery "Hello, Hodge," has often greeted me on occasional visits to Portland in recent years. His genial personality, ready wit, quick repartee and his unswerving integrity endeared him to the hearts of a very legion of friends. He was an ardent student of nature and loved the trees and flowers. He was an enthusiastic fisherman and was among the first, after the opening of the season, to visit the shady haunts of the wary trout. Our last excursion together was on a fishing trip up the grand windings of Onocentis George, an account of which trip was afterward woven into a story for the readers of The Oregonian.

Mr. Coldwell's sun-loving humanness was a constant source of pleasure to those who knew him best. Very many of our mutual friends have now passed to "the other side" since we were first acquainted, and "Jerry" now has solved the great mystery of the hereafter. I doubt not that the gates of heaven were ajar for him, for I verily believe if ever anyone tried to live up to the precepts of the Golden Rule, "Jerry" Coldwell was one who honestly endeavored so to do. Peace to his ashes.

PRIMARY ELECTION APRIL 17, 1903

LOU WAGNER Republican Candidate for Nomination re-Election for CONSTABLE

He was a lover of Nature. His work on The Oregonian during many years gave continuous proof of the closeness of his observation of Nature and matter and all the phenomena of animal and vegetable life. He never undertook to expound these subjects, but he gave them his light, quaint and suggestive touches, day by day, as one thing and another came to his attention. Dr. Elliot has said that it is fit that upon this day of opening and sunny Springtime we should pay this tribute to him, for these manifestations of a Nature were what he loved. I am reminded by Dr. Elliot's remark of a passage in a very great poem, which, since it is not tedious, I will repeat, for it seems to me very applicable here.

Through wood and stream and field and hill and ocean, A quickening awe from earth's heart has burst, As it has ever done, with change and motion. From the great morning of the world when first God dashed on chaos in its stream immersed, The temple of heaven burn with a softer light, Diffuse themselves, and spend in love's delight The bounty and the joy of their renewed might. The leprous corpse, touched by this spirit tender, Embraces itself in flowers of gentle breath; Like incarnations of the stars, when splendor is changed to fragrance, they illumine death, And mock the merry worm that wakes beneath. Naught we know dies; shall that alone which knoweth? Be as a word consumed before the breath By might lightning? The intense atom flows A moment, then is quenched in a most old repose. But life is made one with Nature, there is heard His breath in all her music.
