SPOT CANNED GOODS

Trading in Futures This Year Will Be Small.

NEW POLICY OF BUYERS

Business in Local Produce Lines Is Increasing—Supplies Are Limited and the Prices Are Well Maintained.

The indications are that the grocery trade this year will see less business in futures, particularly in the canned goods line, than for many years past. At this time of year the demand for futures is usually greatest, but just now there is practically nothing doing in this class of goods in the East, except in Maine corn. Packers are doing all they can to arouse interest, but buyers are cautious and the bulk of the trade will wait until the article is on spot.

According to advices from the East, the Maine corn packers who recently put out opening prices above those of last year, assert that they have done fully as well with futures as they did a year ago, and 1907 was, they say, one of the best years for sales in advance of the pack that they have had in a long while. Not all, however, seem to have had this experience, but they are not worrying over present conditions, being supported by the confident belief that they will have no difficulty in selling everything they can pack, at their own prices, long before the season is ended, and that buyers will be clamoring for more.

Business in future tomatoes still hangs fire and the undertone of the market is easy, though packers are not disposed to give way yet in their ideas as to what tomatoes should be worth.

San Francisco advices state that some orders for future asparagus subject to approval of prices when made are being booked by canners. It is added that the latter will want a clearer idea of the cost of raw material and the quantity available before they will be able to make quotations. In its review of the canned goods situation the San Francisco Trade Journal says: "The principal matter of interest here at present is volume and price of the asparagus crop. The former is likely to be a good average. But the quantity available for canning will be small as a very large part of it is being shipped East in a green state and the rest is held above the views of buyers. So that the outlook is for only a medium pack and firm prices."

In regard to deliveries, a prominent Baltimore firm stated that they will make no change in their former policy in reference to contracts on future goods, which has been 100 per cent delivery guaranteed. "It is the only equitable form of contract," they say. "The jobber should insist on the 100 per cent delivery, and thereby eliminate the former speculative features embodied in the pro rata clause. We have no difficulty in selling all the future goods that we care to sell on guaranteed 100 per cent delivery contract."

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE TRADE GROWS

Supplies Are Moved Off About as Fast as Received.

Trade in the fresh produce line is of very satisfactory proportions. The city demand has increased considerably in the last few days, and country orders are of large volume. Jobbers are having some difficulty in supplying the wants of their customers, owing to the generally light shipments from California. The unusually cool weather in the Southern state has made the vegetable crops backward and prices in general do not show the seasonable declines usual at this time of year. An exception is asparagus, which is now coming forward more freely and gradually getting down to a reasonable level.

Four cars of bananas, more or less ripe, and two cars of oranges came in yesterday. Oranges are in strong demand and clean up about as fast as received. The market has an upward tendency.

COUNTRY PRODUCE LINES ARE WEAK

Eggs and Poultry Move More Slowly—Unusually Large Arrivals of Veal.

The poultry market was only fairly active yesterday. There was a moderate demand for chickens and as receipts were small the previous prices were maintained.

Egg prices hold very steady, considering the sluggishness of the market. Prices were 15 and 16 cents according to quality.

Butter of all kinds sells well and no accumulation is to be seen in the local market. City and country brands were quoted as formerly.

There was a break in prices of dressed veal yesterday, owing to the unusual receipts, arrivals of the day being as large as all of last week. Dressed pork was quoted steady.

Optimistic View of Prune Situation.

An optimistic view of the prune situation is taken by one of the leading San Jose packers, who writes:

"We have yet eight consuming months before the new crop of prunes will be on the market. The stock in England, as well as in Germany, is light and they are now buying. We ourselves have shipped out four cars to the export trade since March 1. We believe that the European market will take at least 50 cars and possibly 100 by August 1, leaving around 300 cars to be sold in the entire United States for eight months, or less than 50 cars per month, to be divided up among all the jobbers in the country. It appears from these figures, with the light holdings that are reported in the East, that all prunes ought to be consumed."

Bank Clearings.

Clearings of the Northwestern cities yesterday were as follows:

STOCKS LET GO

Selling Causes Sharp Break in Prices at New York.

NEWS OF DAY BEARISH

Cutting of New York Central Dividend Affects Other Securities. Unsatisfactory Reports From Steel Trade—Rally at Close.

NEW YORK, March 18.—The stock market gave evidence today of continued operation of considerable force in the speculation. The movement shifted so constantly, however, and presented such sharp contradictions in some of its demonstrations that it had the effect of greatly unsettling and confusing speculative sentiment and causing suspicion until stocks were unloaded in haste.

The strong recovery in yesterday's late market was held to be an infallible sign that the bull leadership had let down prices on Monday and early yesterday merely for the purpose of shaking off a weak speculative following and for the advantage of buying back stocks which they had themselves sold out at a profit. The sharp break which developed today after a moderate advance proved disconcerting to this view of the situation.

Incidents in the day's news were against a rise in prices. The market showed primary resistance, however, to the principal of these, which was the reduction in the New York Central dividend rate from a 6 to a 5 per cent basis. This action caused no great surprise, as the original advance in the dividend rate was regarded, in the view of the market, as bearing rather on the making attractive of new issues in contemplation than on the rate of earnings of the company. The effect of the announcement was even more pronounced on other trunk-line stocks, notably Pennsylvania, than on New York Central itself.

The authoritative statement carried in the Associated Press dispatches from Washington clearly defined the much-discussed probability of a special message from the President relating to legislative measures which have been the subject of conferences at the White House for some time past. With the subject thus removed from the realm of mystery, much of the occupation was gone for an element which has been making use, in the stock market, of vague rumors on this subject.

The picking out of National Lead for a sharp advance, evidently had a sustaining effect on the general list. It was based upon its sustained dividend record and the disproportion of its price to the dividend compared with other prominent industrial stocks. The effect, however, was to aggravate the general weakness rather than to relieve it.

The knowledge that men influential in the steel trade were in conference in this city, and intimations that trade conditions here reported were not bearing out recent predictions of betterment, weighed on the market severely and made the most substantial factor in the weakness which developed. Final slight recoveries from the low point of the break were plainly due to hasty covering of short sales.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,450,000. United States 4s registered declined ¼ per cent on call.

Strength of the Early Market at Chicago Follows Advances at European Grain Centers—High Marks in the Corn Pit.

CHICAGO, March 18.—The wheat market opened moderately strong and continued firm until late in the session, when a considerable reaction occurred on profit-taking, due to a slack demand for cash wheat and to favorable weather for the crop in the Southwest. Commission-houses were the principal buyers throughout the session, but the volume of trade was not large. The early strength was caused by an advance at Liverpool and several other European markets and to the extreme bullishness manifested in the local corn market. Demand was rather tame late in the day and the close was barely steady. May opened ⅜@¼ to ⅝@½c higher at 95⅝@95¾c, advanced to 96⅛c and declined to 95⅜c. The close was at 95⅝@95¾c.

New high marks for all deliveries were made in the corn market today, the May option advancing to 67⅜@67⅝c, and July to 64⅛c. The market was strong throughout the entire session and closed almost at the top notch. Active demand from shorts and bull leaders was the cause of the strength. The selling was chiefly by holders. May opened ⅛@¼c higher at 66⅝@67⅛c, advanced to 67⅜@67⅝c and declined to 67c.

Oats were firm all day in sympathy with corn. May opened ⅛c higher at 54⅛c, advanced to 54½c and closed at 54⅜@54⅝c.

Provisions were strong on active demand by shorts and one of the leading packers. At the close May pork was up 22½c, lard was up 7½c and ribs were 2½c higher.

HETTY GREEN'S MANSION

Lives in Cheap Hoboken Flat and Is Not Neighborly.

NEW YORK, March 18.—"Go away! Stop ringing my bell or I'll scream for the police!" was the way Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman in America, welcomed a caller today who found her living under an assumed name in a $19 a month flat one block from the ferry at Hoboken.

Mrs. Green disappeared after an interview attributed to her in Boston two weeks ago, in which she told how she had lent Harry Payne Whitney $1,000,000 and had refused to lend the Vanderbilts money even after they offered her family jewels as security.

Mr. Whitney characterized the story as absurd and the Vanderbilts would not discuss it.

No satisfactory explanation has ever been given for Mrs. Green's preference for Hoboken. Some of her frivolous friends say the modest rent appeals to her, but her intimate associates declare the architectural beauty of the place has won her admiration.

Mrs. Green moved to her present home about six weeks ago. It is on the fourth floor of a dyspeptic-looking house, not far from where she lived before. There is no elevator. Mrs. Green's daughter is with her. There is a rear entrance, which both women always use.

Neighbors say the Green scenery arrived after dark and was hustled in before they could get a look at it. They all know who she is.

Mrs. Green goes to her office in the Chemical Bank three days a week.

"Her daughter comes here every morning," the corner grocer said. "She gets a pair of eggs, a loaf of bread and a pint of milk in a cracked pitcher. Their trade ain't much, but they're good pay."

"She ain't a bit sociable," said one of the other tenants. "I tried to get the makings of a cup of tea from her and she informed me through the keyhole that tea was bad for me."

Indianapolis.—The attempt to convert Brandywine Creek into a ditch, thus destroying the identity of the "Old Swimmin' Hole" which James Whitcomb Riley made famous in one of his poems under that title, was defeated Tuesday by a decision of the Supreme Court.
