Alaska Packers Admit Situa- of law to any extent. tion to Be Serious.

MEN REJECT WAGE SCALE

Fishermen Vote Unanimously Not to Accept Two Per Cent Reduction. Give Company Until Tuesday to Restore Former Prices.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22,-At SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—At a meeting of the Alsaka Fishermen's Protective Union today, attended by over $30 men, the latest proposition of the Alaska Packers' Association for a s per cent reduction in the wage schedule or the salmon season in the North was ejected unanimously. Six hundred and lfty-four votes were east and only one avored the acceptance of the wage fer to say nothing about the matter."

It is the general sentiment along the water front that the atrike, if any be called, will not extend beyond the vessicia of the Alaska Packers' Association, but as there are if vessels in the fleet of this company, a strike against the Alaska packers alone would be a serious thing. The fishermen today took a determined attitude. The vote was taken by means of the secret ballot, and when it was announced the and when it was announced the hall on Stouart street rang with cheers. "While I do not anticipate that the Alaska packers will break with us." said Secretary Hylen, of the Fishermen's Union, this morning, "I feel sure the fishermen would rather strike than the fishermen would rather strike than submit to a decrease in the schedule paid last year. We can see no reason for the decrease of the pay of the fishermen. Last year's schedule was not exorbitant, and the packers made good money. This year the pack is expected to be better, and the price of red ed to be better, and the price of red salmon has advanced on an average of $0 cents a case. When you consider that the Alaska packers alone will probably put up 1,000,000 cases of salmon this increase in the price would hardly justify the decrease in wages offered the fishermen. We feel that the packers are simply making the excuse that the financial stringency hampers them, in order to get cheaper labor, and we will not work for less than we were paid last year. Today's than we were paid last year. Today' expression of opinion by the fishermer was practically unanimous and a strong

It is the intention to ask the railroad company to procure a half block of ground on the west side of the tracks and abutting on Third street upon which to erect the building. If they will do this the heaviest property owners on Third street have signified their desire to ask the council for the passage of an ordinance providing for the payement of the street from the depot west for a distance of several blocks and possibly to the boundaries of the newly acquired park. The Business Men's League petitioned last year for a new depot. Manager O'Brien, in a courteous reply, told them that the matter could not be taken up at that time, but that next season it might be considered. Upon this ray of hope, and with the added argument that during the past Winargument that during the past win-ter incoming passengers have been compelled to alight from the trains in the mud at the street crossing be-cause of lack of depot and platform room, the people will again ask for a building more in line with the require-ments of the expanding business at ments of th

The Skinner sailed from George, S. C., February 14, for New Haven, Conn., with a cargo of lumber. The next day the schooner ran into a heavy gale, and in the high seas the heavily-laden craft began to leak. In the pitch and pound of the combers, the seams of the Skinner began to open. The crew manned the pumps, but the schooner filled rapidly and suddenly turned over on her port side.

of improving inland waterways. In many sections the railroads of the present day are operating at their fullest capacity; freights are increasing more rapidly than means of transportation are af-forded. The waterways must be utilforded. The waterways must be utilized to handle the surplus freight; moreover, it is in the interest of the public welfare that they should be improved and made practical avenues of commerce, so that water rates may continue to regulate rates by rall. Modern Laws Are Needed

Many of the laws on the statute books are obsolete; they were passed for a day and age when dofferent conditions existed than exist today. Obsolete laws should give way to modern legislation. But such laws cannot be passed until public interest is stimulated. That is one of the objects which the President had in mind when he called this hig natural resources conference. By arousing interest and impressing upon the people the utter necessity of caring for the needs of future generations, he hopes to bring about much-needed legislation. But the National Government cannot do it all; much responsibility rests upon the states.

By bringing together the Governors of all the states and territories, the President will learn what the various states are doing toward conserving natural resources; he will also ascerstates are doing toward conserving natural resources; he will also ascer-tain how successful the National Gov-Captain Griffis and the crew scrambled up on the starboard side of the hull and lashed themselves fast. Swept by the seas, the men thus remained for three hours, when the schooner suddenly rightwants suggestions as to what is needed in the various states; reports on what has already been accomplished; criti-cisms on present-day methods. Our of this mass of information it will be possible, it is believed, to evolve some tangible movement which will more thoroughly and more satisfactorily tend to preserve the natural resources of every state and territory. The President is aware that great strides have been made along the line he has indicated, but there is yet much to be accomplished. But if he can rethe from office knowing that he has brought the Nation to a full realization of the importance of looking to the welfare of the future, he will be intensely gratified. A successful termination to the forthcoming conference would, in the opinion of the President, be the crowning event of his adminis-tration. His heart is in the project, and if he receives the co-operation that he expects, his efforts will not be in valn
