

VAN DUSEN OUT McALLISTER IN

Master Fish Warden's Last Appeal Falls on Deaf Ears.

SUCCESSOR OF PORTLAND

H. C. McAllister, With Allen & Lewis, Said to Be Most Likely Candidate for Position—Several Others Would Like Job.

SALEM, Or., March 25.—(Special.)—Master Fish Warden H. G. Van Dusen made a last plea to the Fish Commission today for preservation of his official head. But his head seems very likely to fall.

There are a dozen or more candidates for Van Dusen's place, among them R. D. Hume, the salmon king of Rogue River. Owing to the fact, however, that he is personally interested in fisheries, he is not likely to get the appointment. He is a receptive, rather than active applicant.

The other leading candidates are H. C. McAllister, of Portland; Charles F. Babcock, of Oregon City, and W. P. Andrews, of Hood River. Each of these men has been strongly endorsed.
