Western Oregon. Horseraising, like poultry-keeping. will always be an adjunct of general farming operations. While a few men may make a success of horsebreeding as a separate and distinct occupation they can do so only if they produce stock for sale at high prices for breeding purposes. The man who raises the draft horses for sale to the general buyer for work purposes canno pe to secure prices that will warrant his keeping mares that yield no return except the colts. The farmer who has work on the farm for his mares brough the season of farm work, and who gets colts besides, can make a good profit raising horses for sale at $150 to $200 at two to three years old. The conclusion to be drawn is plain,

AN UNITST DISCRIMINATION /

About five years ago, when the Inernational Sailing-Ship Owners' Union evied a differential of 30 cents per tar n feelghts against Portland and in favor of Puget Sound, this port was handling about two-thirds of the whoat business of the Pacific North-West. in the three years following estabilshment of this differential, or ions were reversed and Puget Sound shipped mearly two-thirds of the Then Portland woke up, and, wheat. after nearly a year of patient effort in removing the embarge. But we have not yet regained all the trade lost while the differentia was in force. It is coming back gradand with the coming of North Bank road we should scon be again in command of the situation. Unfortunately, at this time we are nfronted by another differentia which is in a fair way to damage the ort fully as much as the troublesome reight differential. There is a difence of 25 per cent, against Partand and in favor of Punct Sound, in grainhandlers' wages, and, regardles t the approach of a crisis which will be precipitated by completion of the Harriman lines to Puget Sound, an effort is being made in certain quarters perpetuate this differential. As the wheat-exporting business is handled by the same from in both ports, it is, of urse, unreasonable to expect them s pay 40 cents per hour for grainndlers in Portland when they may have the same labor performed in Taand Scattle for 30 cents per Naturally, the effect of continu-SASTER. ation of this differential will be diver-don to Tacoma and Soattle of an immense amount of wheat which other wise would be put affont at Portland. The O. R. & N. Co. has assumed the urden of free bar pilotage to meet the same conditions on Puget Sound. The Pacific Bridge Company has agreed for one year to handle ballast free of charge to the ship, to meet the ame conditions on Puget Sound, and the Port of Portland is spending about $250,000 per year to keep a channel to the sea that will-admit of giving yes sels as good dispatch as they receive on Puget Sound. It now appears that is one more differential that must be taken care of. The exportant

But the shipping brings with it considerable money as well as prestige for the port, and, when we drive it away by making the port more expensive than those ports with which come in competition, there is a loss not only to the men who actually per form the work of loading and unloading the ships, but to the community The issue is plain, and it must be met as other issues in which the welfare of the port was involved have been met-by placing the port on on sugar and tobacco.

would be very much overcharged; and would come in a damaged condition; then they had no recourse. So all they could do was to smile and look pleasent. There is a very general complaint against the agent of the Pacific Navigation at Tillamook City. He is said to be very coarse, vulgar and un-gentlemanly in his dealings with the public. One instance came under my per-sonal observation. A merchant of Tilla-mook had a shipment of freight on the Elmore, plainly marked for him. He was sonal observation. A merchant of Tilla-mook had a shipment of freight on the Elmore, pisioly marked for him. He was very anxious for the freight and was ready to pay his freight bill, but the agent had it in for him on account of some past offense he had committed in registering a "kick" azsimut att over-charge, and simply because he could not produce a shipping receipt showing the goods had been shipped to him, he could not get his goods. Other metchants got their goods without producing a receipt, but this merchant needed to be disciplined. The motio of the Facilic Nacigation Company seems to be "the public be d-d," and "put on all the traffic will bear," "leave his goods on the dock": "treat the kickers in an ungentlemantly manner," or anything else. No regular tariff is maintained. One trip a certain class of merchandiae is charged one rate, the pext trip the same class of merchan-dies is charged 30 put cent more for the same service.
