

ROCKPILE YAWNS FOR HIM AGAIN

A. Piqueron, Free One Hour, Threatens Family With Death Once More.

LONG SENTENCE JUST OVER

Victim of Insane Jealousy Accuses Wife of Trying to Supplant Him in Her Affections—Cracks in the Lid.

Jealousy bids fair to keep Albert Piqueron in the Second street jail for the rest of his life. After being out of jail exactly one hour, following a term of 60 days at Kelly's Butte for threatening his wife with death, Piqueron was again arrested shortly before noon yesterday for throwing his household in a turmoil while in a jealous rage. He ran his wife out of the house, drove his daughter into a garret room, where she barricaded the door to prevent him from getting in, and threatened to kill them before the day was ended.

Threatens Wife With Death.

Two months ago he created a disturbance and threatened his wife with death. As that was not his first offense, Judge Cameron decided to give him a lesson he would not soon forget. Sixty days imprisonment at hard labor was the penalty inflicted and Piqueron was told he might expect an even more severe sentence should he ever return on a similar charge. Therefore it would seem that the hapless victim of jealousy is reasonably certain of a job breaking rock for the county during the next two or even three months.

Piqueron was released from Kelly's Butte at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. He went at once to his home and proceeded to his bedroom, arriving there shortly after 11 o'clock. In a very few minutes neighbors heard a commotion, when they saw Mrs. Piqueron running from the house and heard her husband calling after her that he would kill her. He accused his wife openly of plotting to get his property, worth several thousand dollars, so that she might leave him for a younger man.

The police were called and Piqueron was arrested on his way out of the house. His arrest occurred at 11:30, just one hour after his release from the rockpile stockade. In his pocket was found a bottle containing a peculiar mixture of laudanum and whisky, which is said to be his favorite mixture. He was taken to the City Jail and locked up pending his trial before Judge Cameron, which will occur possibly today.

Some Places Wet, Some Dry.

While many people were complaining of the excessive wetness of primary election day, many others were lamenting at the dryness thereof. The polls opened at noon and at the same hour the saloons closed. Improvident slaves of rum had little thought to lay in a stock to tide them over the dry period, and per Saturday night, and there was little suffering. Although the police kept a close watch for saloonkeepers who might endeavor to carry on a little clandestine traffic, none such were found. And yet there was a leak some place for in the middle of the afternoon W. D. Watkins broke loose down Third street shouting the names of a few candidates favored by him. Whether he got his inspiration from the hip-pocket flask of one of the enterprising candidates in question or from some stealthy ginmill can only be conjectured. While walking alone, either for along toward 1 o'clock W. H. Miller happened along Stark street on an electioneering cruise. He was so heavily laden, however, that his campaign consisted of little more than surges and an occasional expression. In thick accents, on the merits of Statement No. 1.

Murphy Among the Missing.

Mrs. David A. Murphy is very much worried about Mr. Murphy. He left home Thursday morning to meet some friends at the St. Charles Hotel. He didn't return for lunch, for dinner, or for breakfast yesterday morning. At dinner hour last night he was still missing. Murphy feared foul play and furnished the police with a minute description of her husband, yesterday forenoon, together with his latest photograph.

RUSH WORK ON BRIDGE

Structure at Lewiston Will Be Ready for Excursion.

J. F. O'Brien, general manager for the Harriman lines in this territory, returned yesterday from a trip to Lewiston over the new Riparian cutoff and to Huntington over the main line of the O. R. & N. Mr. O'Brien says additional forces were put to work yesterday on the bridge at Lewiston, so that the structure will be completed in time for the special excursion to Lewiston from Portland on May 3 to cross. Riveters are busy on the structure, which will be a handsome one. The new line is practically completed, said Mr. O'Brien yesterday. "Ballasting remains to be accomplished on most of the line, but this is going ahead. I am sure no difficulty will be experienced in running the special excursion train over the cutoff on May 2. It was a beautiful day, the rains extend over Eastern Oregon for my trip showed that more moisture is needed to put the growing crops in good shape. A good soaking downpour is what is required throughout the greater part of the wheat-growing belt. If enough rain is secured now, the prospects for a large crop will be excellent."

Mr. O'Brien says business is improving somewhat on the Oregon lines and although the upward tendency is somewhat slow, he believes it will be steady and looks for better conditions in this state from this time forward.

DROP GIRL STENOGRAPHERS

Auditor Blaisdell, of O. R. & N. Prefers to Have Male Help.

Six girl stenographers will be dropped from the office force of Ralph Blaisdell, auditor for the Harriman lines in the Pacific Northwest. The change will be made not because they are not good stenographers, but because it is the policy of the head of the department to have only male stenographers in the office. The girls will not be discharged, but their places will be filled with men as they drop out.

Auditor Blaisdell declines to give any reasons for the change, other than that he prefers to have men to do the work now performed by girls. There is no question as to the ability of the women to take the dictation of the railroad officials and write their letters for them as well as keep the secrets religiously that naturally come to them in the course of their duties. The order just issued is not a reflection in any way upon the qualifications of the girls or their ability.

Already some offices of the Harriman railroads here have only men stenographers. General Manager O'Brien has not a single girl around his office. The auditor's office is an important one, and the substitution of men for girls will make it more like the plan by which General Manager O'Brien's office is managed.

There is no danger of the change becoming general in the Wells Fargo building. In the first place, it would cost a great deal more to get the work done. Girls do the same work for less money than men stenographers, for more occupations are open to men and special inducements have to be made in the way of salary to keep a man in the position of stenographer. Other departments of the railroad disclaim any intention of making any changes in their stenographers.

"There will be no change in this department," said a freight official of the allied lines yesterday. "We could not get male stenographers enough if we wanted them. Besides, we could not get along without the girl stenographers we have now. They are trained in the work and are very valuable assistants."

More than one official swears by his stenographer and says that without her the business of the office could not be handled with half the success that it now is. Any intention of changing to men is farthest from their thoughts.

BIG CROWD FOR LEWISTON

LIST OF EXCURSIONISTS INCLUDES 90 MEN.

Prominent Business Interests of Portland Will Be Well Represented at "Blossom Festival."

The proposed excursion to Lewiston on May 1, to celebrate the completion of the railroad from Riparian to that point, promises, even at this early date, to be one of the largest and most representative that has ever taken place from Portland.

About 90 business men of this city have already signed for accommodations, and undoubtedly the list will grow rapidly during the next three or four days. The event means so much to the commercial interests of both places that business men who can possibly spare the time feel that they cannot afford to miss it.

Four Chinese Gamblers Caught With the Goods On.

Four Chinese, Lee Ong, Ah Sing, Ah Ring and Ah Chong, were taken prisoners late yesterday afternoon in a raid made by the police on a gambling room run in connection with the store at On Lee, at 88 Second street. With Captain of Detectives Smith cutting off their escape at their secret exit to the cellar and Detectives Smith and Kay simultaneously battering down the barriers to the den in the two entrances to the place, the gamblers were surrounded and cornered, and when taken had all the paraphernalia of fantan in their possession. The police consider this raid important, because of the completeness of the evidence they secured in the fantan game, and consider that it will help them in the future in securing convictions against this class of Chinese gamblers. This is the first time this Chinese establishment has been raided for gambling. It is not more than 30 yards distant from police headquarters and has always been considered a place in which only legitimate business was conducted.

SUMIDA IS FOUND GUILTY

Indictment and not guilty on the second. Natsu is to be deported to Japan.

JURY IN JAPANESE CASE OUT FIVE MINUTES.

Defendant Faces Heavy Fine and Long Imprisonment, While Woman in Case Will Be Deported.

It took the jury that heard the evidence against K. Sumida, the Japanese charged with bringing a Japanese woman into this country for immoral purposes, just five minutes to find a verdict of guilty against Sumida. Sumida, so the testimony showed, knew Natsu Kotaya in Japan. She was a divorcee and was anxious to become a nurse. Sumida sent her money to come to Portland and after living with her for several months, the woman fled. Before the break between Sumida and Kotaya, there was a duel over her affections and the woman left Portland and went to Tacoma with a new lover.

Sumida was consumed with jealous rage. He hunted up the immigrant officials and in telling the story of his broken heart admitted that he had sent money to Natsu, J. H. Barbour, after listening to Sumida's story, had him arrested and indicted on two counts and had the almond-eyed Natsu brought back to Portland and placed in jail. Now Sumida will face a penalty of from one to five years in the penitentiary and a fine of from $100 to $5000. The jury found Sumida guilty on the first count in the

J. G. Ring Pleads for Permission to See His Wife.

J. G. Ring, who was formerly employed on a pile driver in the construction of the Willamette River railroad bridge, and who is a resident of St. John, is held at the County Jail. He will be sent to the asylum at Salem, as he has been adjudged insane. Ring believes that the reason he was taken into custody was because the physician's bill remains unpaid. For several weeks he was treated at the Good Samaritan Hospital. He pleads to be permitted to go home to his wife. Ring says he was told that a piece of timber, which was being swung into place, struck him on the head.

John Keith, formerly proprietor of a Portland oyster house, is now in the County Jail, and has volunteered to go to the asylum without examination. He has been in the asylum once before. The physicians who examined him decided that his mind was not sound.
