FEAR TO CHAMPION CANTEEN

FEW CONGRESSMEN HAVE THE COURAGE OF CONVICTIONS.

Some Have Insisted On Its Restoration at Soldiers' Homes, but None at Army Posts.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, April 2.—Some brave members of the House of Representatives have mustered up sufficient courage to insist upon the restoration of the canteen at the various Soldiers Homes in the United States, but none of the braves, who disregard the sentiments of the W. C. T. U., have yet deemed it advisable to undertake to restore the canteen to regular army posts. It is the consensus of opinion of commanding officers of the Army that the canteen should be restored, in the interest of the service, as well as in the interest of the enlisted men, and the records of the War Department show much more drunkenness and disorder and many more desertions since the canteen was abolished, than before.

The reports of Governors of Soldiers' Homes show as disastrous a condition among the old soldiers as prevails among the active members of the Army. The inhabitants of the Homes are not deserters, but they turn up drunk, and get into all sorts of trouble, because they, like the troopers, have been denied the privilege of buying good beer and light wines on their reservations, and are driven to the outlying dives, where all sorts of bad liquor is sold, and where other vile temptations are placed in their paths.

It is the unanimous opinion of the Governors of the Soldiers' Homes that the canteen should be restored at the respective Homes, in order that the old soldiers may be protected against bad liquor, and be held in restraint. There is no stronger showing in regard to Soldiers' Homes than in regard to the army posts, but it is believed by the fearless Congressmen that if they can restore the canteen to the Homes this year, they can take one more step and restore the canteen at army posts next session, after the election is over.

There is considerable doubt, however, if the brave band will muster enough support to even restore the canteen to Soldiers' Homes; the average Congressman is a coward on the canteen subject.

CANADA'S NEW COUNTRY

Near Great Slave Lake, Summer Wheat Grown Over Ice Stratum.

Harper's.

There is a stretch of country, vaster immeasurably than any remaining portion of the world which is available for white settlers, soon to be exploited. Towns will spring up, industries will arise, metals of fabulous wealth will be mined from the ground. A new dominion will be added to the British Empire in the North of Canada.

This must not be confused with the Northwest, with Saskatchewan and Alberta Provinces, into which immigrants are now pouring annually by the hundred thousand. In Labrador, and west of Hudson Bay clear up to the Arctic Circle, is a great unknown country, where, for a whole century, isolated settlers have had their homes, wholly cut off from civilization.

With the purpose of developing this gigantic domain, hitherto given over to the Hudson Bay Company and its Indian trappers, a Senate commission has recently been held in Ottawa. A surprising feature has been the evidence of residents of the extreme North who came down to testify. Many of these had started for the Klondike during the first rush of prospectors, and taken up their abodes instead somewhere along the basin of the Mackenzie.

In these regions the ground thaws to a depth of three feet during the Summer months, under a perpetual sun, which sends up the temperature toward the nineties. Beneath this is a layer of perpetual ice. North of the Great Slave Lake, in a latitude parallel with that of the Bering Sea, a temperature of 100 degrees in the shade was registered on several successive days. Wheat, peas, potatoes, and all garden fruits and vegetables have been grown during this Summer months over the stratum of perpetual ice under the soil. From May until October, frosts in some sections are wholly unknown.

Mr. W. F. Bredin, a member of the Alberta Legislature, gave evidence of the mineral wealth of the country. For miles he encountered wells of natural gas, which could be ignited to a height of 25 or 30 feet. All along the Athabasca tar oozed continually from the banks, which, for 100 miles, consisted of asphalt. Asphalt lakes of enormous dimensions were constantly encountered by another witness. Tar sands exist all along the Coppermine River, up to the Arctic Sea. Boring for petroleum was stopped by a tremendous flow of natural gas, which still continued when the spot was revisited several years later.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The storm announced yesterday evening proved to be of considerable energy and it caused the following maximum wind velocities in this district: North Head, Wash., 52 miles south; Tatoosh Island, Wash., 52 miles west; Seattle, 40 miles southwest; Tacoma, 32 miles southwest; Spokane, Wash., 40 miles southwest; Tacoma, 32 miles southwest; Spokane, Wash., 40 miles southwest; Pocatello, Idaho, 38 miles southwest; Portland, 26 miles west; Walla Walla, Wash., 28 miles southwest, and Baker City, Or., 26 miles west. The rains attending the storm were not heavy but they were general in all except the arid sections of the North Pacific States. The barometer has risen rapidly during the last 12 hours and the weather this evening is clearing with the indications favorable for a few days of fair weather with rising temperatures. It will be cool in the early mornings and frosts will occur in many localities Saturday and Sunday mornings.
