launch Van, forfeited the $300 wager, as he was unable to bring his boat to the scratch at the appointed time.

The start was made from the Morrison-street bridge at 2 o'clock and 31 minutes later the Kittie crossed the Flirt and the Vixen.

The race between the Van and the Kittie was first scheduled for Sunday, April 12, but a few minutes before the start the Van broke a crank shaft.

Portland Excursionists Say It Will One Day Be Center of Inland Empire.

That Lewiston is destined to be the commercial center of the inland Empire was the opinion expressed by several members of the party of Portland business men who returned yesterday from that city.

It is said that the location of Lewiston points to that city as a distributing center for the inland Empire, and that only the delay in the improvement of the Snake and Columbia rivers defers its commercial supremacy.

AMONG CRITICAL PERSONS THIS RECKLESS JUROR. Among critical persons this reckless juror is the late juror, who was a member of the jury that convicted Brownell and one-half were not. I am responsible for the portion not signed by him.

NOTARY PUBLIC, SHOWING ON THEIR FACE THAT THE PARTIES NAMED WERE SWORN BEFORE HIM. About a dozen of these were signed by Brownell and one-half were not. I am responsible for the portion not signed by him.

But to come back to Brownell, who, with his usual desire to leave no stone unturned, also volunteered to Bristol the information that H. L. Patterson would be an important witness against Hermann. This is no doubt as much a surprise to Patterson as it was to Bristol, but it furnished a substitute for Brownell and Patterson went to Washington while Brownell remained at home.

When Mr. Hermann was cleared by the jury in Washington, things looked all right for a time and then a date was finally set for the trial of the remaining land-fraud cases in May. It was then that Brownell, through the agency of his attorney, Mr. Heney, was able to get a subpoena for Mr. Heney. The date was fixed for April 12, 1908, and then at some time in May, but God only knows when they will be tried, and they may keep even him guessing.

But when the dates for these trials were settled the Draper affidavit, which apparently had served its purpose, became a source of trouble for when the cases against myself, two in number, appear for trial this affidavit would appear in the Federal Court for submission of part in a grand jury. He finally concluded to have this first affidavit with an amended affidavit and myself in 1904 had taken a trip together, looking over some timber land in the Sitka country. This was known to Brownell.

Now here were two men alone in the mountains together and three years after, in October, 1907, Patterson makes an affidavit corroborating Draper's affidavit and stating that he had no recollection of the trip to Sitka in 1904. In Patterson's affidavit to such conversation having occurred between us on the trip to Sitka, he stated that he had no recollection of the trip to Sitka in 1904.
