Republicans Defeated in Primary Race Give Banquet to the Winners.

HOLD PARTY LOVE FEAST

Members of "Would-Have-Been Association" Make Speeches in Humorous Vein—Hard Raps Are Given Chamberlain Boom.

It was a game bunch of losers and a grateful lot of winners that sat down to a banquet at the Portland Commercial Club last night.

Dr. Emmet Drake, unsuccessful candidate for State Senator, acted as toastmaster. Dr. Drake confessed in a humorous speech that he belonged to the "would-have-been" association, and explained that the single purpose of the banquet was to enable the defeated candidates to give Chamberlain credit for their loyalty to the Republican party.

He predicted the success of the Republican ticket in the June election, saying that the people of the state would "no longer be fooled by the demagoguery of the party."

Moser's Humorous Speech.

Gus Moser, who ran second in the race for District Attorney, facetiously described the feelings of a defeated candidate, and in presenting candidates, predicted that that class of unfortunate would perform their only duty—that of supporting every nominee on the party's ticket.

C. W. Halderman, of Astoria, in Charge of Work—Will Not Antagonize Bourne or Try to Dominate Convention.

Senator Fulton today will establish headquarters in the Imperial Hotel for the double purpose of assisting in the election of H. M. Calko to the United States Senate and securing the selection of a delegation to the Republican National Convention that will be in the interest of Secretary Taft for President.

Fulton directing me to come to Portland and open headquarters for him," said Mr. Halderman yesterday. "It will be impossible for me to be in Portland personally, but I am instructed to assist the candidacy of Mr. Calko for Senator in every possible way, and Senator Fulton requests his friends to do likewise.

Mr. Halderman denied that his coming to Portland should be considered an organized effort on the part of Senator Fulton to dominate the state convention or to antagonize Senator Bourne. He insisted that his mission in opening headquarters at Portland at this time is solely for the purpose of requesting Fulton's friends to give their every assistance to Mr. Calko's candidacy and election.

YAMHILL COUNTY ORGANIZES A CLUB FOR THE STUDY OF WALNUT CULTURE.

MEMPHISVILLE, Or., May 4.—(Special.)—Yamhill County has set the pace in walnut culture in Oregon, not only by having the greatest number of acres in cultivation, but also in the scientific study and culture of walnuts. A walnut club has been organized in the county with the purpose of "to acquire and disseminate a wider information in matters pertaining to the culture of walnuts and other varieties of nuts adapted to Western Oregon."

The club has about 50 walnut-growers from all parts of the county. Accurate information is collected by the club and distributed to its members and others desiring information on the subject. Its meetings are devoted to the discussion of the problems peculiar to walnut culture in Oregon.

This club hopes to make walnut growing one of the big industries of the Willamette Valley, and that its hopes will be realized is shown by the number of acres being set out to walnuts annually and by the fact that the Yamhill County walnut is already bringing the highest price in the market.

PLAIN TO EXTEND 'DRY' TERRITORY

Local Option Elections Held in 18 Oregon Counties Next Month.

PROHIBITION IS THE ISSUE

Anti-Saloon League Hopes to Vote Entire State Dry in 1910—Present Campaign Preliminary to That Battle Royal.

Local option elections for county prohibition will be held in 18 of the 33 counties in Oregon next month. Eight of the other 15 counties are "dry," and in four of these the question of saloons or no saloons will be a result of the June election on petition of the liquor men. There are only five counties in the state in which there is no "dry" territory, and the local option campaign in each of these counties next month. This extensive campaign to invade further the territory now held by the saloon interests is only a preliminary step to an election on state prohibition, which is planned by the cold water people for 1910. The Anti-Saloon League, as the "dry" cause, has made up their minds to co-operate in a campaign that is expected to add Oregon to the list of prohibition states two years hence.

In the meantime both organizations are doing effective work in spreading an influence positively opposed to the saloon. Prohibitionists have been successful in securing the temperance workers, will more surely be brought about by adding to the territory in the coming election. With this object in view elections in the subject of county prohibition will be held in the following 18 counties this year: Clackamas, Columbia, Coos, Crook, Douglas, Harney, Jackson, Josephine, Klamath, Lake, Marion, Morrow, Polk, Umatilla, Union, Wasco and Washington. Included in this list are the five only counties in the state in which there is no "dry" territory, as follows: Grant, Harney, Klamath, Lake and Polk. On the petition of the liquor men the question of county prohibition will be re-opened in June in the following counties: Linn, Lane, Sherman and Wasco.

Bothered by Law Suits.

The local optionists have also filed petitions for precinct and subdivision precinct elections in nine counties, including Umatilla, in which 13 of these petitions have been filed. A majority of these petitions have been attacked on legal grounds and the question of deciding in which precinct the election will be held will be determined some time this week. This list of counties also includes Clackamas, Wasco, Umatilla, Grant, Lake, Josephine, Douglas and Marion. Leavenworth, Oregon, yesterday. "Eighteen counties have filed petitions with their respective County Clerks for an election. In addition to the precinct and subdivision elections of precincts have done the same. Fifty-one separate opportunities will be given the people of the state to say whether or not they want the saloon."

Canvass Is Encouraging.

"Not one of these would have been filed if, after investigation, it had not appeared to us that we would be successful. In the interior counties—Klamath, Lake, Crook, Grant and Harney—we find that the cattlemen and ranchers are ardent in their support of the saloon, and will vote it out of their territory. The same is true in mining districts among the employers of labor and the laborers themselves. In the mountainous regions the ranks of the anti-saloon people.

"During the last few months we have been solicited by every county in the state with the exception of one to carry out the plan of county prohibition on the saloon. But this is not a fight for this year only, or to carry the easy spots in the state. Our unchangeable purpose is never to relax in our efforts, until we turn aside in our endeavors, until every licensed liquor dispensary in Oregon is closed. Wherever we succeed in June we will inaugurate in July a campaign of law enforcement. We do not expect the saloons to lie down when the ballot only is against them. Also, wherever we are defeated in June, we will immediately arrange for another campaign.

"What next meetings will be held all over the state, whether we win or lose on June 1st, and the plan for future work will be arranged. The benefits we will gain in this present struggle is the alignment of our forces against the saloon. The training we will get for a greater battle in 1910."

CONGRESS OF METHODISM

Questions to be Decided at Quadrennial Conference.

BALTIMORE, May 4.—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the governing body of the denomination will assemble in the Lyric Hall, this city, for its quadrennial session at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning, next. There will be an attendance of about 200 delegates, of whom 334 are ministerial and 333 lay, the latter including a few women, with a negro woman. Addresses will be made by Vice-President Fairbanks and W. J. Bryan and a trip will be made to Washington, where President Roosevelt will appear. Among the important questions which will occupy the attention of the assembly are the following:

"What time come when this denomination should unite with other Methodists in type and policy, in re-stating Methodist doctrine and faith? Should preaching efforts be appointed by bishops, be elected by the respective annual conferences? How may more adequate support be provided for retired preachers? Should the time that any minister serve be limited to a specified term as was formerly done? Should the church's publishing enterprises, now divided between the Methodist Book Concern, in New York, and the West Methodist Book Concern, in Cincinnati, be merged? Should the Book of Discipline of the denomination continue to specify certain forms of amusements as prohibited, or should the vicious attitude of the denomination with respect to amusements it regards as questionable be expressed in the terms general

Animal Gland Extracts Made by the Van Vleck Gland Extract Co., of Kansas City, Mo., and Distributed from Portland, Or., office, 705 Dekum Building.

We want you to know the virtue of the active principles taken from the glands of young, healthy sheep, and how are you going to know if you are not advised. We give you, and you need the extracts. We take this way of informing you. Gland Extracts are indicated in all forms of nervous and chronic diseases. If you wish cash and consult with a physician he will explain how and why gland extracts does such wonderful things. In Portland there are many people that have been given up by a physician and friends, who are now living testimonials to the virtues of the gland extracts. We want every one in Portland who is suffering from chronic diseases to have one of our Illustrated Blue Books, which will give you the scientific facts on all nervous and chronic diseases. We will mail you one upon request. We have no agent, we employ no coxers, we do everything on its merits and will do a little advertising from time to time. The extracts are within reach of all. We are the originators of this treatment. Have been demonstrating them for 15 years. There are other makes but none so good. Facts not fancies. Note what Collier's Weekly of April 25th, 1908, says regarding gland extracts.

CURING OURSELVES.

The most singular part of the whole process is that the bodies are not mere accidental parts of the food, or products of its digestion, but definite chemical substances, which can be isolated from the blood of one animal and injected into the body of another, and will promptly cause a flow of digestive juice. They do not, like a toxin or living poison, set up any antitoxic reaction in the body, and a wide and a dose that will produce a given effect one day will produce an almost identical effect on the next, although, if given for a considerable length of time a trifling increase in the dosage is necessary. They have the same curious special or selective effect upon some particular organ or system of the body, as, for instance, morphine has upon the central nervous system, digitalis upon the heart, and Epsom salts upon the intestines. This opens a wide and hopeful vista of possibilities, that, by continued and patient studies, we may yet be able to isolate from our foods and from the body of man, these special substances, Nature's own curative, with which may be harmlessly and effectively roused to action such bodily organs or functions as may be sluggish or overwhelmed. This is in harmony with the strong tendency among progressive and thoughtful physicians to utilize more and more in the treatment of disease foods and substances and extracts derived from the glands and other organs of the body itself. We may be found to carry with us the best remedies for our own diseases.
