TELLS EARLY LIFE

Friend of Bella Guinness' Childhood Found.

TRAVELED AS CONJURER

Her Father a Strolling Magician, Very Brutal and Lavish With His Money--Woman Said to Have Unfinished Divorce Suit.

CHRISTIANIA, May 15.--In addition to the fact previously mentioned in these dispatches that Mrs. Bella Guinness was the daughter of Petrus Paulsen, a traveling conjurer and musician, and performed with her father at public fairs in Norway, the Associated Press has gathered here and at Tromsø many additional details of her family history. Her mother was regarded as a respectable woman. Her father, a Swede of easy fortune, was a clever illusionist. His daughter Bella, when about 6 or 8 years old, used to travel with his company everywhere in the country and was especially well known in Christiania. An old friend of Paulsen was found here today. His name is Julius Bastel. He says he first met Paulsen at Karstad, Sweden, in 1888. He is described as having been a brutal man and lavish with his money. Bella Paulsen was confirmed at Christiania, South Norway, in 1878, her dress for the occasion being ordered from Paris. Shortly afterward Paulsen retired from business and invested his savings in a glassware store at Tromsø, but lost his all and resumed the performing business. His daughter remained at Christiania, Bastel says, and in 1880 or 1880 married an engineer. Bastel has not seen her since 1890. Old Paulsen is said to have died last year at Narvik on the effects of falling down a flight of stairs. It is reported that the daughter, before leaving Norway, was a participant in a suit in the divorce court and that the case never has been finished.

MAY BE JAW OF MRS. GUNNESS

Bone Taken From Ruins Partly Identified.

LA PORTE, Ind., May 15.--There is no question but that the piece of jawbone found on the Guinness farm yesterday is from a human being. Furthermore, it bears a strong resemblance to the lower jaw of Mrs. Guinness. "This positive statement of identification made by Dr. J. P. Norton, the dentist who performed a large amount of work on the teeth of the owner of the death farm, after he had examined the jawbone, 'There is almost no chance that the bone came from the jaw of an animal,'" he said. "There only remains to be discovered some of the gold which I placed upon the cupid to make the identification of this piece of bone perfect and complete. So far as I myself am concerned, I am certain as to the origin of the bone." Sheriff Smulzer also brought in to Dr. Norton a number of new bits of metal found in the debris this morning. They proved, however, to be brass. Otherwise the search at the farm was fruitless. The report of the coroner's physicians to the effect that the jawbones found at the Guinness farm yesterday came from the skull of an adult human being, is all that is required to confirm the establishment of the corpus delicti in the case against Ray Lamphers, according to the coroner's officials of this county. Just when this formal report will be made is uncertain. Sheriff Smulzer was jubilant over his discoveries last night, and resumed his investigations today. When the screening and panning method to fall back upon. This novel method of uncovering evidence has given several results already, although the amount of shams gone over has been inconsiderable. It is alleged on the tremendous heat engendered in the flaming ruins the state must depend for support of its contention that the head of Mrs. Guinness was incinerated on the morning of April 23. The first of the Guinness victims to be interred with Christian rites was buried tonight in Patton's Cemetery on the outskirts of La Porte. The corpse was that of Andrew K. Hogelein, of Mansfield, N. D., the last man to meet his death in the trap to which Mrs. Guinness lured her victims. The body was removed for burial this evening after Coroner Mack had received the reports of the Bertillon experts who have examined it, and compared their findings with figures taken from the records of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater. The burial rites of the Swedish Lutheran church were read at the morgue by a minister, and two men followed the coffin to the grave by the light of a lantern.

TWO KILLED BY BLAST

Men Tamping Powder Get the Full Force of Discharge.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.--Marian Burns and John Brown, employees of the San Pablo Quarry Company, were killed by an accidental blast in the Point Richmond quarry this morning. Both were shockingly mangled. They were tamping powder in a hole, and, standing over the hole, both received the full force of the discharge and were thrown some distance away. Burns died within two hours and Brown an hour later.

FAVOR LIABILITY BILL

Effort to Be Made Today to Put It Through the House.

WASHINGTON, May 15.--True to its special order adopted a day or two ago, the House judiciary committee today voted to report favorably the bill introduced by Alexander, of New York, establishing the liability of the Government for the injury or death of certain classes of employees. This is one of the legislative measures urged upon Congress by the President. An effort will be made to pass the bill in the House tomorrow.

THAW ON THE STAND

Will Testify in Effort to Secure His Freedom.

EXPERTS DO NOT AGREE

Some Declare He Is Sane, Others That He Would Be Menace to Society--How Thaw Felt When He Killed Stanford White.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 15.--Examination of expert medical witnesses in an endeavor to show that Harry K. Thaw is sane was begun here late today by Thaw's counsel in the habeas corpus proceedings instituted to free him from confinement at the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane, where he was lodged at the conclusion of his trial for the killing of Stanford White. Dr. George E. Janney, qualifying as an expert, said that he had examined Thaw twice during his stay at Matteawan. He had found Thaw, he said, logical, with good memory and capable of following an argument. He gave it as his unqualified opinion that Thaw was sane at present. Dr. Graeme Hammond, another expert on mental diseases, the last witness of the session, declared that Thaw was not a paranoiac, in his opinion, but was now sane. An interesting development of the day was the quoted report of A. Russell Pebody, of Thaw's counsel, that Thaw would go on the witness stand. Experts called by Mr. Jerome earlier in the day testified that in their opinion Thaw was an incurable paranoiac and that his release would be dangerous to public safety. Experts Do Not Agree. Dr. Carlos F. Macdonald testified that Thaw is an incurable paranoiac, whose confinement in a mental hospital is in the interest of public safety. Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the asylum, asserted on the witness stand that from his observations made in the asylum he was of the opinion that to free Thaw would endanger public safety. District Attorney Jerome at 4:15 this afternoon rested his case. It is probable that further witnesses will be called by Mr. Jerome in rebuttal. Dr. Eugene Bennett, who testified at the asylum at Matteawan, was called by District Attorney Jerome, not as an expert, but to give the court a statement of Thaw's conduct during the three months he was in the Matteawan institution, beginning February 1, 1908. Dr. Baker related conversations with Thaw in which the latter told of epilepsy and nervous excitement suffered by a sister and an uncle. Thaw, the witness said, also told of the desultory way in which his education was acquired. At 7 years of age, he said, he had had St. Vitus' dance. He described an attack of pneumonia at Monte Carlo, concerning which he did not agree with the diagnosis of his physicians. Thaw told Dr. Baker, the latter said, that he used tobacco and used alcohol in moderation and denied ever using drugs. The witness said Thaw described his movements before the shooting since his return from Europe and his marriage to Miss Nesbit. He gave his age as 37, though he was 34 when he entered the hospital. Says He Is Impersonated. Thaw told the witness that at his trial some of the doctors had greatly exaggerated their estimates of his condition; that they had in mind a nephew of his, whom they had examined, who traveled under the same name, and was often taken for him. He said that his lawyer and doctors did very clever work in his defense. Mr. Baker said Thaw said to him: "If I was ever insane in my life the attack began one minute before I shot White, and ended half a minute afterward." The doctor repeated a description that Thaw gave him of the house alleged to have been maintained by Stanford White and others. He said that these men had plotted to put him in an asylum to prevent him from exposing their alleged misdeeds. "He told me that he appealed to Miss Helen Gould and was referred by her to Anthony Comstock," said Dr. Baker. "Thaw said that detectives employed by him to watch White and the latter's house informed him that he was in danger." "When he was asked him to give the substance of the detectives' reports, he refused to answer," by advice of counsel," Dr. Baker continued. "He said that his physicians and lawyers had advised him not to discuss what had occurred on the Madison Square Roof Garden the night he shot Stanford White. He volunteered, however, this much. He compared his situation at that moment to that of a man standing on the brink of a precipice, seized with an irresistible impulse to jump."

Chasing Bears

through the tall timber gave our forefathers stomachs that could digest anything. The man with his nose on a desk has to "coddle" his stomach. The best "coddler" is

"FORCE" the food that combines the life of the wheat with the soothing, invigorating tonic of barley-malt. Try it for breakfast. You will like the sweet, crisp, malty flakes.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

Your grocer sells it. No other Flaked Food is "just as good."
