

TICKETS SEELING AT A LIVELY RATE

Forecast for Good Weather Makes Business for Transportation Companies.

CROWDS WILL SEE FLEET

Special Trains to Be Run From Portland to Astoria and Seaside. Potter Goes to North Beach Points—Other Excursions.

With a rising barometer and the wind rapidly shifting to the north, good weather is assured to all people who leave Portland to see the fleet which will pass Clatsop Beach, the mouth of the Columbia and Long Beach tomorrow.

Tickets for the steamships which will cross over the bar have been selling at a lively rate and accommodations for all the boats which have been advertised to sail will be sold out long before the hour of departure from Astoria arrives. Agents of the companies at Astoria have been instructed to place tickets on sale and returns from there show a larger sale than from Portland.

Weather conditions have been such during the last five or six days that people have deferred making reservations, but with the sunshine of yesterday afternoon, coupled with a rising glass and a tendency to clear, favored more of summer, the crowds poured out and tickets were disposed of rapidly.

The steamer T. J. Potter, which will leave the Ash-street dock tonight, will carry a full list of pleasure-seekers. She will reach Astoria in time to allow all on board to have breakfast there, and will then proceed to Meglers, the new terminal of the Ilwaco Railway & Navigation Company, where passengers will be transferred to the train and taken to points on the North Beach. The most advantageous place on the North shore is North Head light station, and many people will make that their objective point.

South beach visitors will be cared for by the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Company, which will run specials from Portland and will also maintain a special service between Astoria, Seaside and Fort Stevens. Passenger officials of the railroad are assembling every available coach that can be secured in order to carry the crowds of people to the coast. They expect to handle to Astoria and Seaside to see the fleet on its way north. Every coach belonging to the line that is not out of commission will be used, and the road is borrowing equipment from other railroads in this state wherever possible.

SUPERVISING INSPECTOR HERE

Captain John Berringham Pays an Official Visit to Portland.

Captain John Berringham, Supervising Inspector of Steam Vessels, arrived from San Francisco yesterday morning on his semi-annual tour of inspection of the various offices of local inspectors in his district. Captain Berringham will proceed from Portland to Puget Sound, where he will devote considerable attention to checking up gasoline craft which will carry passengers during the visit of the fleet.

For Steamer Line to Alaska.

An effort to divert some of the Alaskan trade to the Columbia River is to be made by the Astoria Chamber of Commerce. This can be done only by putting on a line of steamships between Portland and the principal Alaskan ports, which will include Sitka, Juneau and Nome. Manager Whyte, of the Astoria organization, has addressed a communication to Secretary Gillett, of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, asking the cooperation of Portland commercial organizations. It is proposed to appoint a number of delegates from the Portland commercial bodies to meet at Astoria, to be from Astoria and Alaska in the near future to take up this matter and see that it is carried out. The meeting of the delegates will be held in Portland.

Sailors Return to Strathgyle.

The steamer Strathgyle sailed yesterday for Shanghai with a full load of lumber. The five negro sailors who refused duty at an early hour Sunday morning were returned to the vessel and she left today for Astoria. Captain Grant made no explanation of the affair. He paid off a Hindu fireman and took the steamer to sea. The fact that they held up the steamer for 26 hours and cost the owners about $500.

Many Passengers on Rose City.

The steamer, Rose City, from San Francisco, arrived yesterday afternoon with 200 passengers and a large quantity of freight. This is the largest number of passengers brought in Portland for many years by a vessel operating on the Columbia River. The larger number of passengers are persons returning from San Francisco and San Diego, where they went to catch a glimpse of the fleet.

Dolphins Placed for Warships.

Work on the dolphins which act as fenders for the ships of the Navy which have been ordered to Portland for the Rose Festival will begin this morning. Five three-pile dolphins will be set at a point on the East Side, below the Steel Bridge. At the lower end a heavy mooring buoy will be placed so that all craft will have a safe and convenient berth. The work is under the personal direction of Harbormaster Speiser.

Marine Notes.

The oil tank liner Santa Maria is discharging fuel oil at Portsmouth. The steamship Nome City arrived last night from San Francisco. She brought general cargo. The steamer Sue H. Elmore sailed from Portland for Tillamook yesterday with passengers and freight. The steamer Eureka, for Eureka and Coos Bay, sailed last night. She carried a large list of passengers.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

Its Appeal to the Voters for the Coming Election.

PORTLAND, May 18.—(To the Editor.)—In accordance with instructions to the executive committee of the Oregon State Suffrage Association, given by leading men of all parties accustomed to the management of the state, the executive committee of the Oregon State Suffrage Association, in a public meeting held at the Metropolitan Hotel, yesterday afternoon, presented to the attention of the metropolitan newspapers, as well as to the attention of the state press, a resolution which has been my humble aim for many years to co-operate with the newspaper fraternity in the promotion of every movement upon which we may passively or actively agree, if such might in any way contribute to the realization of the principle of all the people to the right of suffrage.

Appeal to Voters.

This unprecedented appeal, appearing in April and May in 242 different publications throughout the 31 counties of the state, is now, by order of the executive committee, being sent to the Portland daily press in the sincere belief that it will be accorded the same consideration in the homes and business houses that has been freely bestowed upon it by the state at large. It is in this sense that the appeal, nor is it posed as a literary effort. The Oregonian says, truly, that our amendment is the best under the stars, and the great newspaper certainly echoes the expectations of 400,000 organized women of Oregon when it says "it will probably carry."

Oregon's Opportunity.

Nobody now doubts the fact that the world-wide enfranchisement of women in civilized countries is inevitable. The States of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, in line with Australia, New Zealand, Finland, Sweden and other foreign lands in the equal rights to women are being followed the example of other countries and colonies as rapidly as her congested population and geographical position will permit. Oregon is the only state in the Union, and as far as I know, the only geographical subdivision of government in the world, where this question can be settled by a vote of one-half the people in 1908. She, and she only, is in a position to become a marked and popular leader in a government "of all the people, for all the people and by all the people" in this first decade of the 20th century. Let the new go out, on the second day of the coming June, that she has enfranchised the women and mothers within her borders, and she will give the world a free advertisement of greater advantage to the state at large, than can accrue to her by the expenditure of millions of dollars by all the "Progressive Clubs and Development Leagues" within her boundaries. The appeal to voters follows:

Men, voters, sons, brothers: I am growing old, but I cannot rest until you have given us the victory. Every hour I live in this sense is a labor of love. Every dollar I donate is a personal sacrifice. Have the faithful mothers of Oregon not a right to be heard? Give them a fair and free enfranchisement. You ought not to afford to be equipped with ballots. We are not. We are depending upon you to honor our cause in the coming election. Stand with us in this unequal contest. You know you would only compel us to repeat this appeal in 1910 if you should fail us now. But we believe you will not fail. You have but to unlock the door to the closed citadel of liberty, leaving us to choose for ourselves, exactly as you do, as to whether to vote or not to vote, at every succeeding election. Thus only can you acquit yourselves as freemen, and relieve us from the burden of securing equality with our sons before the law.

SORRY HE'D RICH

Crowd in North End Saloon Takes All Max Fisher's Money From Him.

NEWS OF MUNICIPAL COURT

Oregon Law Defines Hotel Too Closely to Suit Landlord Gunn, and Piano Below His Place Can Play After Midnight.

Max Fisher, a clerk who went out with a month's wages in his pocket and sought to impress a crowd of half-hungry unemployed men in the North End with his wealth, was literally mobbed by no less than 20 men and every cent he had taken from him—and this on the public street with hundreds of people near at hand by the victim and it is believed by the authorities, after an investigation. Fisher told of the episode from the witness stand of the Municipal Court yesterday forenoon in explaining why he walked up behind Charles McCarrick, in front of the Oregon Hotel Sunday, and demanded $100,000, and began shouting police at the top of his voice. He declared McCarrick was one of the money-mad crowd, and that he had every reason to believe McCarrick secured $6 of his money, that amount being found on the prisoner upon arrest after the seizure of the money. McCarrick denied the charge of taking the money, but admitted he did take part in the scuffle which cost Fisher what money he had, some $14.

Fisher admitted he was guided somewhat by his vanity when he invaded a saloon frequented by workmen, mostly unemployed, who were waiting everyone up for a drink. He was the best dressed man in the place, and about the only one that had a cent, excepting the bartender. He was buying several rounds of drinks those who were present say Fisher boasted of being the son of a rich man and said nothing about his own money. It was then that McCarrick stepped up and began telling how hard pressed for money some of the assembled company chanced to be. "There's good old Bill ones. He's down on his luck. Give him a dollar, young fellow," McCarrick admits he told Fisher and Fisher gave over the $100,000. McCarrick admitted he was stinging his money after the big talking he had engaged in. Then McCarrick interceded for another "poor man," and another man about help after putting out five dollar pieces, decided the luxury was becoming too expensive and started for the door.

As he gained the door, he nearly everyone in the saloon started out behind him, McCarrick leading. McCarrick overtook him and asked him for more money, saying that since he was a rich man he should help those out of work and sorely in need. Fisher said he didn't have "anything smaller than a fifty," McCarrick was persistent, Fisher said he didn't have anything smaller than a fifty, McCarrick was persistent, Fisher said he didn't have anything smaller than a fifty, McCarrick was persistent.

HARD TIMES FOR ACTORS

Over 2000 Out of Work and Actors' Fund Overdrawn.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The coming summer gives every promise of being the hardest one in years for the members of the theatrical profession. It has been a long time since there has been as disastrous a season, theatrically, as the one just closed, and there is no prospect of any better times for the actor for many months. In fact, until after the election next fall. In the height of the season it was estimated that more than 2000 actors and actresses were out of work in New York, the largest number of unemployed in the profession for many years. A large number of companies that started in the theatrical season, for the prospect of success were forced to close soon after the coming of the financial depression which followed close upon the opening of the theatrical season. For this reason, even among actors that were employed early in the season, thousands were forced to be satisfied with very short

"I had a distressed feeling after eating, often followed by terrible vomiting spells," says Mrs. William Duely, of 43 Lucas avenue, Kingston, N. Y., "and became subject to deathly sick headaches. I was constantly belching gas in my efforts to relieve my stomach. I was in this condition for nearly three and a half years, although I tried a number of doctors. I was discouraged with them all, when I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes helped me wonderfully. I continued their use until cured and have had no signs of stomach trouble since."

Contagious Blood Poison

I cure this leprous disease completely. The system is thoroughly cleansed and every poisonous taint removed. seasons, and were therefore unable to pay by the amounts required to keep them through the summer when work in their profession is always slack.

The actors' fund, the great charity of the theatrical profession, is not in a position to carry on the work which it will be asked to do, for at the annual meeting held a few days ago a deficiency of more than $20,000 on the year's work was reported. The question of having through the summer is a serious one to hundreds of players, and Cooney Island and other similar resorts are overrun with members of the profession who are seeking work of any sort that will provide food for the summer months. But, in spite of the efforts of managers and others to do all in their power to assist those out of employment with money, it is certain there will be considerable suffering among members of the profession during the coming months.
