TESTS ARE MADE OF NEW SIGNALS

Submarine Connection With Approaching Vessels Is Placed on Trial.

TERROR OF FOG RELIEVED

Lightships at Columbia Bar and Umatilla Shoals Experimenting With Apparatus While Battleship Fleet Is Passing North.

Under instructions from the local lighthouse inspector, Commander P. J. Werlich, a test is being made of the submarine signal system. The tests were undertaken yesterday off the Columbia from lightship 88, formerly 50, and will be continued from lightship 67, Umatilla reef, 16 miles south of Puget Sound.

This time was chosen for making these tests for the reason that the vessels of the battleship fleet are equipped with receiving apparatus, and as former tests were made by connection with lighthouse tenders, the present will afford an opportunity to fix distances at which the signals will be of useful service.

The submarine signal system was suggested by a homely experiment. Boys in swimming, from time immemorial have gone under water and knocked two small rocks together the tapping of which their companions can hear at considerable distances. This carrying of sound under water was experimented with by the inventor of the bell signal until the apparatus now being tested at the mouth of the Columbia was constructed. The signal has been in use on the Atlantic with success for about two years. Atlantic liners approaching New York harbor in foggy weather have been able to pick up lightships by this means.

If the tests being made prove satisfactory, the passenger vessels of this Coast will doubtless hasten to be equipped with receiving apparatus, and in fact probably some of them are already, for it is presumed the system is in operation off San Francisco harbor, but, as far as known, no vessels coming to this port are so equipped.

The apparatus consists of a submerged sounder made of bell metal, about two feet in diameter, the tapper being operated from the deck. The signal is put over the side of the lightship, well forward, and submerged. The number of the lightship is sounded at intervals, similar to the plan of a fire-alarm signal. For instance, lightship 88, off Columbia bar, will signal eight taps, then an interval, then eight taps. The receiver on an approaching vessel will record the number and the navigator will be enabled to identify the proximity of a lightship. The tests being made will determine the distances at which the signals can be depended on and their feasibility demonstrated for use at the two points named.

Launch Steamer at Newport.

NEWPORT, Or., May 20.—The Newport Navigation Company this afternoon successfully launched the new steamer, Newport, from their yards at Yaquina. At 4 o'clock all was in readiness and the blocks were cleared away. As the vessel started from its cradle Mrs. O. F. Jacobson broke a bottle of wine over the bows, saying, "I christen thee Newport." The launching was witnessed by a large crowd of people brought from Newport by an excursion. The dimensions of the new vessel are 78 feet over all, with 16-foot beam. As soon as completed and inspected the boat will take the place of the steamer L. M. Richardson now on the route between Yaquina and Newport. The craft is especially built and well-equipped for this service.

Trouble Among Fishermen.

ASTORIA, Or., May 20.—(Special.)—At a representative meeting of the different fishing interests of the lower river yesterday, a resolution was adopted declaring that the pound nets and seines are not more destructive to salmon than the gill nets. Mr. Lorentsen and Mr. Rosenberg, of the gill net organization, were asked to sign the resolution, but refused to do so. Pound net and seine men take this to mean that if the gill netters are successful in removing the wheels from the upper river they will endeavor next to secure the removal of all stationary fishing appliances on the lower river.

Gold Exports Pass $30,000,000.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Engagements of gold for export passed the $30,000,000 mark today. The Russo-Chinese Bank took $250,000 for Germany; Lazard Freres, $100,000 for France; and Goldman Sachs & Co., $500,000, for Germany; and Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. $55,000, also for Germany. This makes the total on the present movement $30,855,000.

Marine Notes.

The Johan Poulsen is at Columbia dock No. 2.

The Asiatic liner Alesia is loading at the Portland Flouring Mills.

After delay at Astoria the Sue Elmore sailed yesterday afternoon for Tillamook.

The new lumber carrier, Olsen & Mahoney, is on her maiden trip to this port, calling at Rainier.

The steamer Breakwater left down last night for Coos Bay with a large cargo and a number of passengers.

Carrying 16,000 barrels of cement consigned to Kerr, Gifford & Co., the Italian bark Emanuel Accame is due to arrive today.

The British steamer Yeddo, which is loading at Tongue Point, will be brought up to finish cargo of lumber for Chinese points.

Two steamers that went to the mouth of the Columbia, the Roanoke and Alliance, were turned back yesterday afternoon and left up at 4 P. M.

WHEN BEER IS DETHRONED

Writer Asks Who Will Then Employ Idle Brewery Workmen.

PORTLAND, May 19.—(To the Editor.)—Can we afford to destroy the third largest manufacturing business in the United States? This is the question which is confronting the voters of this country, and it must be faced squarely. Nine hundred million dollars is invested in United States Steel manufactures, $600,000,000 in the manufacture of textile fabrics and $580,000,000 in this country in the manufacture of beer.

Will it be possible for anti-liquor interests of the country to badger and persecute a business of this magnitude, without bringing on hard times? History certainly points to a different conclusion. Cut off the annual salary list of $300,000,000 now paid by the brewers and throw the thousands of men in their employment out of their positions, and there must be hard times.

I believe it is time for the voters of this country to wake up to the situation. They have been listening long enough to the palaver of such men as Rev. Mr. Knodell and other hired orators of the Anti-Saloon League, taking what they hear on faith. The time has arrived when every man should start a personal investigation of the situation. C. E. BOWEN.

USED TO STOP UP HOLE

Painting Worth $500 Stuffed in a Broken Window.

NEW YORK, May 20.—That an effort was made to stop a hole in a cellar window with a $500 oil painting was the story told to a jury in the Court of General Sessions, where Charles McDermott was on trial, charged with stealing two oil paintings valued at $500 each from "Sherry's" September 1, 1907.

These pictures were cut from the frames, and it is charged that McDermott, who is an ironworker and was employed on the roof of a building adjoining Sherry's, took them. "When he brought the piece of oilcloth home," his mother testified, "he told me he had paid 25 cents, and I told him he had been stuck. It was not large enough for the table and I tried to use it to stop a hole in a cellar window, where the glass had been broken, and it was not good for that."

TACOMA, May 20.—While walking across the room at her home, carrying her infant son, Mrs. Leo G. Hague fell in a faint. The babe dropped from her arms and sustained concussion of the brain, from which it died almost instantly.

OPPOSITION FROM BAND OF FAKERS

Pastor of First Spiritualist Church Indorses Cottel's Ordinance.

GIVES PUBLIC PROTECTION

Weak-Minded and Unsophisticated Now at Mercy of Conscienceless Dabblers in the Occult, Says H. D. Barrett.

Harrison D. Barrett, pastor of the First Spiritualist Society, heartily indorses Councilman Cottel's ordinance forbidding the practice of clairvoyancy and kindred arts for fraudulent purposes. Mr. Barrett contends that the ordinance is a just and progressive measure, for the protection of the public from a conscienceless band of fakers. Discussing the pending ordinance last night, Mr. Barrett said:

My attention has been called to an article in The Oregonian of Sunday morning relating to the now famous ordinance introduced by Councilman Cottel at the last meeting of the body of which he is a member. I want to corroborate the statements made by Dr. Cottel in regard to the introduction of that measure. He was not, as he well stated, the author of the measure. He presented it in compliance with the request made by many people who are believers in the higher Spiritualism that is now occupying the attention of the savants and scientists of the world. The document was handed to him by one of the members of the Council who asked his opinion. He simply marked it "By request," and passed it on. This was a most courteous act on his part and was certainly appreciated by those who are benefitted by the provisions of the measure.

What does this new ordinance provide? First, it repeals the present ordinance compelling ministers of the religion of Spiritualism, ordained according to the usages thereof, to pay an unjust license fee of $50 a year. It places them, by this repeal, upon equal footing with the clergymen of other denominations. Why should Spiritualist ministers and their friends take exceptions to the repeal of the measure that now discriminates against them so unjustly?

In the second place, it wisely prohibits charlatans, counterfeiters and all-round fakers from advertising for the purpose of entrapping the unwary to filch from them their hard earnings. It does not prohibit the practice or use of psychic powers in any way whatsoever. It does not prohibit ministers of any denomination from filling their vocations according to the spirit of wisdom that is given unto them. It does not make mediumship a felony; nor does it declare that people shall not receive advice in business affairs if they wish to do so. It is simply a wise, just and progressive measure designed to protect people from the machinations of those who have no consciences and are merely seeking to exploit the people out of their dollars.

This ordinance does not interfere with any newspaper, but it does prohibit counterfeiters using the columns of the newspapers to advertise their wares. The penalty is upon the counterfeiter, and not upon the paper.

It proscribes the obtaining of money and property by fraudulent devices and practices in the name of any religion in the City of Portland. Can any honest man or woman take exceptions to this prohibition or to the infliction of penalties in case it is violated?

It proscribes the holding of any public or private meeting in the name of spiritualism, or any other religious body, at which fraud or deception of any kind is introduced or allowed to be practiced. Is it possible that there is a spiritualist in the City of Portland who objects to this proposition? Is there any honest man or woman who can take exception to it? For one, I deem it a most beneficent and helpful police regulation, and I trust that our Council will pass the measure as it stands, with such amendments as will fit it to the state law of Oregon.

In this city within the last few years a wealthy citizen who stood high in the esteem of his friends and neighbors was victimized by a designing woman, inveigled into a marriage with her and induced to turn over to her all of his property. As soon as she obtained the property she turned him adrift and left him to the cold charity of the world. He had no redress; the law would not protect him. He had to leave the city, and is now in exile in a distant city, depending upon the charity of his friends for his living. It is to prevent such crimes as this that this ordinance is further sought.

A gentleman called upon me today and informed me that he was cognizant of the fact that a certain servant girl who had saved $600 by hard labor became the unconscious victim of one of the glaring advertisers in this city, lost all of her money and was rendered helpless and homeless thereby. Is it possible that there is a person in this city who will sign a remonstrance against an ordinance designed to prevent such fearful crimes as this?

I know that some of these loud advertisers have hired agents to locate aged and wealthy widows and widowers to induce them to visit these wicked counterfeiters, whose business it becomes to exploit them. A leading attorney in the city informed me that he knew of one man who was offered $500 to do this work in respect to two individuals only. Shall such things go on unrebuked at the hands of the clean-thinking citizens of this metropolis of the Northwest.

Men and women who are heart-broken, in search of comfort for their bitter sorrows, occasionad by the death of some loved one, are led by these glaring advertisements to the parlors of these conscienceless fiends and there deliberately robbed in the name of their sacred dead. Shall such practices longer pass unnoticed? God forbid that such should be the verdict of the citizens of Portland.

Many instances are on record where men and women have been induced to place gold, silver, precious jewels and valuables of all kinds in the hands of these fakers in order that the same might be magnetized and draw unto their owners more of this world's goods and attract to them the spirits of their loved ones in the Kingdom of God. At one time there were not less than 57 of these rascals plying their trade in Portland.

At a public meeting last night I was publicly denounced for opposing fraud and chicanery by advocating the passage of this ordinance which means the cleaning up of the civic life of our great and progressive city. Remonstrances were introduced in no less than two church societies and honest people were induced to sign them on the ground that the ordinance was class legislation and an interference with sacred individual rights. Those who have signed these remonstrances have thereby arrayed themselves on the side of the people who are fleecing their fellow citizens and destroying their peace of mind.

Saturday evening a friend of mine, prominent in business walks in Portland, sought me and cautioned me against taking further action in this matter on the ground that I would be slugged by some of the fraternity when I was not on my guard. Is it possible that people of Portland are willing to sign papers in support of the slugger and against those who are seeking to remove him from the confines of our fair city?

This nefarious gang is ubiquitous. Its name is legion. It has its grips, signals, passwords, vocabularies, books of exchange, paraphernalia, and all other things that belong to the realm of legerdemain. Honest men and women have signed papers remonstrating against the removal of these tricksters from our midst. As a citizen and a clergyman, I ask that the right be sustained and that the hands of our City Council be upheld in the good work they are seeking to do for us. Let us go to them en masse and ask for this very necessary and helpful legislation.

In conclusion, let me say that the First Spiritual Society of Portland, at its last session, 300 people being present, unanimously voted to request the passage of the ordinance and directed its pastor to go before the proper committee to urge its adoption. It is to be hoped that other churches will follow the praiseworthy example thus set for them.

CALLS "OREGONIA" SPANISH

Says Etymologically It Means "Land of People With Big Ears."

PORTLAND, May 19.—(To the Editor.)—Various suggestions have appeared in The Oregonian from time to time as to the origin and meaning of the name of this state, but none of them appears to be convincing.

In commenting editorially upon the suggestion of Joaquin Miller that the name is derived from a certain Spanish word (I believe the word was "oreja," meaning ear) The Oregonian stated that the only definite fact in regard to the matter is that the word "Oregon" first appeared in a book describing the travels of Jonathan Carver, about the year 1764. I believe I can explain the origin of this word in a manner more satisfactory than anything I have yet seen.

In volume 1, "explanation of the Valley of the Amazon," published by the United States Government printer in 1854, page 329, appears this sentence: "The inhabitants are principally 'Oregones,' or 'Big Ears,' from the custom of introducing a bit of wood into a slit in the ear and gradually increasing the size of it until the lobe hangs upon the shoulder."

Lieutenant Herndon, United States Navy, who made this explanation and submitted the report, found there Indians hundreds of miles from the sources of the Amazon in a region inhabited by civilized men, but to which Spanish missionaries or adventurers had evidently penetrated and given the Indians this name, which they had retained. The suffix "gon" added to the root of a Spanish noun signifies "big." Thus "oreja," "an ear"; "Oregon," "a big ear." Similarly, the early Spanish navigators in passing the southern shores of South America and observing the huge foot prints in the sand of the gigantic barefooted natives of that region, exclaimed, "patagon," "big foot," "Pata," "a foot," "patagon," "a big foot"; whence is derived "Patagonia," "the land of the people with the big feet," by which name the southern portion of South America was known in the geographies until it was absorbed by Argentina and Chile.

Now, what is the application of this South American name to the river known as the Columbia in the Northwestern United States? Simply this—that for more than 100 years before the journey of Lewis and Clark, the Spanish settlement of Santa Fe was a center of trade for nearly all the Indians of the West and that from thence Spanish words were widely diffused among them; that among the Indians dwelling along the banks of the Columbia and its tributaries there were many tribes having the custom of wearing large ear ornaments; that under similar circumstances the Spanish people would speak of them by the same name, "Oregones," and that this name would be transferred to the river whose banks they inhabited.

Captain Lewis states in the Journal of Lewis and Clark that the first Indians whom he met after crossing the Rocky Mountains were the Shoshones, to which tribe Sacajawea belonged. He states that these Indians occupied the river now known as the Snake and that they traded with the Spanish at Santa Fe for mules, saddles, bridles and various other articles, and that they retained Spanish names for various articles. He also states that these Shoshones crossed the Rocky Mountains every Summer and hunted buffalo.

I have not seen Jonathan Carver's book of travels, but from what I have read about it I understand that he explored the headwaters of the Mississippi, or the Missouri. At any rate, he did not cross the Rocky Mountains. It seems probable that he was told of the great river beyond the mountains and that the Indian who informed him, having no name of his own for it, gave him the name "Oregon," by which he (the Indian) had heard the Shoshones speak of it, deriving it from Spanish sources.

In view of this explanation it appears that "Oregonia," instead of being the "land of the people with the webbed feet," is etymologically the "land of the people with the big ears." W. H. C.

Denver Mayor Re-elected.

DENVER, May 20.—Robert W. Speer, candidate of one faction of the local Democracy and of the Business Men's League, was re-elected Mayor of Denver for four years yesterday by a majority of about 2500 over Horace Phelps, Republican. Phelps was supported by former United States Senator Thomas M. Patterson and his faction of the Democrats. The results as to the remainder of the ticket are mixed, the Republicans electing their candidate for Auditor and some of the other offices. The anti-saloon forces were victorious in five of the eight wards in which local option was an issue.

Will Expose Fakers.

A meeting of the friends of the Cottel ordinance will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Empire Theater, Twelfth and Morrison streets. All those interested in the movement which the ordinance is designed to cover are invited to attend. Mr. Barrett will speak on "The Lights and Shadows of Spiritualism," in which the methods of palmists, fortune tellers and clairvoyants will be exposed and denounced.

VETERAN OF OREGON EXPRESS SERVICE DIES IN WALLA WALLA

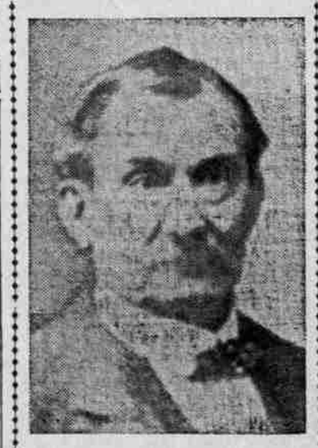
James P. Goodhue Carried Mail to Corvallis in 1855 and Was Purser on the Steamer Active.

JAMES P. GOODHUE, 74 years old, one of the pioneers of Oregon, died in Walla Walla, Sunday at 6 P. M. He was ill only a few hours, and his sudden death, caused by heart failure, was a great surprise and shock to his relatives and many friends. In spite of his age, he was most vigorous, and was active in his administration of the affairs of the Northern Express Company, for whom he was agent, until the day of his death.

Mr. Goodhue, who was a great-grandson of General Putnam, of Revolutionary fame, left New York City in 1852 for Oregon, on the fastest clipper ship of that time, the Siren, arriving in San Francisco early in the following year. In 1855 he was employed by Judge Lawson to carry the mail and express to Colonel Nesmith at Corvallis. Later, he clerked for "Nat" Lane, at Corvallis, until the breaking out of the Rogue River Indian War, in 1856. He was purser on the Columbia River steamer Belle, with Captain Richard Williams, when Jacob Kamm, of Portland, was engineer. He was transfer agent for the Government at the Cascades, and carried express to General Phil Sheridan, then Lieutenant of the Fourth Infantry, at Grand Ronde. In 1860, he came to Fort Walla Walla as wagon forge master, where he remained until 1867, when he went to the placer-mining camps of Bear Gulch, Montana. Later, he was purser on the steamer Active, plying between Victoria and Sitka, Alaska.

During this period, shortly after Alaska was purchased by the United States, Secretary Seward made his historical trip on the Active, to view his purchase. The captain of the Active took Mr. Seward to task for "purchasing that God-forsaken country of Alaska, to pester the unlucky navigators who were compelled to make the voyage with poor Russian charts." Secretary Seward replied: "The time will come when you will acknowledge that the United States made a good bargain when it bought Alaska for $7,000,000." Mr. Goodhue said that even before he left the ocean they had brought down enough gold to more than pay for the territory.

Mr. Goodhue was appointed by President Villard, of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, as transfer agent at South Ainsworth, where he established a supply station, and thence went to Wallula, where he remained as transfer agent eight years, going to Walla Walla in 1891, where he had been in charge of the Northern Express Company's office for the past 17 years, and was liked and respected as few men have been by their fellow-citizens.



The Late James P. Goodhue.

Mr. Goodhue was a veteran Oddfellow, joining Columbia Lodge No. 2 at Victoria, B. C., in 1870, transferring his membership to Trinity Lodge in Walla Walla during 1892, when it was installed. He was its first past grand, and one of the first representatives to the grand lodge at the meetings held in Walla Walla in 1892, and in Olympia in 1893. In Columbia Lodge, he passed the chairs twice, and was several times a representative to the grand lodge, in which he held the office of grand guardian for a term of years.

Mr. Goodhue was born in Salem, Mass., March 11, 1834. The following children survive him: C. H. Goodhue, chief clerk for M. G. Hall, superintendent of the Northern Express Company, Portland; Frank W. Goodhue, capitalist, of Seattle; James P. Goodhue, Jr., in mercantile business, Salem, Mass.; Mrs. W. H. Moffett, Mrs. H. W. Martin, and Lottie P. Goodhue, Walla Walla.

The funeral was held in Walla Walla, Wednesday at 2 P. M.

IMPORTANT TO EVERY Man With DISEASE

DR. TAYLOR, The Leading Specialist.

MY FEE ONLY

$10

In Any Uncomplicated Case.

Progress in the study of contracted disorders in the past few years has resulted in my advanced methods of securing permanent results. In my practice I use special methods of irrigation and a method of my own devising for installations that cure gonorrhoea PERMANENTLY in from 3 to 10 days. I make frequent inspections of the canal by means of a small electric light, which enables me to see and to treat each inflamed part separately; and I am also enabled to show the patient himself the conditions that actually exist. Following my treatment there are no evil after-results. There is no stricture to fear nor the slightest chance of a chronic condition (sometimes called gleet), but there is COMPLETE healing of the inflamed and poisoned tissue. Never use harsh injections or drastic internal remedies to stop the discharge, for if you do it is certain that in the future you will find your state worse than ever. I guarantee you a PERFECT AND PROMPT CURE, and as well as that,

YOU CAN PAY WHEN CURED

If this announcement does not have particular reference to YOUR trouble, drop in and tell me what bothers you. I shall be glad to give you advice as to your condition that is sure to be of benefit to you. That will cost you nothing. It will save you an amount of nervous suffering and MAY greatly PROLONG YOUR LIFE. Be wise; don't delay. As I have stated frequently, to delay and neglect all the very serious and so-called "incurable" diseases are due.

Weakness

Functional weakness in men is in reality a comparatively simple ailment, and is but a symptom of local disorder, a state of chronic inflammation of the prostate gland. No stimulating treatment, whether internal or locally applied, can do more than excite temporary activity. By my system of local treatment I restore absolutely normal conditions throughout the organs involved, which promptly results in complete and permanent restoration of strength and vigor. This treatment is original with me, and is the only radical and certain cure yet devised.

Varicocele

Varicocele is a relaxation, knotting and twisting of the most vital blood vessels of the organic system. It stagnates the local circulation and interferes with the processes of waste and repair. Neglect brings derangement of functions and injury to the general health. Most physicians resort to surgical operations and hospital treatment. I cure Varicocele in one week without operations, pain or detention from business. My cures are absolutely permanent and no ill effects whatever can follow my treatment.

Contracted Diseases

I have reduced the time required for curing contracted disorders about one-half. This is an important achievement. It replaces danger with safety. It forestalls chronic complications. It removes the infection and inflammation before that vital center, the prostate gland, can become involved. To many men it means the difference between perfect health and a lifetime of misery and functional weakness. My method is mine alone. My treatment is original. In some features it resembles the ordinary. In its chief essentials it is different. It is safe, prompt and thorough.

The above, together with Organic Weakness, Nerve Debilitation, Lost Vigor, Specific Blood Poison, Stricture, Piles and kindred ailments constitutes my specialty and are the only diseases I treat.

Consultation Free

I state nothing in my announcements but the straight, square truth. It will cost you nothing to call and talk over your case. You can find out all about your trouble and you can later arrange to begin treatment any time you like. My offices, comprising 10 rooms, are the largest, most elegant and best equipped in the West.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

The deep, underlying cause of every old sore is a bad condition of the blood. This vital fluid has become infected with some germ or poison which prevents the place from healing. This infection may be the result of an inactive, sluggish condition of the system leaving the refuse matter in the body to be absorbed into the circulation instead of throwing it off through the usual channels of nature. Another cause is the weakening or polluting of this life-stream from hereditary taints, or from the effects of a long spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system. When the blood is in this condition a sore cannot heal because the impurities with which the circulation is filled are being constantly discharged into the place to irritate and inflame the tissues and further disease the surrounding flesh. The only treatment that can do any good is one that removes the cause, and for this purpose nothing equals S. S. S. It begins at the fountain head of the trouble and drives out all germs, impurities and poisons, and then the place, being supplied with rich, pure blood, heals naturally and permanently. Local applications assist in cleansing the place, but a cure can only be affected through a purification of the blood. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free.
