LAMPBLACK GOES

Streetwalks Not to Be Colored, Says Committee.

AGAINST LONG PETITION

Dr. Victoria Hampton, Backed Up by 28 Other Physicians, Protests Against Repeal of Ordinance. Paving is Still Delayed.

Although presented with a masterful argument by Dr. Victoria Hampton, backed up by a petition signed by 28 prominent physicians and eye specialists of Portland, the street committee of the City Council yesterday morning decided to recommend that the municipal lawmakers repeal the ordinance requiring that all sidewalk cement henceforth be colored with lampblack. More than half an hour was devoted to the discussion of the question, during which time several representative citizens spoke, presenting their opinions on both sides of the issue. Each faction was about evenly represented and the discussion was heated, almost bordering on an outward demonstration several times.

That Dr. Hampton was sincere in her belief that the bright white cement was exceptionally dangerous to the eyes, especially at times during the day when the sun was shining the brightest, there was no room for doubt, inasmuch as she had the signatures of more than a score of local practitioners backing up her assertions.

Dislike Blotched Appearance. The only objectionable feature to the coloring of the sidewalks was the fact that the appearance of two shades of cement would give the sidewalks of the city a blotched appearance. This argument was apparently considered more seriously than that put forth by the opposing faction.

Pedestrian action of the committee in regard to the improvement of Williams avenue with Haasam pavement, a new composition of street-paving material which the property-owners petitioned for, was postponed because of an effort on foot to change the width of the thoroughfare. This, as is expected, will probably be accomplished before the next meeting of the committee. It is the desire of the committee to be in a position to dispose of the whole question at the same time.

During the discussion of the issue a debate between Councilmen Vaughn and Concanon took place over the advisability of recommending the Haasam pavement to the Council.

Vaughn and Concanon Dispute.

Concanon held that he did not believe the city should be made to suffer merely for the purpose of allowing a certain few people in one section of the town the privilege of experimenting in street pavement. Vaughn was heartily in favor of giving the new pavement a trial, although he admitted that he had his doubts about its proving satisfactory. Vaughn also defended his end of the argument by stating that as there are only two paving companies in business in this city, the competition for the city's paving work.

The two opposing factions in the Piedmont street paving issue met with the committee during the meeting to give vent to their feelings regarding the paving of Jessup street and Rodney and Mallory avenues. A hard-surface pavement on the streets is wanted by some of the property-owners, while others want the streets leveled to the grade and rolled. Several other minor matters came up in connection with the issue and the committee postponed action until its next meeting.

Roads to Observe Memorial Day.

General Manager O'Brien, of the Harman line in this territory, sent out an order yesterday to the heads of the various departments of the O. R. & N. and Southern Pacific lines in Oregon directing that so far as practical, all activities of the railroads cease altogether on May 30 to permit the employees of the allied lines to participate in the observance of Decoration day. The same order carried practically the same direction in relation to election day, Monday, June 1.

HIBERNIANS AT CARNIVAL

LOYAL SONS OF ERIN ATTEND ALBINA STREET FAIR.

Democratic Candidates Also on Hand, and Their Speeches Are Received With Approval.

The most sanguine expectations of the Catholic Young Men's Club were exceeded by the tremendous throng which congregated at their street fair and carnival at Williams avenue and Morris street at Williams street and Morris street at last night. It was Hibernian night, and the loyal sons of Erin were out in force. Incidentally, the daughters were there, too, and between them they had everything their own way. Even genial Weinberger, the generously inclined, as well as proportioned, proprietor of the "country store," changed his nativity for the time being, and conducted himself as would do credit to a scion of the ancient kings of Ireland.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians is noted for the energy in which it puts through a programme. Last night the organization visited the street fair in a body, and if any of them missed any portion of the grand array of attractions it was because they were so well pleased with the attractions they did visit that they spent longer intervals there than they had intended.

In the spacious auditorium of the clubhouse the leaders of the organization delivered short and appropriate addresses relative to the splendid cause for the benefit of which the carnival is being held. Later in the evening the principal speakers of the Democratic County Central Committee and several of the Democratic candidates for public office, appeared before the visitors at the fair and gave short talks in the interest of the ticket.

District Attorney John Manning spoke briefly on his policy, explaining to the assembled throng the methods pursued by him in bringing the officials of the wrecked Title Guarantee & Trust Company Bank to an accounting at the bar of justice. Mr. Manning's remarks were well received and when he had concluded he was greeted with shouts of approval. Tom M. Word, the Democratic nominee for Sheriff, was also received with demonstrations of approval, as was John A. Jeffrey for Congress, Oglesby Young for Railway Commissioner and A. King Wilcox for Representative.

The street fair and carnival will continue for two more nights, according to the original programme, but in some quarters the proposition to continue the same until Saturday night is being agitated. This matter has not yet been definitely settled, but will probably be decided upon today.

An additional feature of last night was the broncho busting stunt given by William West, who performed some startling feats of horsemanship in the big baseball and football park of the Catholic Young Men's Club just across the street from the carnival grounds. West will repeat his riding performance tonight at 7:30 o'clock, and another added attraction at the carnival tonight will be Professor Larry Larromore's band of troubadours from the Portland Y. M. C. A. Several good boxing and wrestling bouts will also be held in the big auditorium.

DAMROSCH GETS OVATION

Great Conductor Receives Tremendous Praise in California.

"After an absence of several years," said the San Francisco Chronicle of the 19th, "Walter Damrosch, with that splendid organization of musicians, the New York Symphony Orchestra, has returned to give us a new musical inspiration. He is the same simple, great, inspired conductor that we knew of old, although time has silvered his temples and added a few classic lines to that serious face. He shows the same camaraderie and consideration for his men, while they look upon him as a deity, and play for him as they would for no other director who ever swayed a baton.

"The orchestra is quite beyond criticism. It probably comes as near perfection as it is possible to attain. San Francisco certainly will not hear any better symphony orchestra than this magnificent body of musicians, every one of whom is an artist and capable of solo work on the concert programme."

Portland will have the opportunity of hearing this great orchestra under its famous leader in three fine programmes on Wednesday evening, June 3 and Thursday matinee and evening, June 4, at the Armory, where they will appear under the direction of Lois Steers-Wynn Coman.

LARGE FORCE IS AT WORK

Preparations for Pain's Fireworks Going On Busily.

A large force of men is engaged at Multnomah athletic field preparing for the advent of Pain's fireworks spectacle, which is to be first presented in Portland next Saturday night. The new grandstand is to be a permanent one, extending across the field on the west side, and capable of seating several thousand persons. The "City of Naples" scenery will extend the length of the field, about 200 feet from the grandstand, and back of this is constructed the volcano which at the close of the holiday fete produces such havoc by its fiery eruptions. Dressing-rooms for the 350 performers, athletes, specialists, soldiers and actors participating in the gorgeous spectacle, depicting a holiday in Naples when visited by the King and Queen of Italy. Sports, processions, ballets, illuminations and music temporarily attract the attention of the populace from their ever-present enemy, Mount Vesuvius, which towers majestically in the background. A terrible outburst of flame, smoke and ashes from the volcano crater occurs, while torrents of lava pour down the mountain side and smalt the buildings of the city, which fall and burn with a realism almost too natural for enjoyment. Immediately following the thrilling scene comes a gigantic fireworks display, a 1500 programme being given each evening by the Pain forces, introducing many new features of the pyrotechnic art. The large set pieces and special features will be changed nightly.
