WASHINGTON, May 29.—While no formal announcement has been made, it may be stated definitely that Representative Theodore Burton, of Ohlo, will present the name of Secretary Taft to the Chicago convention.

Representative Burton, since the institution of Secretary Taft's preliminary campaign, has been one of his closest friends, and is regarded as one of the best representatives of all that Secretary Taft stands for in the United States.

of the best representatives of all that Secretary Taft stands for in the United States.

Mr. Burton will leave Washington in two or three days for Hot Springs, Va., to take a needed rest. While he is there he will probably prepare his address nominating Secretary Taft. He will return to Washington before he leaves for Chicago to attend the convention. It is likely that he will go directly to Chicago from this city about June 12 or 13.

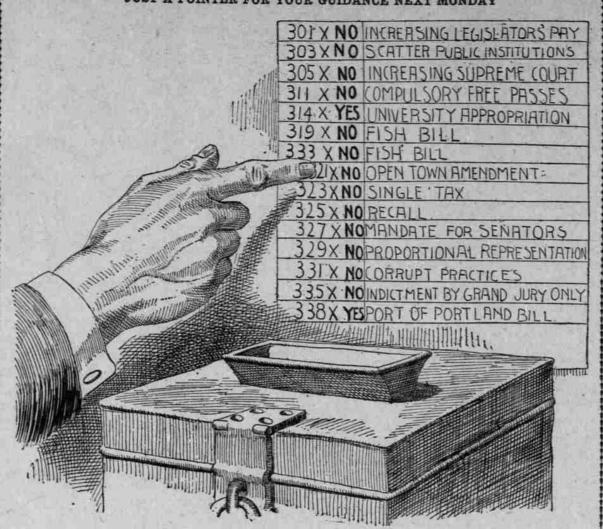

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, will make a seconding speech on Mr. Taft's nomination. Other seconding speeches will be delivered by George A. Knight, of California; Senator Borah, of Idaho, and probably by Senator Long, of Kansas. While no definite announcement can be made at this time, it is generally accepted as a fact that Senator Hopkins will be the chairman of the committee on resolutions.

BY ARTHUR A. GREENE.
LARGE audience greeted John Drew A last night at the Hellig in his newest offering, "My Wife." It has been a good many years since the distinguished Coast and consequently his visit to Portland is considerable of an event. Drew could not have asked for a better hearing from a provincial town than was given him. He is the scion of a line of American actors that amounts to a stage aristocracy and this, like all other democracies, is quick on the knee-hinges when in the presence of royalty. Conour stage artists and is voted great by se who acclaim. For almost a generation he has been recognized as a dominant factor in our theatricals and now at the age of 54, apparently as young as he was a decade ago, the senior member of the Drew family holds his own just meed of devotion as his due from the people who buy theater

The people of these outlying provinces have watched him from afar so religiously that the announcement of his coming was signal for rejoicing. That his present Portland engagement is successful was forcordained long ago.

Mr. Drew is supported by a company that does its several parts so perfectly that it seems as though someone had seems as though some that it seems as though someone had worked it all out by a system of plane and solid mathematics. Perdinand Gottschalk, than whom there are few better, brought the much-to-be-desired touch of spontaneity to the performance and consequently his work in his comparatively trivial role received the consideration from the audience that he deserved, because he demanded such recognition.

The much exploited Billie Burke, a rine much exposited Billie Burke, a pretty girl who is considered an actress of merit by a majority of theater-goers, has the part opposite the star. She possesses a considerable degree of magnetism, and with youth and grace in her favor, makes all that could be expected of her of the role of the girl-wife.

Dorothy Tennant, an excellent actress, pleasantly remembered from Savage's "College Widow," has the feminine part next in importance to Miss Burke's and as might be expected, plays it well.

Among the other members of the company none rise appreciably above the others, but all succeed in maintaining the average that is expected of a metropolitan organization. The settings are things of beauty, the stage being splendidly dressed in each act. pretty girl who is considered an of merit by a majority of theate

"My Wife" is a farcical comedy of no great pith, translated from the French by Michael Morton. It is in four acts and concerns the misadventures of a frivolous but innocent-very innocent young woman, who marries a middle-aged guardian as a matter of convenience, with the understanding that she is to be given a divorce in order that is to be given a divorce in order that she may become the wife of the man she really thinks she loves. Everybody can easily figure out, without the use of pencil and paper, that she eventually fails in love with the middle-aged guardian-husband. That is the story, with some delightful comedy by Ferdinand Gottschalk, and one or two of the supporting company.

As a sartorial play the place is worth going far to see and as one of the big

CONVICTED OF RAISING PRICE TO SEATTLE CONSUMERS.

Prosecution Declares Verdict Means Suit Against All Similar Combinations on Food Supplies.

SEATTLE, May 2 .- A. Z. Erlekson, dairyman, was today convicted of con-spiracy to raise the price of milk. The jury was out but 20 minutes. Assistant jury was out but 30 minutes. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney George J. Vandeever, who prosecuted the case, told the jury in his closing address that if they brought in a verdict of guilty it meant that every combination in King County that had to do with the fixing of artificial prices on the necessities of life would be prosecuted and convicted if possible. The jury was assured that this was but the beginning of the fight, and if they falled to convict it would be useless to begin other actions for conspiracy.

The offense charged against Mr. Erickand is a commion law offense and is punishable by the same penalties as a misdemeanor. He can be fined up to a maximum of $500 or imprisoned in the county jail for as long a term as, one year, or both. F. W. Anderson, S. Stray, J. C.

P. J. Ray, will go to his aged widow. Plans that had been arranged by Mr. Mann for building an old people's home will be carried out in full by Mrs. Mann. With no further delay than until the estate can be disposed of, Mr. Menn's wishes in regard to the home will be looked after as originally planned.

planned.

Mr. Mann's property is scattered over considerable territory, but the bulk of it is said to be in this city. The aged ploneer came to Oregon from California in 1881 and fought in the Indian Wars in the state. His initial business venture in Oregon was an investment in mining properties in the Eastern part of the state. Later he made additional mining investments in Idaho. All his ventures turned out well and the returns from his mines he reinvested in Portland real estate. His most valuable piece of property in this city is the block on Fourth and Morrison streets, occupied by Ben Selling.

Mr. Mann was a devoted horseman and surrounded himself with some fine, blooded animals. His stock consisted of some of the best horses in the West. He leaves no children, although there is a foster son, who, according to his attorney, was never legally adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Mann.

Mr. Mann very recently bought a large tract of land on the northwest corner of the Ladd farm and this property is to be the site of the old people's home, the crecting of which he had always considered as his pet hobby.
