RIVER AT A STAND

Highest Stage Will Be Reached Tuesday.

SNOW MELTS IN ROCKIES

Water Covers Lower Docks and Invades Low Places Along River Front, But No Serious Damage Is Threatened.

Far back in the Rockies, the Summer sun has melted the snow and the torrents of water have swept into the Snake and Columbia rivers until a flood has reached Portland. Both the Willamette and Columbia have risen rapidly for several days, but reached a stationary stage yesterday.

Consequently, apprehension of loss on the waterfront has been temporarily allayed. Already the Willamette is far above the lower docks. At Supple's ship-yard, hoats under construction and loose lumber are floating, and but for strong lines and ropes would be adrift on the Willamette. At other places along the waterfront havee has been wrought by the water, but serious damage has so far been averted. However, the weather office predicts the highest siage of the river on Tuesday and prep-has completed bunkering for Nome and will proceed to load cargo.

Asgard Arrives With Cement.

The Norwegian ship Asgard arrived The Norwegian ship Asgard arrived yesterday morning from Antwerp, loaded with cement for this port. The Asgard remained in the stream all day, and the work of unloading her will begin this morning. The vessel will be remembered by the old-timers as the British ship Kilmory. She has entered this port on previous occasions, but always under British colors. She was recently taken over by a Norwas recently taken over by a Nor-weglan concern.

Marine Notes.

The steamers Nome City and Jim Butler yesterday sailed for San Fran-cisco, loaded with grain and lumber for the metropolis.

The Shoshone arrived from the South last night, and will load for San Francisco today. The steamer Alliance yesterday salled for Coos Bay. She carried a large cargo and a number of passengers.

Satisfactory progress is being made on the Fenton building at Seventh and An-keny streets. Steel interior frames are in place and outside walls are going up.

It may have been mere coincidence, but It may have been mere coincidence, but the fact remains that directly following the R. H. Thomson lecture, several big deals were closed and four structures announced as having been decided upon, these running from $50,000 to probably $150,000. The lecture also resulted in inspiring more strength in the local really market than has existed for some weeks that it would seem that it has become past. It would seem that it has become necessary for outside authorities to come here and tell Portlanders what opportunities lie within their grasp, and to urge them to reach out and accept them.

When the Pioneers arrived in the city to attend their annual meeting, the remark heard the oftenest from those honored ounders of the state was, "I can scarcely believe my eyes when I look around and see the remarkable growth of Portland," and then they would indulge in remin-iscences about the early days when Front and First streets for a few blocks north and south composed the town of Port-

One of the comments made by City En-gineer Thomson of Seattle, when he showed a view of a street in Seattle where a big apartment house appeared in the background was, "How I despise those apartment houses! If I had my way that kind of house for people to exist in would be abolished. Occupants of these big buildings do not get enough fresh air and have no yard where the children may Of course you will reply that peo romp. Of course you will reply that peo-ple that live in apartment houses do not have children, as a rule, but that does not answer the point that the fresh air supply is limited." Some of his hearers shook their heads,

CORVALLIS COLLEGE SHOWS AD-VANCEMENT IN ALL LINES.

Student Enterprises Bring Many Victories-Course of Study and Equipment Enlarged.

Commencement is on this week at the Oregon Agricultural College, and that is a reminder that in growth and perfecting it has been an epochal year in the in-stitution. The enrollment for the year now closing reached a total of 1155, against 835 for 1907. The increase in legiate progress. An air of "doing things" has pervaded every department. It has animated the student body and nore than ever been present in members inter-collegiate debate, including a tr state victory. An O. A. C. representa-tive won a tri-state victory in oratory. The football team won the Coast cham-pionship and the baseball team gathered complished with reference to the ma terial strengthening of the various courses. Largely by the handicraft of the students, the equipment in the way of machines and appliances for labora-tory work has been as much as doubled Material that cost $1500 has been con verted into finished machines worth $4000 and placed in the laboratories for future class work, all the handiwork o partments, though more marked than in some of them, has been the development of the arrangements for college women. Waldo Hall, completed during the year, is to be the seat of social life for the co-eds at the institution. The hall will become a laboratory for domestic Equal as to results accomplished during the year is the development of the agricultural department, in which poultry and agronomy have been added, and the work in agricultural chemistry has been widely extended. A sample of the deep interest in the work is the recent organization of the Agricultural Club. In which the students have begun the publication of a monthly magazine, the Oregon Countryman. It has many spe-cial articles, both by students and mem-bers of the faculty, dealing with agricultural life from the scientific stand-point. The first issue comprises 45 pages and is a creditable publication. Typical also of the "doing things" air about the institution is the awarding of the contract for the new Y. M. student building. It is to cost $20,000 and the funds were secured entirely through the efforts of the student members of the College V. M. C. A. Clay Shepherd, the original student promoter of the building, died as a result of the exposure and nervous strain incident to the early work for the building, and the structure is to be named Shepherd Hall, in his honor. The building will be a control be a center of social and athletic activi-ties and a home for the literary societies. The building will be dedicated dur-ing the opening week of college next be contributed by citizens in order to September. Another achievement during the year was the raising of the entrance standard

ASTORIA, Or., June 14 .- (Special.)-The waterlogged steam schooner Minnie E. Kelton is to be abandoned by the underwriters so far as any further attempt to float her is concerned. This morning Captain Genereaux, wrecker for the underwriters, went down to the Kelton with barges and cables, intending to make an effort to float her off

He found that during the night the Kelton had almost turned turtle and was lying on her beam-ends in the hole which she had burrowed in the sands. No effort was made to run the cable under her, and Captain Genereaux stated tonight that he will de nothing further toward saving the vessel, and at the first opportunity will pick up his gear, consisting of a donkey engine and pump, which are on board her. is understood the wreck will be offered business of the week, there were enough of them to inspire a belief in the minds of dealers and brokers that the stagnant condition of the market, so far as in-come property is concerned, had been broken and that from now on there will be good business done all along the line.

The transactions of the week do not appear in the week's records of transfers and will be scattered along for some weeks to come, as deeds are not promptly turned in for record as a rule. The total, as shown by the official records of transfers, is $269,153. That gives a daily transfers, is $269,153. That gives a daily average of $45,000, $5000 under the average of the past few weeks.

Not much excitement is noticeable over the sale of suburban lots, for the very good reason that sales of this class of realty are of such common occurrence at to no longer cause comment. With hard ly an exception, sales agents of platted tracts report about as many lots being sold just now as there were in the height of business in that line about a year ago. With three large warehouse buildings announced last week as about to be added to the East and West Side districts. where that class of buildings are being clustered, builders are feeling jubilant for a half dozen or so structures to oc cupy quarter and half blocks mean steady work for contractors and me-chanics well into next Winter. These larger buildings added to the innumera ble dwellings under course of construc-tion and about a dozen large ones well along toward completion, will not only keep present forces of workmen busy but will increase their number. In the report published yesterday of the sale of the Judge Page place by E. T. Ames to Arthur L. Finley for $49,000. another fact in connection with the sale should be added, that of Hartman & Thompson being the agents in the trans-
