Landowners Aid Project.

There is no instance to my knowledge where any landowner is preventing the use of land for which water is available. and as every official connected with the Reclamation Service ought to know, ef-forts have been made by large landown-ers to employ men to clear land within the past year, when it was utterly im-possible to hire them to do that class of work. A year ago men refused to grub sagebrush, just as they refused to work on canal construction and railroad grad-ing, because they could find employment at more agreeable occupations part of the time and devote the remainder to travel-ing between employment agencies and places where men were needed but refused to stay on the work.

"Water was not ready last year in time for irrigation of the crops, and, owing to defective construction and incidents common to first operation of a new canal. irrigation was greatly interfered with, even after water was turned into the main canal. Sufficient water was not furnished last year to all the land which was already in crop and which had pre-viously received irrigation from the An-keny Canal, acquired by the Government, and landowners sustained damage and loss thereby. Many landowners did not receive water for nearly the amount of acreage on which they would have been glad to pay the water rental, and while there are about 13,000 acres, under the first unit of the main canal then completed, the service could not have deliv-ered water to more than half of that acreage in time to have been of any benefit whatever.

"Another false statement is that in regard to the refusal of landowners to make payment of the first installment on their water-rights. Such payment has not yet been demanded by the Gov-ernment, and under the Reclamation Act, presumably will not be until next year. Instead, the Reclamation Service has fixed a water-rental to cover cost of maintenance and operation of $1.50 per acre for the land receiving water. I have understood that two landowners failed to make payment of the water-rentals for their lands last year, but in these instances there is some question of law and fact involved and it is a matter to be adjusted between the par-tles concerned and the officials of the Reclamation Service. In no wise does this reflect upon the spirit of the peo-ple of the Klamath Basin, and the publicity inaccurately given this from Washington displays a petry position on the part of somebody there con-nected with the Miclamation Service.

Klamath People Patient.

"People of the Klamath Basin are anxious for speedy completion of the system of Government Irrigation works. They have been patient with the Recla-mation Service for its dilatoriness, realizing that under the conditions existing prior to the past few months, it was prior to the past few months, it was most expensive and difficult to prose-cute the work that required a great amount of labor. Likewise, the lack of transportation was a serious factor in development of the country, as well as building of the canal. Prospective homescekers have not been easily at-tracted to the Pacific Coast because of the lack of railroad rates that would enable the best class of intending settiers to make the initial trip of investigation. "I have talked with officials of the Reclamation Service concerning this phase of the situation and they are fully ware of the facts, and until this year we could not give the settler assurance perfut, of degrees, minimum temperature.
