LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 24.—(Special.)—The Beavers made only 16 swats today, and those rained around Randolph and Koestner so fast and furiously that these two heavers thought that the team had some advance information on the Fourth and were celebrating this week. Portland won, 8 to 4. Randolph got all he wanted in six innings and Koestner was treated little better.

To help matters along, Happy Hogan contributed a bunch of dummy plays, and Bernard missed an easy grounder that figured in two runs. The champions played like a lot of girls, but the Beavers rapped Randolph so hard that the locals were kept on the jump.

McCredie tried his new bush pitcher, Marshall, and the long kid did remarkably well for six innings, but in the seventh was hit for two hard hingles and a double and Mac benched him for Groom, who held the locals safely. The game was too weird for description, for Randolph was thrown out of the game after the sixth.

Perrine had another bad day of it and was hissed to a frazzle. There were but three runs in which errors did not figure and there was about as much life in the game as there is in a dishrag, for errors and boneheaded plays were so common as to become monotonous.

COOS BAY CLUBS AFTER MEN

Representative Comes to Portland to Strengthen Teams.

The Coos Bay Baseball League is playing a most interesting season, for each of the four towns represented has a good team, and the race is so close that each club is out after new material with which to strengthen its team. For the purpose of securing new talent for the North Bend and Marshfield clubs, J. W. Gardiner, of North Bend, came to Portland yesterday, and is registered at the Imperial Hotel. Mr. Gardiner has signed several well-known young pitchers, but is especially anxious to secure Charles "Dolly" Gray, the crack Portland player who made such a splendid record in the Northwestern League. Mr. Gardiner says he can assure Gray a splendid position and other inducements if he desires to play at Coos Bay.

All told the Coos Bay representative expects to secure some eight or ten players in Portland whom he will place in Marshfield and North Bend. The Coquille and Bandon clubs are being recruited from California universities and state leagues. "Father" Tom Kelly, who left Portland for Coos Bay last week, played his first game Sunday and made good with the North Bend fans.

BALLPLAYER MOORE LOSES

Jury Decides Against Him in Suit for Back Salary.

Charles W. Moore in the Circuit Court yesterday lost his suit against the St. John Baseball Club for $502 alleged to have been due him for back salary. He contended that the club engaged him to play ball last year at a salary of $100 a month, but had paid him only $28. The defendants declared that the money with which they were to pay Moore was contingent on contributions by six St. John saloonkeepers, who had agreed to subscribe $5 weekly towards the player's salary. When District Attorney Manning closed the saloons on Sunday the saloonkeepers withdrew their obligations, but requested Moore to continue playing. The St. John team played Sundays and with the saloons closed on this day the saloonkeepers failed to see where they could make any money on their weekly investment. Moore, so it is alleged, agreed to continue playing without compensation.

FINE STOCK LISTED

Portland Show Attracts Best of Entries.

ENTIRE COAST INTERESTED

Foremost Experts From the East to Be Secured to Judge Various Classes in Pacific National Exhibition.

In the livestock exposition, which will be one of the most attractive features of the Pacific National meet in this city, the latter part of September, the great display of horses in the show ring will be without much question the finest array of pure-bred and fancy stock ever exhibited in a public display on the Pacific Coast. Entries are now being received and the lists will remain open until but a few days before the show opens. Montana, for instance, will be represented in every class of horses, cattle, swine, sheep and goats; Idaho has asked for hundreds of application blanks. Colorado will send to Portland for this big demonstration the finest card of fancy stock that has ever been sent out of the state. California has already had several experts here looking into the situation, and from information given out by the livestock committee of the Country Club and Livestock Association, the entries from the Bear State will surpass anything that has been listed in state fairs and exposition anywhere on the Pacific Slope.

Portland, from its position of easy accessibility to all sections of the trans-Rocky Mountain territory has been made the objective point of practically every stock-breeder of importance in the West, and particularly for the reason that the Portland meet will come at a time when entries may be sent from one state fair to another, giving free rein to the exhibitors in the matter of covering the entire Northwestern circuit without loss of time or unnecessary expense.

Big Prizes Are Offered.

As to the horse entries, special prizes and increased prizes over any that have been offered heretofore in this section of the country will be hung up. Applications for entry blanks now in the hands of Secretary George A. Westgate, make it certain that the blue-ribbon stock from Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Colorado, Nevada, California, Washington, British Columbia and from all portions of Oregon will be displayed in the show ring during the exposition.

While it has not been decided just what classifications will be made for the entries in the many divisions of the show, it is certain that there will be a fine array of standard-bred and Morgon horses; stallians, 1, 2, 3 and 4-year-olds; mares 1, 2, 3 and 4-year-olds, the latter class in foal or with suckling foal at side, with sweepstakes limited to first and second-prize animals. Next, there will be the American, English, German and French coach and hackney horses with the same divisions as noted in the preceding class. Another class which will be well filled with entries will be the imported and American pure-bred Percheron and French draft horses. In this class will come, of course, the Clydesdales, English shires and other draft animals. In line with these, the Jacks and Jennets and the Shetland ponies must not be overlooked, for Oregon has as complete a representation in this class as any other state in the Union.

Experts Will Judge Stock.

Correspondence is now pending with a view of securing some of the foremost experts in the East to act as a board of judges in the various classes of livestock entries, and one or two of the men requested to act have accepted, but the association will not announce any of the board until the roster has been completed. The idea of getting experts from the East has been carried out for two reasons; first, to assure all exhibitors that the best obtainable judgment will pass upon the entries, and at the same time the first livestock exposition ever held in Portland will be widely advertised in racing show centers in the East and Middle West.

Within the next week or ten days a meeting of the directors and trustees of the Country Club and Livestock Association will be called to decide upon the question of granting concessions. The New York Hippodrome, through its Pacific Coast representative, K. L. Bernard, who handled the Pain's fireworks display during the recent Rose Festival, has made a proposition to the association to put on the far-famed chariot races which are a part of the hippodrome programmes in New York. Three races each day of the week, with either four or six horses and specially imported Oriental charioteers, have been promised in case it is decided to have any novelty features as a part of the daily programme.

The Pacific National may also secure several exhibition flights of the Stroebel airship, which is now making flights at various carnivals, state fairs, shows and expositions throughout the East and Middle West. In case it is decided to grant any privileges of this character, both these novelties will find place on the card of attractions for the week.

Nearly 200 men and about 80 teams are now at work completing the grading and surfacing work on the vast natural amphitheater, while about half that number of men are erecting the racing barns and show stables on the site of the first big meet to be held here.

Gammie to Handle Livestock.

George Gammie, who for years has been livestock superintendent of the Oregon State Fairs at Salem, has been chosen to act in a similar capacity during the week of the Pacific National meet here in Portland, September 21-26. Mr. Gammie is regarded as one of the most expert livestock showmen on the Pacific slope, and it has been mainly through his efforts that the Salem affairs have attained their high standard of excellence.

Mr. Gammie is now on a tour of Europe, is visiting England, Scotland, France, Germany and Holland, with a view of studying horses, cattle, sheep and goats of show-ring qualities. He will, before returning to this country, visit the various islands of Great Britain which have won world-wide renown for their livestock products and will return some time in August, fully equipped to manage the great exposition to be held here in the Fall.

He will have direct charge of the four divisions of the livestock show—horses, cattle, swine, sheep and goats. Under these divisions there will be from six to ten classifications, together with sweepstake classes, and there will be first and second prizes and trophies hung up in each class.

The Portland Country Club and Livestock Association regards itself as particularly fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Gammie, for the reason that heretofore he has declined to act with any other expositions save the Oregon State Fair.

He will act as livestock superintendent at the forthcoming State Fair at Salem during the week of September 14-19, and will come here directly from Salem.

BASED ON TRANSPORTATION

ROADS MUST NOT FIGURE ALL PROPERTY AS RATE-BASIS.

Washington Commission Makes Decision Affecting Coal Land and Warehouse Holdings.

OLYMPIA, Wash., June 24.—(Special.)—The Washington Railroad Commission will not permit the railroads to figure the value of coal lands, warehouse properties, etc., as part of the value of railroad property upon which the roads may estimate "reasonable returns," in making up their freight tariffs.

Ever since the Supreme Court of the United States laid down the rule that railroads should be entitled to charge such rates as would give a reasonable return on the value of the railroad property, the railroad attorneys have been seeking to swell the value of railroad property, so as to enable them to justify high freight rates. Incidentally the railroads have been equally active to cut down values when making their showings before Assessors and other taxing officers.

A Northern Pacific official testified that the Roslyn coal mines owned by that road were valued at $40,000,000. The question has naturally arisen among shippers whether or not the Commission would allow the road to figure its freight rates so high as to allow a return upon this valuation.

The Northern Pacific has other coal lands, estimated to be worth $10,000,000; it has about 1,000,000 acres of land-grant lands; several hundred thousand acres of land-grant scrip (sufficient to cover 1000 square miles of territory), which it values at $8 an acre; and large tracts of warehouse property at Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and elsewhere, valued at about $10,000,000.

The Washington Commission, in making up its values of railroad property, has secured data showing all this outside property, its original cost and present value. It declares, however, that the railroads cannot figure one dollar of this value in estimating freight rates. The holding is that the railroad must look to the property for its return from that property. In other words, the coal lands must pay the returns on the value thereof; the warehouse property, wharves, docks and other real estate must pay their own returns. Freight rates must be based, under this decision, solely upon the value of the railroad property used exclusively for transportation purposes. In the case of the Northern Pacific alone, the property thus eliminated from consideration for rate-making purposes in this state aggregates $75,000,000.

MAKE ROUGH AUTO TRIP

Party of Portland People Explore Mountain Roads.

WESTON, Or., June 24.—(Special.)—A party of Portland people arrived in Weston Monday afternoon after a long mountain journey by automobile. They were: Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ayer and Walter Whitman, chauffeur. The start was made from Spokane and the itinerary included Lewiston, Anatone, Paradise, Enterprise, Joseph, La Grande, Weston and Walla Walla. From Walla Walla the machine is to be shipped back to Portland. Mr. Lewis is a member of the firm of Allen & Lewis. Mr. Ayer is one of the State Normal Board of Regents. While here he inspected the Weston Normal plant.

The trip from Lewiston to Wallowa County was difficult and remarkable. No other automobile has ever traveled the same route. At one point the party reached an elevation of 5200 feet, representing a direct climb of 3000 feet. The descent was made on a gradient of 1000 feet to the mile. They say the road is altogether too rough and dangerous for automobiles.

PRESCOTT WINS $150 PRIZE

Miriam Van Waters Second in Oratorical Contest.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., June 24.—In the Failing-Beekman prize oratorical contest last evening in Villard Hall, Bert W. Prescott, of Baker City, was accorded first place and the Failing prize of $150 cash. Miss Miriam Van Waters, of Portland, won second place, and the Beekman prize of $100 cash. Bert Prescott is president of the associated students, and this year won the intercollegiate oratorical contest. Miss Van Waters is editor of the Oregon Monthly. She is daughter of Rev. Mr. Van Waters, of Portland. Both winning orations bore the same title, "The Reign of Law," but differed largely in treatment. Mr. Prescott's oration was "The Reign of Law; A Guarantee of Equal Rights," whereas Miss Van Waters spoke on "The Reign of Law; Persistence of Variation."

The judges were Reverend Herbert Spencer Johnson, of Boston; President Homan, of Willamette University, and Judge L. T. Harris, of Eugene. Other orations worth honorable mention were: "A Part of Earth's Creative Majesty," by Miss Cora Cameron; "The Reign of Law," by R. Dell McCarty; "Social Poise and Progress," by Miss Emily Muhr; and "Am I My Brother's Keeper," by Wesley W. Wire.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlos F. Roberts, who visited during the week at Milwaukie, left last night for Seattle en route to Juneau, Alaska, where Mr. Roberts will have charge of the Government cable office.

William Penn

AMONG all the builders of this Nation none deserve more lasting gratitude than this stout old Quaker Champion.

Irish and English prisons could not conquer his spirit, and from a cell in the tower of London he conceived the idea of founding beyond the seas a state wherein Brotherly Love—Peace On Earth and Personal Liberty might become living facts. Thus Pennsylvania was founded.

When colonial governor he introduced vine-growing and brewing, and at Pennbury Manor he had a brew house.*

Above middle height—well built and agile—William Penn in his early days was an expert swordsman, a courageous soldier, and a splendid athlete.

He died at 74, and the results of his life's doings bear eloquent witness that the moderate use of a good malt beer helps to create the noblest qualities of mind and soul.

His statue stands in Philadelphia, 547 feet high—for all the world to see.
