KUNART MYSTERY BAFFLES OFFICERS

Widow and Reinhold Greenwald Are Ordered Released Although Suspected.

POISON IN STOMACH

Analysis Reveals No Damaging Evidence, but Woman Declares Alleged Accomplice Swore Falsely at Coroner's Inquest.

CASTLE ROCK, Wash., July 15 .- (Spe cial.)-So baffled are the officials of Cow litz County over the mystery surround ing the sudden death of Godfrey Kunart last Friday that an order was issued late this afternoon releasing from custody the widow and Reinhold Greenwald, who was held as her alleged accomplice and para-

This afternoon the woman made open accusations against Greenwald, but it the face of these accusations the order of release was issued. However, both the man and woman will remain under close esplonage of the officers, although they have been released from custody.

Body Taken From Grave.

It is an old, old story that has been revived in Cowlitz County as a result of the mysterious death of the logger, and a woman is at the bottom of it. There was a home-a happy one-it is said, and an intruder. Then there was a sudden and mysterious death, the woman and alleged intruder surviving. And the toursues of the multitude got busy-so busy that a Coroner's inquest was held, the remains of the dead man were exhumed, and after robbing the grave, the slow and tedious process of the law was set to work to appears the public wrath. appease the public wrath.

But today the proceedings came to a sudden and unexpected termination, and although a shadow of suspicion still rests upon the woman and her alleged paramour, the wheels of the law have been stopped in their investigation,

Declines to Summon Doctor.

Kunart was a logger and lived here with his wife and three children. At his home for the past three years lived Reinhold Greenwald, a close friend of himself and of his wife. For months and, indeed, since their arrival in this locality neighbors have gossipped about the intimacy of the friend and Mrs. Kunart. Last Tuesday both men went fishing in the Cowiltz River. They returned suddenly and unleapectedly in the middle of the afternoon, and Kunart was desperatethe affernoon, and Kunart was desperate by ill. His wife made lemonade, in the presence and with the aid, it is said, of Greenwald. The sick man drank of the Jemonade and his likees increased to such an alarming extent that he begged his wife to summon a physician. She, in turn, asked Greenwald to call for aid.

Greenwald refused, insisting that the services of a physician were unnecessary. Finally the sick man himself persuaded Finally the sick man himself persuaded Greenwald to summon a physician and Dr. T. C. Campbell was called. Kunart lived until Friday. On the day he became ill the physician prescribed for him, but after the professional man had departed Greenwald went up town and procured a bottle of what he called wormwood bitters. Kunart drank of it and his wife also attempted to partake of the fluid.

Warned Not to Drink

"Don't drink that, leave it alone, it has been fixed purposely for Godfrey." Greenwald said to the woman, according to her story yesterday. And rushing towards her, he dashed the vial from her hand, according to her story. Then the bottle of alleged wormwood bitters disappeared, and officers have been unable to that trace of it.

Dr. Campbell and others notified Dr. Campbell and others notified Coroner Bird, of Kelso, and also District Attorney B. L. Hubbell, of Kelso. Those officials immediately came to Castle Rock and the body was exhumed. On Monday the coroner called a jury and an inquest was held. The stomach of the dead man was removed and sent to Dr. Ralph Matson, of Portland, for analysis. He analyzed it and failed to find a trace of polson. find a trace of poison.

In Custody Since Sunday.

On Sunday afternoon Greenwald was arrested and placed in the town jail, awaiting the verdict of the jury and pending further developments in the case. In order to care for her three children the widow was permitted to remain at her home, though she also under arrest, and an officer nained constantly on duty at the Many conflicting stories were told by Many conflicting stories were told by the man and woman at the coroner's inquest. And since the inquest she has remembered many alleged incrim-inating incidents which, she says, she forgot to mention at the inquest. She openly declares that Greenwald ited, when under oath at the inquest, and Greenwald, on the other hand, says that the woman errs in her statements.

Official Left in Dark.

"What can I do?" said Distrist At-torney Hubbell yesterday, after order-ing the release of the two suspects. "The specialist in Portland declared after analysis that there was no trace city today. of poison in the dead man's stomach. The woman will not swear that the man is guilty and the man will not swear that the woman is guilty. We have no evidence, and for that reason I have ordered both the woman and the

I have ordered both the woman and the man released from custody."

And when the man was released the widow begged the officers to keep him from her home. He has lived there constantly for three years or more, but there has come a revulsion on the widow's part and she will not see him.

In an answer filed today Wyatt contends he is sole owner of the wall and the land on which it is situated.

STORM RUINS CROPS ON DES CHUTES DIVIDE.

Stones Inch in Diameter Fall and Deep Drifts Lie for Hours . in Gullies.

THE DALLES, Or., July 15.—(Special.)

News has just reached this city that in addition to the waterspout reported on Monday, a hall storm of unusual violence swept across the Des Chutes divide, between the Canyof City and Tygh Valley roads, damaging the ripened crops of five of the largest grain farms on the summit of Tygh Ridge. Owen Jones, William Hunter, L. Rondeau, Trudell & Denis and E. Anderson are the heaviest losers by the hall, which descended upon their farms, many of the stones being an inch in diameter. Hall drifts a foot deep lay in the guillies 48 hours after the storm.

The grain on these ranches was completely razed and it is feared that the fine crops, among the heaviest and best in the county, will be a total loss.

North and west of this hall belt the crops were uninjured by the heavy thunder showers, the only damage arising from the rush of water down the canyons, where in some instances small buildings and farm implements were yons, where in some instances small buildings and farm implements were washed away. No loss of livestock is reported, except to pigs in pens and Pioneers Will Have Charge Today at Chautauqua, and Cantata "Rose Maiden" Will Be Produced at Auditorium Tonight.

CHAUTAUQUA GROUNDS, Gladstone Park, July 15.—(Special.)—W. G. Hale, of Portland, an attorney, a graduate of the Harvard law school, and presi-dent of the associate alumni of Pacific University created no little stir today by declaring from the Chautauqua platform that the University of Oregon ought to be made an institution for graduate work only. His plea was one for the small college, of which Oregon has many. He said that the State Uni-versity should be thoroughly support-ed by the people of the state and that Oregon people should patronize Oregon institutions for their college work be-fore going abroad for advanced study. Pacific University rally was very successful. Miss Frances Clapp rendered a plano number, "Widmung" (Schumann-Liszt), and Miss Wilhel-mina Heidel recited from Tennyson's "Guinivore." Would Exempt Beer Under Prohibition Law.

CALL MEETING AT SALEM

Believe Reformers Would Be Satisfied if Local Option Statute Were Amended so Sale of Whisky Could Be Prohibited.

SALEM, Or., July 15 .- (Special.) -A number of Salem hop-growers and dealers have called a mass meeting at the opera house Saturday night for the purpose of discussing a plan by which the prohibition movement may be di-rected against the sale of whisky and fort will be made to enlist the prohibition element in this project.

The plan is to amend the local option law so as to permit a vote upon the question of selling beer and a separate vote upon the question of selling li-quors stronger than beer. Conrad Krebs, who is one of the leaders in the krebs, who is one of the leaders in the movement, said tonight that the evils of whisky drinking cause most of the antagonism to liquor selling and the hop-growers desire to separate the beer business from the whisky business. They feel certain that if this were done, whisky would be voted out but the sale of beer would be permitted to continue but the sale of beer would be permitted to continue.

It is not known yet whether any of the prohibition workers will take part in the meeting but an effort is being made to enlist them upon the ground that restriction of liquor selling to beer alone would be an advance step in the direction of temperance.

The meeting and the discussions will be open to all and it is the desire of the promoters of the movement that all phases of the question be considered.
