DEER SEASON FILLS HILLS BISHOP

Animals Reported Numerous Near Douglas Border in Coos.

Open season for the shooting of deer was inaugurated yesterday, and many Portland sportsmen hied themselves to the hills, where they hoped to succeed in bringing down one of the fleet-footed quadrupeds, the flesh of which furnishes many a toothsome morsel. The principal scenes of activity were along the Coast Range. Many of the Portlanders journeyed to the Mount Hood region, but the majority visited the wilds of Columbia. Clatsop, Tillamook and Benton coun-ties, while a few left last week for Marshfield Chamber of Commerce, who is now in Portland, said yesterday that great preparations were made at Coos Bay for the season opening. Most of the sportsmen at that place were pre-paring to visit the foothills near the Douglas County line, where deer were lougias County line, where deer were reported plentiful. The present period of the open season precludes the kill-ing of does. Any sportsman caught with the carcass of a doe is liable to presecution, and the game wardens.

under Warden R. O. Stevenson, are ex-ceptionally vigilant. The killing of several eik in the vicinity of Roseburg recently, has stirred the state officials to renewed activity, for elk are protected by law at all seasons of the year, and the deputy wardens are anxious to make an example of some game hog.

Prelate of Methodist Church Come to Lecture at Chautaugua.

Dr. Robert McIntyre, of Los Angeles one of the newly-elected bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church and one of the most eloquent of American public speakers, is a guest at the Portland. He is one of the high-class importations in the oratory line which the Gladstone Chautaugua brings here this Summer, and he must have spent the day at that delightful park, for reporters scurried from basement to Lyon, secretary of the effort to locate the famous divine. Bishop McIntire has been through all the degrees of Methodism, from probationer to one of the "great heads of the church." He has enjoyed a wide reputation as a pulpit orator for 20 years, and at 57 is one of the field marshals of Christianity in America. A marshals of Christianity in America. A man of commanding presence, with the face of an actor and a head crowned with iron-gray hair, he looks every inch a bishop. He gave up a post as pastor of the largest Methodist Church in Chicago to go to Los Angeles to take a smaller charge because of his fondness for the Pacific Coast. From fondness for the Pacific Coast. From this pastorate he was last month elected bishop by the general conference of his church.
