BY W. J. PETRAIN.

"Father" Van Haltren's bunch of rejuvenated Athenians made it three straight from the McCredie huskies yesterday, and all because the swatsmen of the home team were lacking in sticking ability when waiting runners were on the paths. The score was 2 to 1, when it really should have been 6 to 1 in our favor, for Kinsella gave Oakland one run, and Portland had opportunities to add five more, at least.

Southpaw Jack Hardy occupied the molehill for the Athenians, and he issued seven bases on balls and was found for seven hits. All of this netted Portland only one run, for which the clang of the gong brought joy in the first inning.

Eddie Kinsella, he of generous proportions as well as generous disposition, occupied the mound for the home guard. Despite the fact that Oakland scored one run in the fifth inning and another in the seventh, he allowed only one ball to be hit out of the diamond. This was Altman's drive over Johnson, which scored Eagan in the seventh.

Four Cantos Without Hit.

For four innings Eddie sent the Oaks back to the bench as fast as they faced him, and not one of them hit the ball hard enough to raise the dust. In the fifth "Truck" Eagan secured the only pass issued by Eddie. "Truck" was the first man up, and this looked bad, for whenever Kinsella walks anyone it usually means a score. It so resulted in this instance, but it required Kinsey to contribute a wild heave to get the ancient Oaklander over the pan. "Happy" Bill Hogan sent Eagan to second, and when Miller grounded out to Danzig "Rip" went to third. Altman's tap was fielded by Kinsella, but Eddie seemed to think Danzig had a net, for the heave went wild and the score registered, while Dutch went to second. Kinsey retired Lewis easily, but the score was tied. One run chalked against Kinsella.

Eagan opened the seventh with a bounder past the box, but Ote Johnson failed to field it, and "Truck" got to first on an error. "Happy" Bill again came to the front with a dump for a sacrifice, but as he reached first safely the official dopester credits the smiling one with a bingle instead of a life-giver. "Nutmeg" Miller, the slugger of the two previous games, fanned. Altman refused to be victimized and dropped a Texas leaguer over Johnson's head and the ancient party registered for the second time. Lewis fanned and Hardy hit to Kinsella, which demonstrated how easily the Oaklanders should have been taken care of.

Futile Rally in Ninth.

The one-run lead did not look any too big, for Portland got very busy by assuming a threatening attitude in the ninth. It was somewhat disconcerting that the rally resulted in nothing, but the bugs had a chance to yell, and as long as they are extended such opportunities, all is well. "Slim" Marshall was delegated to take a clout at the ball instead of Kinsella, and the elongated chap promptly assailed one which he ticketed for the right garden wall. Unfortunately, "Woodenshoes" Heitmuller was in the way and the youngster was retired. Jack Ryan banged one over Eagan's skypiece and was safe at first. Bassey walked, and so did Raftery, filling the cushions, and the crowd yelled expectantly. Ote Johnson, the mighty club artist, was the next batsman. Hardy did not seem to care whether it were Hans Wagner, Larry Lajoie, or even Ote Johnson at the bat, for he pitched just the same. Johnson, therefore, simply flew to Eagan.

Hal Danzig was the next batter and things still looked bright, for occasionally Danzig loosens a plank or two in the fences. On this occasion he was not given the opportunity for, with two strikes and three balls called, Ryan took a long lead and Hardy caught him off the bag.

Groom or Graney Today.

Phil Dellar will do the hurling for the Oaklanders today, while Bobby Groom or Jack Graney will occupy the mound for Portland.

NORTHWEST LEAGUE.

Aberdeen 3; Seattle 0.

ABERDEEN, Wash., July 23.—(Special.)—Big Gus Thompson stood the Siwashes on their heads this afternoon, letting them down without anything that even looked like a hit. But for Dode Brinkers misjudging a fly to left, not a Siwash would have reached first. As it was but one man, Fink, got to first, and he died at second. Thompson had worlds of speed and great curves. Seattle started bunting tactics, but Thompson was always on top of the ball. He struck out eight men and had perfect control all the way, allowing no bases on balls.

Boyle, too, pitched nice ball, but Aberdeen bunched hits on him. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Aberdeen	3	7	1

Batteries—Boyle and Bunstine; Thompson and Spencer. Umpire, Ehret.

Spokane 2; Butte 7.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 23.—(Special.)—After netting a run in each of two innings by dint of a single after two men were out, Butte came along in the fifth with five runs and the game was hopelessly lost, Butte 7, Spokane 2. The blow that wilted the crowd came in the fifth, when Spokane booted the ball, muffed it and then threw it away. Umpire Frary aiding to the extent of one run by refusing to declare out a runner touched some distance from the plate. It was in this inning that Wright retired in favor of Galaski, and a safe hit, with men on bases, added to the calamity, from a Spokane standpoint. The Spokane team was on the way to the bench when Frary declared the runner safe, and in the mixup following another Butte runner counted.

Vancouver 3, Tacoma 1.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 23.—Vancouver defeated Tacoma today through Paddock's excellent pitching. Score:

Eugene Brick Block Sold.

EUGENE, Or., July 23.—(Special.)—The Davies brick building on East Ninth street, now occupied by Newlands Department store, was today sold to C. S. Frank for $21,000. The store building has a 60-foot front and is 160 feet deep with two stories. While this is considered a good buy on account of its location, the seller who has owned the building for some years disposes of it at a good margin of profit.

HOWL "FOUL" WHEN FAVORITE LOSES

British Sports Prove Poor Sportsmen and Rob Carpenter of Victory.

AMERICAN TEAM PROTESTS

Charge That Carpenter Pocketed Halsewell Causes Uproar at Olympic Games Because of Management's Unfairness.

tured the race, which had been predicted for the Britisher, while the vast audience filling the other stands sat silent, not knowing the cause of the excitement in the arena. Then the announcer made a brief statement through a megaphone that the race had been declared void, but no reason was given. Still not knowing why, a great British cheer broke out and continued for several minutes, when those who could not under any circumstances have seen the incident cried "foul" louder than those sitting opposite the spot where the alleged foul was said to have taken place and who, seeing Halsewell taking a wide turn, thought it a mistake in judgment, as he had lots of room to pass Carpenter on either side. The uproar continued for near half an hour and as the people poured out of the stands the arguments were taken up in the aisles and gateways by excited thousands and the race is still the subject of bitterest wrangling everywhere.

Americans Enter Protest.

Matthew P. Halpin, manager of the American team, who was in the arena, immediately entered a protest, claiming the race for Carpenter, who had done the distance, according to unofficial watches, in the remarkable time of 48 2-5 seconds, some watches making it even less.

A committee meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association, the details of which have not been made public, was called, and the judge who rendered the decision and Halsewell were called to state their case. Neither any member of the American committee nor any one of the three American runners, however, was called on to make any statement, and the committee, after more than two hours' consideration, rendered the following decision:

"The judges decided the race void and ordered the same to be run over again on Saturday at noon. Carpenter is disqualified."

Unfair, Say Americans.

When they heard the decision, the members of the American committee met and passed a resolution ordering the men not to run on Saturday. James E. Sullivan, the American commissioner to the games, and Barlow S. Weeks, J. B. McCabe, Gustavus Kirby, Everett C. Brown and Alonzo Stagg, members of the American committee, sat in a room in their hotel this evening the most disgusted lot of Americans ever gathered in England. Mr. Sullivan was the spokesman and the others upheld what he said.

"Let us, in the first place," said Mr. Sullivan, "discuss the arrangement of the track. It was unfair, especially to Taylor, and apparently the arranging was done by a man who did not want all the contestants to get a fair start. Taylor's position caused him to give away yards which he could never regain.

"Now for the race. Carpenter, at the crack of the pistol, took the lead and did the only thing he could do and win, and that was to take all the running out of Halsewell in the first 300 yards. As a result he gave the spectators the fastest 300 yards ever seen in a Stadium. The 220 yards he covered in 23 seconds, and at 300 yards he had Halsewell out. Carpenter had the pole, but he did not run close to it. He ran well out at the first bend and, coming to the second bend leading to the straightaway, he ran wide, as he had a perfect right to do.

"Halsewell, instead of taking advantage of the chance and cutting into the post, remained in his old position. At that point, probably 110 yards from home, Carpenter turned his head to see who was there, and then, swinging up the stretch, gave the English public a 110 yards that has not been equalled this week. Halsewell was all out before the stretch was reached. America had found in Carpenter a wonder at this distance.

"Never in my life, and I have been attending athletic meetings for 31 years, have I witnessed a scene that struck me as being so unsportsmanlike and unfair as that in which the officials participated. When Carpenter started to leave Halsewell behind, the officials cried 'Foul!' 'Foul!' in unison, and raised their hands and hats, while the announcer rang around also yelling 'Foul!' Furthermore, they did the unsportsmanlike act of running up the track in an endeavor to stop Carpenter from coming through, and deliberately and meanly broke the tape so as not to give him that honor.

Decided Without Authority.

"They practically declared it no race without authority. There was but one man in the arena who had authority to do that, and he was the referee. The referee did not do so, but a lot of excited officials ran about screaming 'foul' and 'no race,' and it was their decision that was announced.

"Suppose Carpenter and Robbins had met with an accident? Would it still be declared no race? If the officials conducting the Olympic sports had any spirit of good fellowship and had treated our boys and officials as we would have treated them if they had gone to America, our men would have gone out and run the race over; but they have not. The race was as fair as any race ever run.

Other Acts of Foul Play.

"We never said a word when two Englishmen tried to line up in front of Eisele in a race last week, nor when Deakin and Wilson tried to run down Shephard, things which they glory in over here, and which their own papers laud them for doing. Again, in the 800-meters, Crawford went in to kill Shephard off to allow Just, his team-mate, to win, but they could not do it and, if they had, we would not have murmured, for they believe in doing those things over here, actions that would be condemned as mean tricks in America."

The formal announcement of the American committee is as follows:

"We have decided to protest the decision as unfair, and because the officials declared 'no race' without consideration."

Will Give Carpenter Medal.

The American committee further announced tonight that, although Carpenter and Robbins would not get the Olympic medals, they would receive medals from the American committee and they would be credited with their win in America.

Committeeman McCabe said that the breaking of the tape was done under the influence of 30,000 people who filled the stands and who were inflamed by the games, officials and newspapers.

"It is no surprise to me," he said, "in view of the statements in the morning papers that Halsewell had been pockated at Athens and that today's race would be watched by the people. It is fair to assume, therefore, that the audience was ready to denounce an American victory in the 400-meter race and that the officials were influenced by this fact."

Carpenter, a bright and quiet young American, who does not look as though he could do the trick and who, his teammates say, would be the last one to resort to fouling to win medals, thus described the race:

Carpenter's Version of Race.

"As we approached the last bend, Robbins had the pole and was leading by a yard. I made my effort there and I certainly ran wide, as I have done every time I have been on the track. Halsewell had lots of room to pass me on either side. It is ridiculous to talk of a team 'boring' or pocketing as good a man as Halsewell is in a quarter-mile race. No team could do it. We had nothing of the kind in view; we just raced him off his feet and he could not stand the pace."

Ray Ewry, the American high jumper, who left the high-jumping contest to watch the men pass the turn and who immediately afterward made note of the tracks left by the running shoes, said:

"At no time was there any lapping or confusion of the tracks. I thought Halsewell lost his head. He had the option of going either on the inside or on the outside of Carpenter, but apparently he could not make up his mind what to do."

All the men agree that Trainer Michael Murphy called the runners together before the start of the race and, in telling what a good man they had to beat and how careful they had to be, owing to statements in the papers that the Americans would try unfair play, cautioned them to be fair above all things and to run their hardest. They all say they were doing this and nothing more.

F. Leroy Holmes, of Chicago, also had an unpleasant experience. He was giving a splendid exhibition in the standing high jump when, without any cause whatever, the spectators commenced to "boo." This got so bad that the referee had to call out that, if the disturbance did not stop, the jumping would be postponed. This threat served to bring quiet, after Holmes had been made very uncomfortable.

France and Sweden With America.

This and other signs of ill-feeling toward the Americans have not escaped the notice of Continental visitors, the French representatives who have been following the sports particularly condemning the way in which the Americans have been treated, and after the 200-meter race and the Holmes incident they, with others of their countrymen, took up the arguments in behalf of the Americans.

America is not alone in her protestations against unfair treatment. Sweden has withdrawn all her men from the Graeco-Roman wrestling contest, on the ground that one of the Swedish representatives, Anderson, was unfairly deprived of a bout yesterday.

Whatever may be the facts in the unfortunate episode, both the English and Americans firmly believe that their men are absolutely right and the others wholly wrong, and the result is likely to be extremely damaging to Anglo-American athletics for years to come. The British public takes sport more seriously than any other nation and has the fullest confidence in the English officials' decisions in international events.

Moreover the Englishman concerned in this event, Lieutenant Halsewell, is a gentleman of the highest standing and an officer of a popular regiment, which counts for much with his countrymen, who are certain that he would not knowingly profit by an unfair ruling in his own favor, or accuse an opponent of foul unless sure of the facts.

It is an undeniable fact that the American athletes have not been popular in England since the famous Cornell rowing episode. The public mind has been charged with the belief that American amateurs are tainted with professionalism and this suspicion has been vastly increased by charges of the sort reproduced from American magazines. No one attending this Olympiad could fail to notice the disinclination of the public to applaud American victories, and the games officials apparently have thought the American competitors needed sharp watching. The Americans have been conscious of the atmosphere of suspicion surrounding them and have done their utmost to win victories so cleanly that no one could grumble.

Kerr Wins Close Race.

The other events of the day seem unimportant compared with the eruption over the 400-meters race. The 200-meters sprint was a splendid contest. Kerr, the Canadian, won, as was anticipated, but the Americans, Cloughen and Cartnell, gave him a fierce struggle, the three finishing almost together. Kerr received an ovation. The Americans applauded him as enthusiastically as did his own people.

Ewry Champion High Jumper.

The standing high jump was almost exclusively an American event. Ray Ewry, New York A. C., won in the final, topping the bar at five feet, two inches. The Greek competitor, Tsichitiras, was an inch below him, tying with J. A. Biller, of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. Holmes gained a certificate of merit for a jump of five feet.

O'Kelly, of the United Kingdom, won the final in the catch-as-catch-can wrestling heavy-weight, over 161 pounds. France's Epee team took first honors in fencing and the Hungarian team for sabres.

Smithson Placed in Hurdles.

The American heat winners in the 110-meters hurdle were J. C. Garrets, Chicago A. A.; William Rand, Harvard; F. C. Smithson, Multomah (Oregon) A. C.; L. W. Howe, Yale; and A. B. Shaw, Dartmouth. The United Kingdom took seven heats in this event and Belgium and Norway one each.

Sir Thomas Lipton has invited the American athletes and officials to make a cruise on the Erin next week.

CURES ECZEMA QUICKLY

New Drug, Poslam, Now Obtainable in Small Quantities.

Since its discovery one year ago, the new drug, poslam, has successfully cured thousands of chronic cases of eczema and other distressing skin afflictions. Heretofore poslam has been dispensed solely for the benefit of eczema patients in large jars sufficient for a month's treatment. This was found to be an inconvenience to many thousands who use it for minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, herpes, acne, scaly scalp, complexion blemishes, itching feet, piles, etc., which require but a small quantity to cure. To overcome this, and in response to urgent appeals, the dispensers of poslam have been obliged to adopt, in addition to the regular two-dollar package, a special fifty-cent size, which in future may be found on sale at the Skidmore Drug Co. and other leading drug stores in Portland, or may be ordered direct from the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West 25th Street, New York City. In all eczema cases poslam stops itching with first application, and proceeds to heal immediately; chronic cases being cured in two weeks. In less serious skin troubles, results are seen after an overnight application.

Samples for experimental purposes may still be had, free of charge, by writing to the laboratories for them.

Lard has been in existence a long time—so has indigestion

Human nature is hard to solve. People who are most particular about adapting the weight of their wearing apparel to the season and its conditions, who never think of going out in a storm without an umbrella and rubbers, who would not sit in a draft for a farm, will day after day eat lard-soaked food and not realize for an instant that it is clogging their whole inner machinery and likely to result in a full-fledged case of indigestion.

Lard is produced from hog-fat, sometimes impure, always indigestible, and there's a good day coming when no one will think of using it for cooking. Cottolene is the only rational frying and shortening medium in the world. It is made from refined vegetable oil and choice beef suet—everything about it is digestible and conducive to health.

It is a product of Nature.

It will make pure, palatable, healthful food, and food which anyone can eat and enjoy without the after-pangs of a disordered stomach.

Try Cottolene once and you'll never-more be a friend to lard.

Cottolene is Guaranteed We hereby authorize your grocer to refund your money in case you're not pleased after having given COTTOLENE a fair test.

Never Sold in Bulk COTTOLENE is packed in pails with a patent air-tight top, to keep it clean, fresh and wholesome; also to prevent it from absorbing the disagreeable odors of the grocery, such as fish, oil, etc.
