GENUINE GIANT CHERRIES.-Cherries measuring an inch and one-eighth in diameter were received at the per-manent exhibit of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday by Colonel A. W. Miller, custodian of the exhibit, who Miller, custodian of the exhibit, who will preserve them for inspection by visitors. The fruit is known as the Giant cherry, and is a cross between the Bing and the Lambert. The specimens just received were grown by Julius Kallach in his yard at Woodiawn. They excited a great deal of interest yesterday from visitors to the exhibit. The size and color of the fruit was a revelation to a number of Eastern people who had never seen such cherries before. The tree is 8 years old and has borne heavily each season for the past several years. The cherries are of a diameter about equal to a 50-cent piece. Eight years. The cherries are of a diameter about equal to a 50-cent piece. Eight cherries ranged in a row measured nine and one-fourth inches. The color is a dark red and the flavor delicious. BELMONT-STREET BELMONT-STREET IMPROVEMENT. — A movement is on foot on the part of the property-owners to improve Belmont street with hard-surface bitulithic pavement between East Fortieth street and West avenue. The cost is estimated at $51,765. Already provisions have been made for paving Belmont between East Thriy-fifth and Fortieth streets with hard-surface pavement, thus providing a well-paved street between East Twentieth street to Mount Tabor. From East Twentieth street west to East Tenth the improvement plan is still pending, alimprovement plan is still pending, al-though an effort is being made to have the street paved with crushed rock. Out of all these movements it is expected that finally Belmont will be improved to West avenue this year and on to Ta-bor Heights later. The Mount Tabor Push Club has a committee out to ex-tend Belmont street to Tabor Heights. Belmont is the longest and naturally the most important street extending eastward

IDARO PASTOR COMING.-Mizpah Presby terian Church, at Powell and Mary streets, has extended a call to Rev. Harry Leeds, of Fayette, Idabo, and he has accepted the call, which was submitted to a congregational meeting. The vote was unanimous. The written call be sent to Rev. Mr. Leeds soon as it has been signed the officials of the church. Rev. Leeds preached in Mispah Church and made a most favorable salor. He is known to Rev. W. S. CITY NEWS IN BRIEF WOMAN PALMIST ARRESTED.—As a result of complaints registered by the city license inspector that the police are careless in enforcing the city ordinance prohibiting the practice of professional fortune tellers, the police last night arrested tune tellers, the police last night arrested Mrs. G. Rogers, a palmist, at 51% North Third street. The woman was taken into custody by Patrolmen Keinien and Klingel on a warrant sworn out by Judge Van Zante in the Municipal Court. She was released on ball. That this new ordinance has not been enforced and that other arrests for the same character of offense will no doubt take place is probable, from the fact that the license authorities have reported several violations to the Chief of Police within the past few days.

ENPLOITATION IS FAR-REACHING.—A concrete instance of the good results of exploitation of the Oregon country, as being carried on by the local commercial bodies, is shown in the immigration and settlement here of Adolph Chaes and family, who have arrived from Munich, Germany, and have settled on a farm near Salem. They are most enthusiastic immigrants and are working to bring others of their countrymen to this favored state. Mr. Glass is the father of nine children, and his coming to Oregon followed a brief correspondence with Tom Richardson, manager of the Commercial Club. He visited Mr. Richardson after his arrival and declared himself as very his arrival and declared himself as very much pleased with his new home.

Science of Teaching Discussed at Institute.

SPEECHES BY SPECIALISTS

Miss Deo Whittlesey, F. W. Goodrich, Miss Julia Beth Farrell and Others Address Session of Catholic Teachers.

lic Educational Institute, now being held at the West Side High School, was well attended yesterday. The principal features of the morning's session were addresses on departmental work by the following specialists: Miss Deo Whittlesey, subject, "How Best to Teach Geography": F. W. Goodrich, "Child Voice Training"; Miss Helen F. Burke, "A Talk on Pedagogy"; Miss Julia Beth Farrell, "The Correct Way to Read."

Miss Whittlesey, in her address, roundly scored that element in society which concerns itself principally with means of spending a life of leisheld at the West Side High School with means of spending a life of lefs-ure, knowing naught and caring less how the proverbial "other half" lives. Taking up the subject of her address she said:

"Most of our children are compelled

"Most of our children are compelled to study their geography lessons from text books. They have not the means with which to travel and learn their geography at first hand. I have always contended that a child should not be taught geography in the manner at present used, but rather by the adoption of a somewhat more graphic method. There surely is a way in which this subject could be presented to the little ones which would have a more lasting effect and at the same time lessen the strain upon them time lessen the strain upon them in memorizing."

Miss Farrell used several pupils of her department to illustrate the proposed method of reading, with regard to inflection and accentuation. She made some very practical suggestions to those present who were interested in the cure of lisping and stuttering.

F. W. Goodrich, of this city, who has entire charge of the musical department of the institute, discussed the training of children's voices. He pointed out a common error among teachers of voice culture in using the same method of teaching children to sing that is used with adults. He holds that the anatom-ical construction of the child's voice, being in a formative and undeveloped stage, should not be handled as though the articulative growth had stowed stage, should not be handled as though the articulative growth had stopped.

Two musical numbers were very feelingly rendered by Miss Nona Lawlor at the opening of the afternoon session. They were "The Dove" (Ronaid), and "A Chain of Roses" (Lohr). Following these numbers, Father Ford, director of studies, St. Ignatius College, San Francisco, Cal., interpreted several cantos from Dante, taking the XXIII Canto of "Paradise Lost," he rendered it in Italian.

Tarause Lost, he rendered it in Italian.

J. N. Coghlan, of this city, made an address on "Adenoids." He said in part:
"It is with sincere pleasure I have accepted the invitation of your chairman to address your convention on a subject of such importance and internal such importance and interest to us all Particularly fitting is it that your profession, with its multitude of responsibilities in the proper education of our children, should be thoroughly conversant with a disease that can so seriously affect their physical and men-tal condition. For the vocal instructor, as well as the general educator, this as well as the general educator, this disease of adenoids has a general significance. No doubt many most excellent voices have been ruined by allowing children through ignorance or carelesses to go through life suffering from this pathological condition. Like many of our medical advancements, the discovery of adenoids and their true significance is of comparatively recent date. It was first accurately described and the attention of the medical world called to it about 1880 by Dr. Meyer, of Copenhagen, Denmark. Since that time the hagen, Denmark. remarkable degree to the importance of its early recognition and treatment.

"This has become possible only through the energetic teaching of the medical profession, the teaching profession and the press. In the present generation it can be safely said that the complications of this disease have been reduced in enlightened communities at least 50 per cent. Among the many other afflictions which adenoids cause, it is a well-known fact that 75 per cent of the deafness found in childhood and adult life is due directly to the evil influence of this growth. It is not my intention to speak technically on this disease, but in a general way to call your attention to its evil influences on child life and give a description of its manifold symptoms, so it may be readily recognized and the attention of parents called to the importance of each of the safety of the confidence of the confidence of the confidence of the importance of each of the confidence of the confidence of the confidence of the importance of each of the confidence of the called to the importance of each of the called the c

"In summing up the more prominent symptoms of this disease, I wish to symptoms of this disease, I wish to emphasize the peculiar facial expression, dead-sounding voice, open mouth, irregular front teeth, apparent dullness with marked inattentiveness, due to faulty hearing. These should be quite sufficient grounds for those in charge of children to see that they have proper medical examination and treatment, which should never be delayed unnecessarily on account of the serious nature of the many accompanying complications. In spite of the heat an audience of considerable size and unusually fine intelligence saw the performance and expressed approval of the efforts of the players.

The occasion was an unusually good opportunity for Miss Aileen May, who had the part of Sans-Gene, the washerwoman duchess, who was raised by one of those accidents of the French Revolution to a position of state. Miss May although she was forced to stand comparison with a number of other actresses who have appeared here in the part proved quite equal to the occasion and demonstrated again, as she has many times in the past that she is an actress of exceptional ability. Peter Lorati Finds Conditions Quite Prosperous in Italy.

Peter Lorati, a wine merchant of Portland, in business here for 30 years, who left last Winter to visit his old home in Italy, returned yesterday to Portland. He left Portland January 22 and sailed from New York on the French steamer Provence, arriving at Havre February 2 and Paris two days after. He then proceeded to Milan, Italy, and from there went to Lake Como, where in the little village of his birth he found his mother, aged 31, awaiting him with open arms singe of his birth he found his mother, aged 51, awaiting him with open arms and a blessing. He says his mother is strong and vigorous, drinks her bottle of old wine every day, her cellar containing some choice vintages nearly 40 years old. He remained at Como two months, and being there joined by he wife and family, they had the old mother accompany them on a trip to Paris, where the families from both sides of the Atlantic spent some weeks together. Mr Lorati returned to this country after taking his wife and two children to Copenhagen, Denmark, where the to visit Mrs. Lorati's parents, that
