CZAR WELCOMES REPUBLIC'S HEAD

Lifts Interdict on Marseillaise at Reception to President Fallieres.

NAVAL DISPLAY AT REVAL

Remnant of Russian Navy Opens Ranks for French Warship. Fallieres and Czar Have Several Conferences.

REVAL, July 27 .- The harbor Reval was bathed in sunshine for the meeting between Emperor Nicholas, of Russia, and President Fallieres, of France, which occurred this afternoon. The ceremony was similar to the in-terview of King Edward and the Em-peror two weeks ago. The President arrived here at 2 o'clock in the after-noon on the warship Verite, which was escorted by the armored cruiser Dupont Thouars and the gunboat Cassini, and found awaiting him the principal part of Russia's fighting fleet, including the battleships Slava and Tsarevitch and the cruisers Bogatyr, Oleg and Admiral Makaroff; drawn up in two lines.

Marselllaise Heard Once More.

The French squadron, by making a sweeping maneuver around the end of the Russian line, took up an assigned the Russian line, took up an assigned position between the two rows, the Verite dropping anchor midway between the Emperor's yacht Standart sind the Dowager Empress' yacht Polar Star, which by a special mark of favor was assigned to Admiral Touchard, the French ambassador to Russia, to be used as his residence during the Presidence in the presidence of the presidence of dent's interview.

As the French ships swung into place a series of salutes was fired and the crews of both nations exchanged hearty and prolonged cheers. The strains of the Marseillaise, so long interdicted in Russia on account of its revolutionary connections, were heard on the quar-terdeck of the Imperial yacht Standart and the Russian warships.

Exchange of Visits.

The Emperor immediately sent Admiral Dikoff, minister of marine, to bid M. Fallieres welcome to Russia and after a short interval the French President, accompanied by his suite on a gorgeous state barge towed by a launch, proceeded to the Standart to make the acquaintance of the Russian Emperor. Emperor Nicholas met him at the gangway and greeted him with the greatest cordiality. M. Fallieres was then presented to the Empress of Russia, whose hand he kissed, after which the Imperial children and the members of the Russian squadron were presented to him.

The French president wore conventional evening clothes with a Russian gorgeous state barge towed by tional evening clothes with a Russian order, and was a conspicuous figure among the gorgeous uniforms of the Russian officers.

Czar and President Confer.

The Emperor later returned the President's visit on board the Verite and spent an hour inspecting the modern French warship. The interchange of visits lasted throughout the entire afternoon and they furnished the occa-sion for long informal conversations between M. Fallieres and Emperor

My Friends: This is the first National convention of the Independence party. Whether it shall prove an historical event can ever reach the importance of the Bea-ond Continental Congress, but the principle they met to declare we meet to preserve, and the ilbertise they assembled to secure we have assembled to protect. I believe, therefore, that we will do a service to our fellow-citizens second only to the inestim-able service rendered by the founders of this Government if we shall found a party which will remain unfailingly (althul to the cause of the people, to the principles of the Declaration of Independence and to the fundamental American Ideas of liberty, equality and opportunity for all.

New Party Necessary.

I believe that, if any party is necessary to this country, to preserve the Government as the fathers framed it, a new party is neces-sary, if any party is necessary to promote progress and prosperly, to encourage the housest business man and to protect the hon-est workingman, a new party is necessary; if any party is necessary to represent the typical American citizen, to represent the people in their struggles with the tyrannical monopolies which constitute the trusts, a new party is necessary.

people in their struggles with the tyramical monopolies which constitute the trusts, a new party is necessary.

In 1791 Thomas Jefferson, who had penned the principles of the Declaration of Independence, founded the Democratic-Republican party to perpetuate those principles. In 1848 this party, founded to be the party of liberty, had become the party of privileges and the Democratic party came into being and crystallized about the personality and principles of Andrew Jackson. In 1854 the Democratic party had become the property of an arrogant aristocracy, which denounced the self-evident truth of the Declaration of Independence as "self-evident lies." Then the Republican party was born to restore the action of the Government to the principles of Washington and Jefferson and Abraham Lincoin led it to victory.

Is it not time, is there not need, for a new party which shall take up the work of the parties of Jefferson, of Jackson, of Lincoin and preserve for us and for the citizens of the future the rights and liberties which these parties in their hour of usefulness preserved for the citizens of their time?

Both Old Parties Decadent.

The old parties, in this day of their decadence, are no longer equal to this work for they have become unfaithful to the principles which inspired them and unworthy of the pariots who founded them. The Republican party is the open-handed, avowed hand-maiden of the trusts. It scorns those who would rescue it, repudiates those who would reform it, and glories brazenly in its profitable infamy. The Democratic party is merely envious of its sorded sister's Ill-gotten fuery. It upbraids her at one election and imitates her at the next.

The Republican leaders are the political attorneys of the trusts and monopolies, the representatives in public life of those giant corporations which have superseded the people in this republic as the source of power and the seat of authority. The Democratic vanguard is a Falsiaff's army, it is led by a knight arrayed in a motley of modified professions and compromised principles, or altered opinion and retracted statements. The old parties, in this day of their de

Band of Boodlers and Bravos.

Mr. Hearst at this point in his address mentioned the names of Sullivan, Hopkins, Murphy, McClellan, Taggart, Ryan, Belmont, Baltey and Williams, describing them as officers of the Democratic vanguard and designating them by most uncomplimentary terms. He then resumed as follows:

He then resumed as follows:

A Faistaff's army, whose banner hears on one side a watchword for the people and on the other a password for the people and on the other a password for the trusts, whose only object le office at any cost, whose motto is "after us the deluge."

Assuming that Mr. Bryan himself is all that his most ardent admirers claim him to be, a great lawyer, an enlightened statesman, an inspired patriot, still a man is known by the company he keeps, and no decent Democrat can tolerate his free companions. No citizen can let down the bars of office to such an All's band of boodlers and bravos.

No prudent citizen will support a combination to which Taggart suppiles a credit and Parker a platform, for which Bryan will pay the penalty. Back of both parties and underlying each are those Captain Kidds of industry, those highwaymen of high finance, who resides that to builder selds the receipts over Policy for New Party.

I urge our party to take a broad and libera prices of the country, but to distinguish be-tween honest business everywhere and those tween honest business everywhere and those criminal concerns which plunder through political pull and pay for political protection.

nor destructive, like the Democratic party.

The Republican platform says nothing and means nothing. It is a platform of statistical invention and political evasion. It is obviously the product of a party whose sole purpose is to stand pat and whose sole desire is to stay pat. The Democratic platform contains some good and original things are not good and the good things are not original. It was built by political jackdaws who feathered their nests with the plumes of others without understanding their significance or intention as to their performance. It is the habitation of a hermit crab, which has no shell of its own and invades the first convenient one without regard to properly or propriety. It is a platform, too, of reconciliation and restraction, of atonoment and apology, of harmony and hypocrisy, for in compliance with a former computer Parker has pronounced peace. Bill Bailey has poured Standard Oil upon the troubled waters and Bryan has killed not only the fatted calf but the goose that laid the golden egg.

Cannot Serve Two Masters.

My Friends: This is the first National convention of the Independence party whicher it shall prove an historical event or marsly a passing political incident dependence party. He who tries must serve one and decelve the other, must which we shall deliberate and act.

If the men who met in Independence Hall in Philadelphia on the Fourth of July, 1776, had had within them any feeling of hesitancy, any dispensition toward compromise or concession, that day would now pass as any other day upon the calendar. But the particles who assembled there had courage in their hearts, determination in their minds, high purpose in their souls, and the Fourth of July is satured throughout the world as the hirthday of liberty for all men.

This too much to say that our convention No man can serve two masters, and n an can concillate the conflicting element
