Business Men's Club Will See That Section Is Considered by Board.

The East Side Business Men's Club met last night in the Healy building. Grand avenue, and after discussion decided to confer with the Park Commission relative to plans for parks for the East Side. C. A. Bigelow, president of the club, announced at the opening of the meeting, that he had been informed that an effort was being made to sell to the city a large tract of land adjoining the City Park. Ing a loss of $100,0 which would take a considerable portion of the $1,000,000 of park money. He pointed out that the East Side is practically without parks.

The question was raised whether the plans of the Park Commission are known. Councilman Kellaher said that he was under the impression that the East Side would fare well in the matter of parks. On motion Councilman Kellaher, C. A. Cailf, H. H. Newhall, M. B. McFaul and O. S. Fulton were appointed to confer with the Park Commission and ascertain what the plans for the entire city are before further action be taken.

Launch Rose, With 34 Aboard. Held at Sea by Fog.

LIFE-SAVERS TO RESCUE

Captain Johns Towed Into Yaquina Bay-Makes Fatal Blunder Which Almost Causes Loss of Vessel and Passengers.

NEWPORT, Aug. 6.—(Special.)—After being towed from sea into Taquina Bay, Captain Johns, of the launch Rose, nearly lost his vessel through an error of judg-ment yesterday. For the second time in two hours Captain Wellander, of the Lifesaving Crew and Tyler of the gasoline schooner Condor, put him on the right track and helped him to safety. Of the 34 persons on the Rose, which lay out at sea all night in a dense fog, 15 were women.

The Rose left for Seal Rocks Monday morning at 3 o'clock with a full crowd of passengers. According to the story brought back by the passengers it did not thicken tilf noon, when Captain Johns was unable to weigh anchor and hurry out of his perilous anchorage because one of the boats was away with amateur hunt-ers. A little later the fog settled down and the Rose was effectually closed in.

Women and Children Suffer.

All that night the men, women and chil-All that night the men, women and children that crowded the little launch's decks huddled together for warmth while the dense fog eddled around them, now opening out an instant to show them the gleaming breakers in shore, again shutting down like a door upon them. At daybreak Captain Johns got under weigh and started up the coast toward Yaquina

All Newport Sleepless.

In the meantime all Newport was sleep-less. At 6 o'clock word had been passed that Keeper Wellander, of the Lifesaving station, thought it best to go in search of the Rose and that Captain Tyler, known as one of the most experienced coastwise masters on this coast, agreed with the keeper that something must be done. As a consequence, several hundred people gathered to see the life crew get away in tow of the power schooner Condor. When they returned at dusk, reporting that nothing could be seen or heard of the Rose, the scenes on the waterfrom were harrowing. One woman, Mrs. Jones, of Independence, fainted twice, fearing that her husband was lost. Several mothers and wives paced the streets until Keeper Wellander did his best to allay this excitement by asserting that there could be no imminent danger; that if there were he and his crew would go out.

Deliverance at Hand.

Shortly before 4 o'clock this morning Captain Tyler took the life-saving crew in tow again and started out into the fog relling the bar. At the whistling buoy the faunch was earnestly looked for, but not found. Captain Tyler then mad toward Alsea Bay, keeping a sharp look out as he went along. At 5:15 he sighted the Rose coming toward him in the fog and a moment later the hungry, thirsty and utterly weary people on the Rose were cheering wildly and almost hys-terically at sight of their deliverers.

Johns Makes Grave Error. The run was made back to the bar and there, in spite of the fog, Captain Tyler decided to try to make it in for the sake of the sick and miserable women on board the launch. Instructing Captain Johns to keep close behind him, he wen on in. The various buoys were picked up and the entrance to the harbor made willing to appear to have been brought in by the Condor and the lifesaving crew, put on a spurt of speed and passed the Condor. This move nearly cost him his

At the last moment both Keeper Wellander. in the surfboat, and Tyler on the Condor, climbed quickly out of their places and yelled and waved their caps to Johns, on the launch. Exceeds Last Year's by 40 Per Cent, but Acreage Is Smaller.

ALBANY, Or., Aug. 6 .- (Special.)-Threshing of wheat and osts is now in full swing in Linn County and throughfull swing in Linn County and through-out the Willamette Valley. Some few machines started the latter part of last week. All the threshers are now in the field, and as weather is favorable they are making rapid progress. The oats crop is reported to be a little above the average in this vicinity. The wheat yield per acre is about 40 per cent better than last year, but the per cent better than last year, but the acreage is somewhat smaller. The acreage of wheat in this once great wheat-raising Valley yearly becomes amailer, as the dairy, sheep and other varied interests increase and occupy he once vast wheat fields. There is a great increase, said to be nearly 100 per cent in the acreage of red clover, which seems to be well adapted to this Valley, and is very profitable in connection with the cattle, dairy and sheep business.
