BEHEADS OWN SON

Religious Fanatic Then Brains Daughter With Ax.

ATTACK ON WIFE FAILS

Aged Los Angeles Man Finally Attempts Suicide, but Fails—Awful Crime Long Premeditated. Bought Victims' Tombstones.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—After having prepared three graves in Evergreen Cemetery and caused headstones to be erected—one for himself, one for his son and one for his married daughter—Henry J. Duffy this morning killed his two children with an axe and attempted to kill himself with a butcherknife. An effort to kill his wife failed.

Fred A. Duffy, 24 years old, an automobile machinist, was beheaded in his bed at 24 North Mountainview avenue, where he lived alone with his father. This murder was committed while the young man lay asleep, as there is no evidence of a struggle, but the old man gouged out the eyes and mutilated the face horribly.

The murderer then took his bloody axe, concealed in a sack, to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Zaldah LaComb, with whom his wife was living. There he struck the daughter two fierce blows in the back of the neck as she ran from him, splitting her skull with one blow and decapitating her with the other.

A blow was aimed at the older woman, who threw up her arm and protected her head, but had her elbow terribly gashed. She escaped with her life.

Duffy then returned to his son's house, where he was hacking at his throat with a butcher knife when the police arrested him. Duffy really took three lives, for his daughter was within a week of becoming a mother.

His Mind Was Blank

Tonight Duffy lies writhing with epilepsy, strapped to a cot in the receiving hospital. He understands questions and readily answers.

"I don't remember anything about hitting my boy," he said. "That part of it is a blank. I do remember hitting my daughter. I seemed to wake up then. 'Why did you kill her?' 'Where you angry with her?' he was asked.

"No, I loved her. Something seemed to overpower me and make me do it. I wish I could let me die. If they would unloose my hands I'd kill myself."

The tragedy occurred about 8 this morning in the extreme northwestern part of the city. Duffy lived at the home of his son, Fred Duffy, at 24 North Mountainview street. He had been on the verge of violent insanity for weeks from religious enthusiasm. He was a member of Peniel Hall, a local religious organization, holding nightly meetings in the East Side.

Last night Duffy attended a religious meeting and worked himself into an almost frantic frame of mind with religious ardor. When he awoke this morning at the house of his son, he was suddenly seized with a desire to kill. Going to the rear of the house he selected a sharp-bladed axe, with which he returned to the house.

Entering stealthily the bedroom of his son, where the latter lay asleep, he crept close to the side of the bed and raising the weapon aloft brought it down with terrific force on the neck of his son. The blow was delivered with such tremendous force that the head of the victim was severed completely from the body and the blade of the axe sunk into the bed clothing. Blood from the dismembered body spurted all over the room.

With a maniacal cry, Duffy rushed from the house and down the street, waving his bloody weapon, making for the house at 451 Northwest Lake avenue, where his wife and daughter, Mrs. LaCom, resided.

Before entering the house, Duffy concealed his axe in a sack which he carried. Mrs. Duffy and her husband had been separated for some time, and she had gone to the home of her daughter to nurse her through approaching confinement.

When Duffy entered the house, she asked: "Where is Fred?"

"Oh, he's gone to work," responded the old man quietly, who a few minutes before had slain his son as he lay asleep.

"But he hasn't had his breakfast," persisted the mother.

Nervously Fingers Ax.

"No, but he got up late and thought he would get something to eat downtown," replied the murderer. The old man sat nervously fingering the sack, while the women proceeded to prepare breakfast. Suddenly he got up, drew the bloody ax from the sack and attacked the women.

The elder woman cried to her daughter to seize the child Margaret and run, while she turned to battle with her insane husband. The first blow descending struck her on the elbow, cutting a frightful gash and breaking the bone. Mrs. Duffy picked up the little child in her arms as she ran. Mrs. La Com in her helpless condition, was unable to run and fell. The old man struck her again and again with the ax, crushing the skull.

The neighborhood was aroused by the Bought Graves for All.

Seven weeks ago Duffy went to the Evergreen Cemetery, where he purchased from the sexton a lot large enough for the burial of four persons, explaining that he wanted it for himself, wife, son and daughter. Three days ago he went to Breeze Bros., undertaking establishment and purchased a coffin for himself. He selected the coffin with great care, insisting that it be an exact size.

Not only did Duffy buy ground for the burial of his victims, but he had headstones erected for three graves. Three plain tombstones were put in place on the lot at his order, bearing the names "Henry J. Duffy," "Fred A. Duffy," "Zaldah La Com." These were his son, his daughter and himself. The graves were placed on either side of the one erected for himself.

Superintendent Miller, of Evergreen Cemetery said that he regarded the man's actions as peculiar when he made arrangements for the lot in the cemetery, but thought nothing of the matter afterwards. Duffy, who is quite well-to-do, paid $60 for the headstones and was in a great hurry to have them erected.

Son Was Machinist.

Fred Duffy, the son, was 24 years of age and unmarried. He was an automobile machinist. It was evident from the condition of the son's body and the room in which both men had slept that the son had never awakened.

Clark A. Duffy, another son, resides in Thompson.

It was stated by the attending surgeons late this afternoon that the old man would recover from his wounds. He is undoubtedly insane. Mrs. Duffy was brought to the receiving hospital, while her husband was in the hands of the surgeon, and placed on an adjoining cot. Neither took any notice of the other. It is feared that the aged woman may lose her mind as a result of the tragedy.

Duffy is suffering from epilepsy and locomotor ataxia and shows symptoms of pneumonia.
