

The Oregonian

Entered at Portland, Oregon, Postoffice as Second-Class Matter, March 10, 1878. Subscription Rates—In Advance. (By Mail.) Daily, Sunday included, one year, $5.00...

Weekly some parts of this letter, with comment and application to the present time.

AGAINST THE BOSSES. In an interview Judge Parker is reported to have said that the people are turning from the Republican to the Democratic party because they are tired of boss rule.

It must not be forgotten that the great uprising against machine domination which is sweeping the country originated in the Republican party. Roosevelt gave it the first truly National impetus, but it has now acquired such momentum that it has become irresistible and is discernible everywhere.

ALL OVER THE COUNTRY the revolt against the boss is Republican. Any one who questions this is requested to look at Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas and New York and see for himself what has been and is being done.

THE SPRINGFIELD RIOT. It is natural that the city authorities in Springfield, Ill. should wish to put the best face possible upon the events of the last few days.

But it is undoubted that the smaller business and property interests of the country, especially in the Southern States, are mostly opposed to Bryan.

But no party can be completely divorced from property and business. There must be recognition of industry, of individual enterprise and talents, and of desire of gain.

Once, in more than fifty years, the Democratic party has had complete control and ascendancy in National affairs. This was under Cleveland's second administration.

Parker, by speaking for Bryan now, after his contemptuous treatment by Bryan and his supporters, proves himself merely a small partisan, entitled to the same partiality that the enemy was treated by the Bryan people in Oregon and in every state, four years ago.

years by an alliance between the forces of hypocrisy and crime. What else can come of such an alliance but anarchy? The tone of the citizens who have undertaken to explain the riot seems to be morally low.

It is useless to try to account for the Springfield and other negro-harrying mobs by the delays and detentions of the courts. The shortcomings of the courts have little or nothing to do with the matter.

For some years the United States Geological Survey has been investigating Alaska mineral resources, and notwithstanding the fact that more than 150,000 square miles of the interior is as yet an entirely unknown region, it has been held including anthracite as well as bituminous, are scattered over the area investigated.

NEEDLESS FIRE LOSS. "No country, however rich, can suffer such enormous losses without seriously impairing its prosperity," says a recent circular in which the National Board of Fire Underwriters called attention to the enormous losses which are being suffered in this country.

Students of our history long since were convinced that Webster never said or wrote this. Yet it has been attributed to him a thousand times.

What do we want with the vast, worthless areas, this region of drifting sands and whirlwinds of dust, of cactus and prairie-dogs? Students of our history long since were convinced that Webster never said or wrote this.

Introduction of a training course for teachers in the high schools of Oregon should have a very beneficial effect not only in helping to relieve the scarcity of teachers, but also in raising the standard of qualifications.

It is singularly convenient for a non-partisan Governor to be away from home on the occasion of the opening of the Democratic National campaign in Oregon.

At what age does a man's right to marry, over the objections of his greedy sons, cease? "Surely the people do rule," cries Mr. Sherman. That's right. Some people.

having excellent courses of study in their catalogues, did no very creditable work, if reports are true, in preparing the students for work as teachers. They served the purpose, chiefly, of local high schools.

At Denver we were depressed especially by one speech, because it was made by a man of high repute, a man whose name is well known to all of us.

Professor T. C. Elliott, of Walla Walla, writing in the Outlook, declares there is no proof that Webster ever said of the Oregon country: "What do we want with the vast, worthless areas, this region of drifting sands and whirlwinds of dust, of cactus and prairie-dogs?"

Students of our history long since were convinced that Webster never said or wrote this. Yet it has been attributed to him a thousand times. Vigilant examination thus has failed to discover the origin. It came doubtless from some very obscure source, not now ascertainable.

Demands of commerce occasionally would need reform in an unexpected way. The fruit trade insisted on and has finally secured refrigerating plants on steamers plying between the United States and the West Indies and Central and South American ports.

In England it is different. What American could conceive of Congress regulating automobiles? Yet the House of Commons lately has been discussing the restriction of motorists.

Since our theaters are likely to try to get along without musicians, probably the managers will welcome suggestions for entertaining the audiences between the acts.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Lord Macaulay on Democracy

What Famous Writer Had to Say of America Many Years Ago. Collier's Weekly. The effect of democracy on intellectual life, since the government is a topic to which these editorials have a persistent tendency to recur.

At Denver we were depressed especially by one speech, because it was made by a man of high repute, a man whose name is well known to all of us.

Professor T. C. Elliott, of Walla Walla, writing in the Outlook, declares there is no proof that Webster ever said of the Oregon country: "What do we want with the vast, worthless areas, this region of drifting sands and whirlwinds of dust, of cactus and prairie-dogs?"

Students of our history long since were convinced that Webster never said or wrote this. Yet it has been attributed to him a thousand times. Vigilant examination thus has failed to discover the origin.

Since our theaters are likely to try to get along without musicians, probably the managers will welcome suggestions for entertaining the audiences between the acts.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Had to Support Himself. Kansas City Journal. It is told that Cyrus Leland, while pushing his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, wrote a letter to a Kansas farmer asking him for his support for the primary.

Great Farm Value Increase in Seven Years

Extraordinary Prosperity of the Producers of the United States. Between 1900 and 1907 Farmers' Property Advanced $5,000,000,000.

Manufacturers' Record. The increase in the value of farm property of $5,000,000,000 between 1900 and 1907 is nearly nine times as great as the aggregate National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.

It is nearly three times as large as the aggregate savings-bank deposits of the whole country. Think for a moment of the increase, simply seven years' increase, in the value of farm property being nine times as great as the total National banking capital of the United States.