

PURCHASE IS SAID TO BE PREPARED

High School Facilities Adequate Without New Building, Argue Citizens.

WOULD SELL SITE BOUGHT

Suggestion Made That District Would Gain by Spending Money to Enlarge Present West Side Structure.

Lack of need for another High School building at this time is another reason assigned by protesting West Side property-owners against the action of the Board of Education in purchasing for that purpose the block bounded by Couch, Davis, Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets.

Interested owners of property in the vicinity of the new High School site argue that the purchase was premature so far as the present needs of the district are concerned.

Present Site Proper One.

It is further argued by the protesting parties that the High School building on the West Side is admirably suited for school purposes and for that reason they are doubtful if the district could sell the property for anything near its real value.

Could Remodel Old Building.

"Even should more room be required on the side of the river for High School purposes, why not expend $2,000, the purchase price of the new site, in enlarging the old building?"

"I also understand that the Board proposes to sell the West Side building and apply the proceeds on the cost of constructing a new building."

$125 A WEEK.

How would you like to receive the other weekly for a week for the use of your hands before the public? Think you would enjoy the work? You of course have noticed the young man who is demonstrating the new Antiseptic Hand Cleaner known as "Flash" on the streets every day.

Says District Got Bargain.

In discussing the action of the Board of Education in purchasing the additional High School site, Herman Wittenberg, chairman of the Board, yesterday said the Directors felt that they had proceeded in the best interest of the district, at the same time making provision for its future needs.

Would Let People Vote.

"From the sale of the present West Side High School we expect to realize nearly enough money to construct the proposed building on the new site. We are not prepared to admit that the location selected for the new High School is in an exclusive residence district.

Plans are now being made for warehouses within the blocks of the High School site, which already is surrounded by a number of boarding and rooming-houses.

UNHAPPY MARRIAGE COOKS IN MEALS

Fred Weller Also Obligated to do Monday Washing, Because Wife Refuses.

HE IS GRANTED DIVORCE

Two Other Husbands and One Wife Appeal Successfully to Court for Separation From Uncongenial Mates.

The "new woman" was very ably described to Judge Morrow in the Circuit Court yesterday morning by Fred Weller, a salesman, who was granted a divorce from Lora Weller. He said he told him once and only once married him so as to be able to write "Mrs." before her name.

Weller said he was married at Sacramento in June, 1907, and that he got along very well with his wife for a month. Then he began to inquire into the reason why his meals were not prepared, with the result that Mrs. Weller did not speak to him for two weeks. Weller said he fell on a rusty nail, and that while he writhed in pain his wife stood by and laughed. He was compelled to make his own puddings to apply to the wound.

Claire B. Jenkins obtained a divorce from H. C. Jenkins, a bartender at the Keystone saloon, Fourth and Flinders streets. She said she was beaten and kicked last December, and that he pulled her hair. She also accused her husband of a statutory offense, involving Mabel Denham, of Vancouver, Wash., was a witness. The Jenkins were married at Oregon City, November 25, 1905.

That the husband whom she knew by the name of Carl B. Newcomb has another wife, and that he goes under the name of Lincoln B. Galtcomb, was the statement of Lucy A. Newcomb in a divorce court yesterday morning. After hearing her testimony, Judge Morrow granted the divorce.

She said she found out his true name when she met the other wife, Mrs. Newcomb told her husband swearing at her in the Lyric Theater lobby, and again inside the theater when he was about to go to the office. She reminded him that he should have his check ready for the inspection of the usher. Newcomb is a traveling eye collector, and is now at Little at Kalama, Wash., last March.

Tenbroeck, the New York agent of these lines, and the message also conveyed the address of the Oregon athletes as 129 York street, New Haven.

Mr. Tenbroeck said that Mr. McMurray that the three athletes were ready to come to Oregon with the Portland committee, and requested an immediate reply giving information as to intentions of Portland people. The message was in error about Kelly, who was in Scotland, and who is expected to join Smithson and Gilbert in New York.

In support of the work that is being done to show appreciation of the work done by Oregon athletes, Ben Selling made the following statement: "The tests of Smithson, Gilbert and Kelly are deserving of the highest commendation, and Portland should make the affair a grand success. If the subscription already raised is not sufficient to meet requirements, I would suggest that a list containing 50 business men, the names of whom I will furnish, be asked to give nothing less than $20 each. I myself will help with $20."

VANDERBILT MADE CHAIRMAN

Heads Committee That Will Receive Olympic Athletes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt has accepted the chairmanship of the general committee of the Olympic reception committee and has contributed $500 to the fund. Mr. Vanderbilt's letter, which is dated Newport, R. I., indicates that he will take an active part in the reception. Contributions are coming in daily, and it is expected that there will be enough money subscribed to cover all the expenses, including the medals. The total amount received and promised up to last night was $4690.
