

ELLIS IS LIKELY TO SUCCEED PURDY

May Accept Position as Assistant to Attorney-General.

CHEERING NEWS FOR TAFT

Visitors From North Dakota, Illinois and Minnesota Confident of Republican Victory in Those States.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Aug. 26.—While the announcement cannot be definitely made, Mr. Taft today gave it as his belief that Wade H. Ellis, Attorney-General of Ohio, will accept the position as assistant to the Attorney-General, to succeed Milton D. Purdy, who had been promoted to a Federal judgeship in Minnesota.

This opinion was expressed after a conference between Mr. Ellis and Mr. Taft today.

Optimistic political information was brought to Mr. Taft from several sources today. Though he participated in several conferences, none of them, he said, was at his initiative.

Want Taft to Visit North Dakota. Senator P. J. McCumber, of North Dakota, bringing with him James Kennedy, Republican National committeeman from the state, were unannounced visitors. Mr. Taft was informed that North Dakota wanted to be included in any speech making itinerary that might be arranged for him.

Speaking for his own state, as well as Minnesota and South Dakota, Mr. McCumber predicted that very little if any change would be found in the electoral votes. It had been demonstrated, he said, that the state issues and local differences in the party had little or no effect on the National situation.

Visitor From Illinois. Senator Albert J. Hopkins, of Illinois, who is a visitor, believes the Republican National and state tickets will be successful in Illinois to the extent of 100,000 majority, although he concedes that Mr. Gompers may turn some labor votes to Bryan.

"But," added Senator Hopkins, "my opinion is that Bryan's record as a free trader will more than offset the votes he will get from Gompers."

TALKS INTO PHONOGRAPH. Judge Taft speaks of good work of foreign missions.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Aug. 26.—"A little sermon in a phonograph, is what one of the phonographic records recently made by Judge Taft is called. The generally expressed curiosity to know what he said to the talking machine was gratified today by this reproduction.

"I have known a good many people who were opposed to foreign missions. I have known a good many regular attendees at the church, who were not so religiously, if you choose to use that term, refused to contribute to foreign missions. I confess that there was a time when I was enjoying a smug superiority with reference to the extension of civilization in those far-distant lands. I did not realize the immense importance of foreign missions. The truth is, we have not to wake up in this country, we are not all there in the world. There are lots besides and there are lots of people besides us who are entitled to our effort and our money and our sacrifice to help them in the world. No man can study the movement of modern civilization from an impartial standpoint and not realize that Christianity and the spread of Christianity are the only basis for hope of modern civilization in the growth of popular self-government. The spirit of Christianity is pure democracy. It is the equality of man before God—the equality of man before the law, which is, as I understand it, the most noble manifestation that man has been able to make.

"I speak not of foreign missions from a purely religious standpoint. That has been and will be done. I speak of them from the standpoint of political governmental advancement, the advancement of modern civilization, and I think I have had some opportunity to know how dependent we are on the spread of Christianity for any hope we may have of uplifting the peoples whom Providence has thrust upon us for our guidance."

HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

San Francisco Woman Accused of Importing English Girl.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Deputy United States Marshal Towle and Nolan have arrested Jessie Hayman, keeper of a disorderly resort in this city, on a charge of having in her control Ethel May Southwood, a native of England, brought to this country for immoral purposes. The woman was later released on bonds in the sum of $10,000.

The arrest follows the crusade of the Government against the importation of women into this country for immoral purposes. The immigration department has a number of agents gathering evidence and it is anticipated that a number of other arrests for the same offense will be made soon.

A treaty has recently been made between the United States and a number of other countries, the platform and importation of women for immoral purposes is made an extraditable offense.

TAFT IS TRULY MODEST

Declines to Attend Campaign Opening Novel Grounds.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 26.—Congressman James Kennedy, who went to Hot Springs to try to persuade William H. Taft to attend the National Republican campaign opening here September 6, quoted the Republican candidate as saying that he would not attend as he could not bear to hear himself praised. According to Mr. Kennedy, Judge Taft said:

"I feel that for me to accept the invitation to attend the opening would be indecent and entirely out of place. For me to sit on the platform and be forced to hear to the audience every time my name is mentioned would be nauseating as the crowd."

PASTOR ENDS HIS LIFE

LEAVES LETTER DECLARING CHURCH INSINCERE. Could Never Worship "America's Trinity—Success, Pleasure and Gold."

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Ill, half blind, criticizing the church on the score of untruthfulness and insincerity and declaring he could not worship "America's trinity—success, pleasure and gold," Rev. Albert H. Trick killed himself in a room in Mills Hotel today. He was once pastor of a Presbyterian church in Chicago and later had a charge at Saratoga, N. Y. The former pastor left a letter to Charles N. Dowd of this city, which in part follows:

"I have never been able to conquer an inborn contempt for the place money has in this world, though knowing so well how absolutely a fair amount of it at least is necessary to all of us; could never adapt myself, in view of my early ideas, to the methods by which money is made. These are so transparently selfish and so more or less unscrupulous, whether used by the church or the so-called 'world.' I could never worship America's trinity—success, pleasure and gold.

"I rejoice in the better day dawning when society, with its superstitions and errors, like all the other religions of men, shall have passed away and religion itself, free and simple, religion that has a passion for truth, justice, love and liberty, purity and humanity shall prevail. Ye gods, what does the church care for these things—truth, etc.? It twists all the facts, philosophy and expressions of liberty, to make them square with their petty traditions and systems of a world that did, and thought, then they are by the precepts of Robert Ingersoll, and the modern church more nearly follow this exemplary, kindly and honest American than they do the Orient."

Later's Efforts Are Devoted to Investigating Simian Psychology. Practical Men Go Step Further in Their Investigation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The investigation of Meivie Haggerty along the general lines of monkey psychology at the Bronx Park Zoo, have spurred the keepers of the Central Park Zoo to undertake a similar investigation. Two of them are now busy with an experiment by which they say they hope to beat the Harvard expert at his own game.

Patrick Canan, keeper of the Central Park monkey-house, is the leading spirit in these recent experiments. He has been assisted by Keeper Robert Hurth. Baldy Brightest Puppi. The most likely of all the monkeys in the Central Park monkey-house is Baldy. There is also a Baldy in the Bronx Park Zoo on which Mr. Haggerty has experimented a little. But the Bronx Park Baldy is a chimpanzee with the black-faced species. The Central Park Baldy is a ring-tailed monkey and got his name from a tendency to baldness on his pate. Baldy is a noisy little chap. His chattering is louder than that of all the other monkeys.

Keeper Canan had noticed that several of the ring-tailed monkeys in their chattering almost always used sounds which seemed to end in "ch." Most of the sounds made by the monkey tribe sounded, in fact, like "teach." They made that sound when excited or when the keepers appeared with food. They made it at play and sometimes when in deep mood. There was a different intonation, but nearly always the sough "ch" was noticed by Canan and Hurth.

"Why not teach the monkeys the significance of English words ending with 'ch'?" said Canan to his fellow keeper. Hurth said he saw no reason why they could not do this. He was a month or more ago. The words selected by the two keepers were "teach," "reach" and "screach." With these words they set to work. The first word was Baldy's favorite. He would teach Baldy the significance of teach. And this way they worked: Canan would take a nice ripe peach to the cage where Baldy was kept. He would stand in front of him and, holding out the peach, would say "teach" many times.

It was days before Baldy seemed to realize what the keeper was doing. He would make a grab for the fruit. Canan would quickly withdraw his hand, and Baldy would jump about the cage, uttering the "ch" sound. The keeper would end with "ch," but was certainly not "teach."

learns to Say "Teach." But one morning, after repeating the name of the fruit many times, Canan says he thought he detected a sound like "teach" in Baldy's utterance. He tried the repetition of the word, and after a while he says, Baldy made a sound which was as much like "teach" as a monkey could be expected to make. The keeper got the peach and ate it with relish.

Later in the day Canan offered another peach. Baldy appeared delighted and jumped about the cage. The keeper withdrew his arm and said "teach." Baldy, he says, seemed to understand, and after a little while the keeper heard the sound which he says was as much as enough to "teach," so again he gave him the fruit. After that, says Canan, it was not necessary to speak at all when he offered Baldy a peach. For the monkey upon seeing the fruit always hastened to say what the keeper expected him to say, and he always got the peach.

Screach was the next lesson word selected by the keeper. And with this he had more trouble. And with this he used a banana, which, by the way, is an impossible word for a monkey. Canan began the new lesson by offering the fruit, withdrawing it when Baldy grabbed and then saying "screach." And he was so sure that Baldy had understood whether he knew what he was doing or not. Canan kept on saying "screach." Finally, he says, the monkey made a sound which sounded like some foreign way of saying the word "screach." Every time Baldy said what Canan is sure was "screach," the keeper would say "teach," "screach," then, and Baldy would do some screeching which could be heard all over the zoo.

POSTPONE FAIR AT TOKIO

Government Urges Opening Exposition in 1917, Not 1912.

TOKIO, Aug. 26.—The postponement of the Tokyo International Exposition, which is now scheduled for 1912, is being agitated in government circles here and seriously discussed on the ground that the appropriation set aside for this purpose is inadequate and that the time intervening is insufficient for the amount of preparatory work that must be done. No decision has been reached, however, pending the opinion of Count Komura, the new minister of foreign affairs, who returned from London tonight.

The members of the home department of the cabinet are urging the appropriation of 30,000,000 yen (about $5,000,000) for the exposition, and also that the date of the opening be postponed until 1917. The cabinet's contentions on these official points out the fact that the Chicago and the Paris expositions were both postponed beyond the original time set for their opening.

Other members of the cabinet insist that in view of the present financial situation in Japan and of the avowed determination of the United States to reorganize the appropriation of 30,000,000 yen would be inconclusive unless the exposition is postponed.

It pays to buy a Tailored Suit early in the season—you enjoy it most these first cool days.

IT is what the average woman faces the world in. One day's shopping brings her before the eyes of more people than she sees in a week's time in a house gown.

So most women say "yes" to a tailored suit, and put just as much money as possible into looking their best before the world.

A simple suit, well tailored, always stands the test of critics.

Take an imported stuff, cut it over fine models, shape it and tailor it until it can't be beaten—why no woman need fear to stand a chance in it.

Our showing of Tailored Suits includes hundreds of new Autumn models, from $20 to $175. We are sole Portland agents for Pellard of Paris and New York.

We also call attention to hundreds of new hats—from our own workrooms, from New York and the master milliners of Paris.

Earle himself, who at first appeared to be opposed to any movement having for its object his release from jail, was said to have passed a sleepless night in the jail at Goshen, and was constantly watched by a guard, who feared he would attempt to escape. Today he broke down completely, wept and declared that he would attempt to gain his wife's forgiveness. It was after the news of Earle's change in demeanor that his wife expressed a willingness to overlook the treatment which resulted in her husband's arrest. This trouble between the couple arose because Earle had forbidden his wife to nurse their baby. Application was made in Middletown today for bail for Earle, and County Judge Boyce fixed the amount at $1000. It is expected Earle will furnish the security required and shortly be released.
