BANKERS OPPOSE BRYAN'S PROJECT

Local Financiers Look Without Favor on Guarantee Deposits.

THEORY, BUT NOT PRACTICE

Large Proportion of Country's Money Would Be Used in Hazardous Enterprises, Declare Several Experts.

Practically all bankers in the city agree that the plan of W. J. Bryan to guaranty bank deposits is idle and impracticable. They give reasons why it would be a detriment rather than a help to the present banking system of the country. So far as they have been approached, every banker in local financial institutions says that the plan proposed by the Democratic candidate will not work in practice and is at best only a theory.

"The figures as to losses used by the advocates of the guaranty system, showing the losses to be small, are based on the present banking system," declared J. A. Keating, vice-president of the Lumbermen's National Bank.

"At present every banker knows that if his reputation becomes affected by making bad loans the depositors will call upon him for their money. This is one of the most important safeguards of the present banking system. If the depositors feel assured by the system of guaranty of bank deposits that their money will be safe in any event, this safeguard will be removed and there will be a tendency on the part of some banks to carry greater hazards in making loans. Some institutions will enter the field for the use of insiders in speculation.

Banking Change Certain.

"In other words, the entire banking structure will undergo a change and a larger portion of the country's money will be employed in hazardous ways and with much heavier losses to follow. These losses represent wealth which has been destroyed and in the last analysis they come out of the community.

"At present the size of a banking business depends upon its reputation for sound business judgment; that is, as to credits. With the credit of all banks made absolutely equal by the system of guaranty deposits, the size of a bank's business would depend upon the money spent in securing an expensive location, luxurious fixtures and adding to its staff attractive offices. The profits of the banking business under sound and careful management will not warrant extravagance.

"As extravagance will become the means of getting the largest amount of business, there will be a greater temptation to use the depositors' money in hazardous loans at high rates of interest.

"The stockholders of sound banks, and the vast majority of all banks are sound, have provided for the safety of the banks in which they are interested by sound business management, and the depositors of these banks are not asking for any guaranty. It would be a great injustice to the stockholders to levy upon them for losses that may be incurred by banks over whose management they have no control.

"The way to make the banks still safer is to see that they are run safely and to strengthen the ssytem of Government inspection and supervision. This is better than taking losses from the pockets of innocent people."

"I do not believe in a state or National guaranty in any private business," said S. G. Reed, president of the German-American Bank. "Nor do I believe they should engage in any private business. I believe laws can be made to protect depositors of banks as they can be made to protect the stockholders. I cannot say whether the ultimate effect of the guaranty plan would be to lead to overspeculation or not, but as a matter of principle I am opposed to the Government doing anything of that kind."

Politics Thing Apart.

C. F. Adams, president of the Security Savings & Trust Company, deplores the fact that the matter of the guaranty of bank deposits should be dragged into politics.

"This is an economic question," said he, "and, like many other things that are made political questions, should be threshed out on their merits and not made political capital. I consider it absurd to bring such a question into politics."

Lansing Stout, cashier of the Hibernia Savings Bank, is also opposed to the deposit guaranty plan.

"I believe it would lead to speculative methods," he said, "and would bring about more unsafe banking conditions than the present system."

Italian Cruiser Puglia Drops Anchor in Portland Harbor.

WILL STAY SEVERAL WEEKS

Welcomed by Consul Candiani and Representatives of Italian Colony—Celebration and Parade September 20.

The Italian cruiser Puglia, Captain Cusani-Visconti, master, dropped anchor in Portland harbor late yesterday afternoon. The vessel arrived up the river in charge of Pilot Harry Emken at 6 o'clock and was moored between the Steel and Burnside bridges.

As soon as the anchor was dropped the vessel was boarded by Chevalier Dr. C. F. Candiani, Italian Consul, who acted in his official capacity, and welcomed the officers and crew of the warship. F. G. Montrezza accompanied the consul as representative of the Italian colony of Portland. On departing from the ship the Consul was saluted with seven guns.

Representatives of the local colony of the sons of Italy, in private launches, escorted the representative vessel of the Italian navy to her anchorage. The small craft were gaily decorated and the Italian flag was everywhere in evidence. Captain Cusani-Visconti said:

"I have heard so much about Portland and the beautiful scenery and the people, that I cut very short my visit to San Francisco and also Puget Sound so that I would be able to make a long stay in Portland. There are some repairs to be made to the boilers and machinery, and I purposely planned that they be done in Portland. From my observations and reception I do not think that I have made any mistake. The Puglia will remain in Portland Harbor until about the twenty-fourth of September."

September 20, the Italian national holiday, has been set aside as the occasion for the grand celebration and reception for the officers and crew of the Puglia. There will be a parade, in which the crew of the ship, members of the local colony of Italians, and many others will participate. In addition there will be a picnic at the exposition grounds.

The Puglia is a protected cruiser of the third class. She was built in 1899, and measures 269 feet in length. Her complement consists of 13 officers and 275 men. She has been twice in Pacific waters, but this is her first voyage to the Pacific Northwest.

The vessel's armament consists of four 5.9-inch guns, one 2.9-inch, eight 2.2-inch, eight 1.4-inch and two Maxims. She also has two torpedo tubes. Her bunker capacity is 650 tons, speed 20 knots, displacement 2498 tons and engines develop 7000 horsepower.

In addition to Commander Cusani, the cruiser's officers are: Captain, Augusto de Brandis; Lieutenants, Euclide Cullolo, Massimo Bernaroli, Guisseppi Giavotto, Eduardo Comito, Gabrielle Ratti; Second Lieutenant, Gustavo Galdini; Engineer, Italo Casola; Assistant Engineers, Frederico Caldelli and Vincenze Cecere; Surgeon, Adolpho Farese; Commissary, Arturo Dionisi.

OFFERS BRIBE TO JUDGE

Sam Mazurosky Fined $25 and Severely Denounced by Court.

Sadder but wiser, and doubting if there is justice, Sam Mazurosky, a jeweler at 242 Burnside street, was released from Municipal Court yesterday, after the imposition of a fine of $25 and a severe denunciation by Acting Municipal Judge Swett. He was accused by the court of having offered a bribe to his honor.

Mazurosky was arrested for keeping his place open on Sunday. Ex-District Attorney John Manning was retained by the jeweler to defend him. The case was taken under advisement by Judge Swett and he rendered his decision yesterday. In doing so he declared that the defendant had offered him a bribe of $10 to decide the case in his favor.

"I would enter criminal proceedings against you," said the court, "if it were not a case of my word against yours."

Another case of alleged bribery was that of Martin Triphonoff, proprietor of a saloon at 35 Second street. He was accused of having attempted to bribe the patrolman who arrested him for keeping open after hours and was fined $50.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White, of 38 Highland Ave., Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c. bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Sold under guarantee at Woodard, Clarke & Co.'s drug store. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

CITY WELCOMES LAWYERS

MEMBERS OF PORTLAND BAR HOSTS AT RECEPTION.

Men Prominent in the Profession From All Parts of the Country Among Guests.

Visiting attorneys from all parts of the United States, who are returning to their homes after attending the convention of the American Bar Association were guests of Portland lawyers yesterday. About twenty-five prominent members of the bar enjoyed the hospitality of the local professional men and were charmed with the city and their treatment while here.

Two parties of lawyers arrived from the Sound yesterday. Twenty-five came in the morning and a larger delegation arrived in the afternoon, too late to be welcomed as the Portland attorneys had planned. However, the morning visitors were given a warm reception and expressed themselves last night upon leaving the city as having had a most pleasant stay in Portland.

A large delegation of members of the Oregon Bar Association, headed by R. W. Montague, president, and R. T. Platt, chairman of the reception committee, met the visitors at the Union depot. The guests were escorted to the Portland Hotel where headquarters were established. During the forenoon they were left to rest from their journey, and at noon they were taken to the Commercial Club, where luncheon was served, followed by a reception. These functions were purely informal and allowed the visitors to become well acquainted with members of the local bar.

The reception committee provided automobiles that took the guests around the city for a sight-seeing trip. The perfect afternoon made this jaunt a delightful one and the visitors expressed their pleasure at being so pleasantly entertained. The mountains were in full view yesterday and from the Heights a splendid view was had of the city and its environs.

Upon returning from the auto ride, the visitors scattered about the city, following their own inclinations. The majority left the city last night for their homes.

Among the guests of the local Bar Association yesterday were the following prominent members of the profession from all parts of the country:

M. Dickinson, Chicago, who represented Harriman in the famous Illinois imbroglio with Fish, and his opposing counsel Judge Edgar H. Farrar, of New Orleans; Judge U. M. Rose, Little Rock, a member of The Hague conference; Judge Hinkley, secretary of the American Bar Association, of Baltimore, Md.; Treasurer Frederick E. Wadhams, of New York, brother of the Wadhams in this city; Melville Church and Joseph R. Edson, of Washington, D. C.; Peter W. Meldrum, of Savannah, Ga.; Thomas J. Kernan, Baton Rouge, La.; W. L. Putnam, Boston; Jacob Klein, St. Louis; F. W. Lehmann, St. Louis; Charles L. Dudley, Omaha, Neb.; Charles Henry Butler, New York; Henry D. Estabrook, New York; Charles J. Hunt, Cincinnati; Francis F. Fisher, Philadelphia; Amasa M. Eaton, Providence, R. I., and Edward T. Sanford, Knoxville, Tenn.

BRINGS SUIT FOR SLANDER

WILLIAM DEADRICK BEGINS ACTION IN FEDERAL COURT.

Five Thousand Dollars Asked to Soothe Pain Due to Alleged Malicious Charges.

That W. E. Moore, whose home is at Kalama, Wash., sent his wife and child to Portland to visit William Deadrick, only to slander his hospitable friend the following day, is the allegation made in a suit for $5000, filed in the Circuit Court by Deadrick yesterday. The latter characterizes Moore's action as willful and malicious. Constable Lou Wagner and William Kiernan also had their part in the affair, the plaintiff says.

It appears from the complaint that Moore wrote Deadrick early in August, saying that his wife would be in Portland August 6, and asking his friend and Deadrick's wife to entertain her. This they did. The next day Moore is said to have sworn to a warrant in the Justice Court, alleging unbecoming conduct on the part of his wife, and involving O. C. Imus. Articles published in the local dailies about that time, continues the plaintiff, told of these alleged happenings at Deadrick's home. He says the articles were published at Moore's instigation to malign him (Deadrick), when Moore well knew he was telling a falsehood.

Deadrick says it was on August 7 that Constable Lou Wagner and William Kiernan, upon Moore's order, but without proper authority, entered his house and ransacked it, carrying away a part of his personal property. He says that his wife was abused, and that he has been deprived of her companionship because she has been ill since that time.

Not only have Deadrick's feelings been injured, he says, but his reputation has been damaged.

THREE ASK DIVORCE

Two Husbands and One Wife in Local Courts.

ACCUSATION OF CRUELTY

Frequent Indulgence in Liquor Is Charge Against Spouse Upon Which Woman Wants Her Freedom.

John W. Logan refuses to live longer with a wife who makes repeated threats to kill him, who refuses to get his breakfast, and who remains away from home until midnight or next day. So he has filed suit in the Circuit Court to obtain a divorce from Maude A. Logan on the ground of cruelty. He says she is often drunk and that she has a violent temper. The couple were married in Portland, August 15, 1900, and have two children. Logan says that last June his wife took them for an automobile ride one night, which terminated at the Twelve-mile House. He asserts that they returned home the following day.

Logan also tells how his wife ordered beer delivered at the house, and invited the beerwagon driver in to spend the afternoon. Two women were also invited, he says, with the result that all four became drunk. He says his wife's visits to saloons are numerous. The husband says his wife once stood within a few feet of him, pointed a loaded revolver at his head, and said she had a notion to shoot him. He persuaded her not to do so, and removed the weapon from the house. Then his wife, borrowed a pistol from a neighbor, and told him she had it hidden under her pillow. He took it. Last month a third weapon was obtained by his wife, Logan asserts, and hidden in the folds of her dress.

The property rights and the custody of the children have been adjusted, Logan says, to the satisfaction of both parties, and all that is now necessary is to have the cruel bonds severed.

Married at a country church in Clackamas County in November, 1898, and taking to drink a year later, J. W. Baker is being sued for a divorce in the Circuit Court by Mrs. E. Baker. She says that her husband frequently indulges in lengthy sprees, at which times he applies to her vile epithets, and threatens to do her bodily harm. She says her husband is insanely jealous, and that she is obliged to work for her own support.

That Mrs. B. E. W. Dean has connived with her mother, Mrs. A. E. Johnson, alias Winter, to rob him of his earnings, is the allegation made by Joseph W. Dean in the answer to his wife's divorce complaint, which he filed in the Circuit Court yesterday morning. He says the pair have been successful to the amount of $1749. He wants the decree of divorce granted to him, and wishes it to provide that his wife pay the court this amount, to be turned over to him. He says specifically that his wife purchased ten lots and, instead of having the deeds made out in her own name, put the property in the name of her mother, in order to cheat her husband.

He says further that as soon as the wedding was over his wife deserted him to become a dancing girl in questionable resorts. Her treatment of him, he says, was cruel, unnatural and inhuman.

Charles Mayger Estate Appraised.

A total value of $14,175.93 has been placed on the Charles Mayger estate by the appraisers, Harry Henderson, H. E. Hall and George Shively. This amount, with the exception of $150, is entirely covered by promissory notes bearing 6 and 8 per cent interest. The $150 is the value of lot 22, block 4, Tabasco Addition, on E street, south of Hawthorne avenue.

Stock Ordinance Satisfactory.

The ordinance forbidding owners from allowing their stock to run at large in Milwaukie is proving satisfactory, according to the opinion of many citizens who have attractive homes. There will now be a general movement for removal of old fences and for a general cleaning up, which could not be done as long as stock roamed through the streets. The school directors will remove the unsightly fence surrounding the schoolhouse in a short time.

PLAN GRANGE WORK

Agriculturists Complete Programme for Session.

EDUCATION IS PURPOSE

Copies of the Selected Schedule of Topics Will Be Forwarded to All Organizations in the State.

With the assistance of prominent educators, including State Superintendent J. H. Ackerman, President Kerr and Dr. Withycombe, of the Oregon Agricultural College, and the State Librarian, State Lecturer J. J. Johnson, of the Patrons of Husbandry, yesterday completed the programmes for the educational work for the granges of Oregon from November 1, 1908, to September 1, 1909. Copies will be sent to all granges in the state at once.

In order to carry out the plan the granges were grouped into ten divisions or districts corresponding to the ten programmes, and these will be placed in the hands of the lecturers of the districts before November 1. Programme No. 1 will go to district No. 1, and so on through. For December the programmes in all the districts are changed to other districts so that at the end of the ten months the ten programmes will have been used in all districts in the state.

Mr. Johnson has made arrangements with the State Librarian to send out to each lecturer the literature bearing on the subjects to be considered so that the granges remote from libraries will be provided with reading matter bearing on all necessary subjects. When one district has completed a programme the literature will be returned to the State Librarian to be sent out again to another district. The plan evolved is a school in which the popular and practical questions of the day pertaining directly to the farm and home are to be studied every month throughout the year. Each lecturer will be in charge of the educational work of each grange. State Lecturer Johnson is sending out instruction to lecturers and will direct the work from his Portland office with the co-operation of the State Librarian. The Portland Librarian will furnish literature mainly used in Multnomah County. Good results are expected from this state-wide educational work. It is the first time the educational feature of the Patrons has been systemized.

Following are the ten programmes of four subjects each, which will reach and be studied by every grange in the state by September 1, 1909:

No. 1—"Road Legislation for Oregon," "Surroundings of the Home," "The New Farm Home," "The Greatest Present Needs of the Country School."

No. 2—"Our National Immigration Problem," "The Folly of the Bare Fallow," "The Care of the Home," "The Schoolhouse and Its Surroundings."

No. 3—"Our National Waterways and Their Importance," "Livestock as a Factor in Successful Agriculture," "Mould in the Home," "Raising the School Funds."

No. 4—"The Movement for the Conservation of Natural Resources," "Tillage—Drainage and Irrigation," "Leavens," "The Apportionment of the School Fund."

No. 5—"The Prevention of Disease," "The Farm Orchard and Garden," "Personal Hygiene," "What Apparatus Is Needed in a Well Equipped School."

No. 6—"Food Adulteration and Its Detection," "Pure Water and Pure Milk," "Soils—Their Origin and Classification," "Centralization of Country Schools."

No. 7—"The Patent Medicine Evil and the Crusade Against It," "Plant Food—Character and Source," "Meats and Vegetables," "High School Development in Oregon."

No. 9—"The American Farmer Feeding the World," "The Advantages of Crop Rotation," "Educational Agriculture," "Domestic Economy in Schools."

No. 10—"Elimination of the Tramp," "Clover, Vetch, Alfalfa and the Field Pea," "Textile Fabrics," "Ethical Ideals in the School and Home."
