Seattle 7; Spokane 3

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 4.—(Special.)—Today's game was good stuff of a comedy, with Umpire Ehret as chief funmaker. Seattle's first two runs were gifts on a wild throw to second by Rogers, and Spokane's first two came as the result of bad fielding by Cahill and Zimmerman. F. X. MATTHEW IS STRICKEN

AGED PIONEER CONFINED IN LOCAL HOSPITAL.

Hardy Settler Who Braved Dangers of Long Journey to Oregon Is Seriously Ill.

F. X. Matthew, 91 years of age, who bears the distinction of being one of the first of the pioneers who braved the long and arduous overland trip to get to the old Oregon country, is ill in St. Vincent's Hospital. Mr. Matthew was brought to this city and placed in the hospital a few days ago for a trouble incidental to his advanced years. His illness, while confining, is not regarded as especially serious, and his physicians say that the hope for his return to his home in Butteville, Marion County, within a few weeks.

Among Oregon's venerable pioneers who are still living, Mr. Matthew, so far as is known, stands at the head of the list, as it is believed that there are none now left of those who accompanied the first trail-blazing expedition across the Rocky Mountains for the Oregon country, which at that time, in 1842, had not been taken over as a part of the United States. He is a French Canadian, having been born in a small town near Montreal. For a number of years he was a trader for the Hudson's Bay Company, then the paramount political and commercial power in Canada. He was a member of the Hudson's Bay Company, and found his way to St. Louis, Mo., where for several years he made trips into the Northwest for the American Fur Company. In 1842 he joined the first wagon train which left St. Louis for the mysterious and unknown "land of promise" west of the Rockies. Arriving in Oregon in the Fall of that year, he has remained in the state ever since, having now had a continuous residence here of 66 years. He was one of the 102 men of the early settlers who met to vote whether they should have the American or British authority in these domains. He is the only one of those 102 delegates now living.

Mr. Matthew settled in Marion County, where he now owns extensive farms. He married and had a family of 15 children, seven of whom are still living. One son, Stephen Alfred Matthew, is a prominent druggist on the East Side. Mr. Matthew was a member of the State Legislature from 1874 to 1878, was County Commissioner of Marion County for four years, and was a Justice of the Peace. He joined the Masonic order in Oregon City in 1855. This was the only lodge in the state at that time, and is now the oldest Mason in Oregon. He is also the oldest Elk in the state.

Fire partially destroyed the two-story frame building at 412 East Morrison street, at 10 o'clock last night. During the progress of the blaze Patrolman Russell of the first night relief received severe burns on his right hand and was almost overcome by smoke while examining the cause of the fire. Patrolman Russell was unable to ascertain if there was anyone asleep there. The first floor was used by a branch of those who have been in the building since the fire broke out. The second floor, while the upper floor is occupied by J. T. Collins and his family. Collins conducts a saloon next door. He and his family were out at the theater when the blaze, which was caused by a fire being left in the stove, broke out. The damage amounted to about $750 most of this being from the loss of Collins' household goods. Four rooms on the upper floor were gutted. Slight loss was sustained by the hat works caused by damage to hats from water.

BOYAN PRAISES LIFE OF FARMERS

Wants More of Them in Nation's Councils to Check Cities' Growth.

GOVERNMENT TOO STINGY

Democratic Candidate Contrasts Amounts Spent by Government on War and Agriculture—Need More Farmer-Politicians.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 4.—William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, today made two avowedly nonpolitical speeches to his home folks. The first was at the State Fair grounds, where he participated in the dedication of the new auditorium, and the second was at the Tabitha Home, near Fairview, where a new building was dedicated as a hospital for the aged.

In his fair grounds speech, which was to a multitude of persons, Mr. Bryan confined himself mostly to an appeal to the farmers to take a livelier interest in legislation, both state and National. He was introduced in a short, happy address by Governor Sheldon, who has just been renominated by the Republicans for Governor and who was captain in Mr. Bryan's regiment in the Spanish-American War. Mr. Bryan reformed somewhat humorously to his own experiences as a soldier and said that among the candidates for President this year he was the only man with a war record.

Addressing himself to a serious vein to the farmers, he said, among other things: "Too stingy with farmers."

"My friends, we are more stingy in making appropriations for the farmer than for any other large class of our people. Why, it was a century after our Government was organized that the first appropriation was made for a Department of Agriculture established. We are the greatest agricultural country in the world, and yet, farmers get a seat around the President's council table. What will you think when I tell you that for every dollar we spend on the Agricultural Department we spend more than $25 on the Navy? More than $25 as much spent in getting ready for wars we ought never to have as we spend on agriculture. I believe that with more farmers in the councils of the Nation, more farmers present to exert an influence upon public thought through the pen and pencil and the tongue, we shall have a change and that change will help to retard, if not to stop, the tendency now from the farm to the city. The influence of agriculture has not been what it ought to have been. Take the rebates that have built up great centers and head centers in the smaller towns. Why have they been given? Because the farmer has not had a voice in the regulation of the railroad.

FARM TRAINING SCHOOL

And so I might take up other questions. And what is the menace of the centralizing of power in our great cities? I believe the farm is the great training school and I know that the people who have strengthened every branch of business, but my friends, I believe as far from the soil, we are less and less impressed by these great laws of nature that influence our controlling influence in our lives. Man, as he lives close to the soil, has a sense of the grandeur of the religion to one who sees the miracles performed every day. It is easy to inspire the farmer for the greater in one who sees every day the handwriting of the Almighty God, the constant and majestic tendency of nature. And on these farms we have been rearing the men and the women whose influence have helped to keep the country great and to promote the movement for their objects the welfare of the world.

GERMAN EDITOR CHEERS CANDIDATE WITH HIS OPTIMISM

FAIRVIEW, Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 4.—The most important visitor received by W. J. Bryan today was Herman Ridder, one of the Democratic campaign managers, who stopped off on his way East. He brought a very flattering report of the political situation as he found it in the West, and particularly among the farmers. Mr. Ridder has traveled extensively over the United States since the Denver convention and he laid before the candidate some statistics tending to show that all the so-called gold and Cleveland Democrats of any prominence are this year supporting Mr. Bryan, and express themselves ready to take the stump for him. Mr. Ridder said: "From careful observation I am now convinced that the Democratic National ticket will elect William J. Bryan. I told Mr. Bryan so. This opinion is not based on wild hopes, neither does desire sway me in forming it. It is the result of careful canvases made by myself and my friends since the Denver convention adjourned.
